Chas. K. Hamilton in Biplane Flew
From New York to Philadelphia

Men and Women Perished in Fire in Montreal

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—With a dull, leaden sky overhead, Charles K. Hamilton, the young aviator who has achieved world wide fame in less than a year, today made the most daring flight of his career, traveling in his biplane from Governors Island, New York, to a point on the outskirts of Philadelphia, a distance of 26 miles, in 112 minutes, unofficial time.

A feature of the wonderful achievement of the modest young aviator was the ease with which he picked up and followed a train on the Pennsylvania railroad traveling at express-train speed. According to his program, he flew from Governors Island to South Elizabeth, N. J., where the train was awaiting his appearance. From that point, town after town along the line reported the amazing feat that the biplane had passed "with Hamilton flying directly over it." Occasionally, with the probable desire to give variety to his journey, he diverged a little. At Princeton, for instance, he went up near the old college town and ascended slightly so that the students and alumni gathered there for commencement could see him.

At the aviation field, four miles northeast from the center of the city, as the crowd flies, a tremendous crowd awaited the arrival of the daring aviator. An almost ideal landing cushion composed of tall grass growing out of soft ground had been selected. The field lies to the north of the Pennsylvania tracks near North Penn. Junction and it was surrounded by five hundred policemen to keep back the crowds. All the mills in the neighborhood were shut down and that section of Philadelphia took a holiday.

The crowd began gathering at 6 a. m. and patiently waited for news of Hamilton's start. Finally the signal flags, erected on a tall pole, told of Hamilton's leaving Governors Island and other signals arranged by the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger under whose auspices Hamilton made the trip, kept the crowd informed of the aviator's progress.

It was a misty morning and the range of vision did not extend very far. A report came that Hamilton had crossed into Pennsylvania and it did not seem long before a shout went up from the eastern edge of the crowd that Hamilton was in sight. Sure enough, there he was, high in the air, directly over the special train. A moment later he was in plain view of all and then a tremendous roar of applause went up. Flying steadily Hamilton rapidly approached, swerved to the right and crossed the field.

The daring aviator circled the field several times and then swooped down like a seagull after a fish.

He landed easily but before he could get out of his machine the crowd broke through the police lines and rushed at Hamilton. The aviator was, however, quickly surrounded by a cordon of police.

The first thing he asked for when he stepped out was a cigar. He was as cool as if he had just alighted from an automobile ride.

Governor Stuart was on the field to welcome Hamilton. To the governor he said that it was the best trip he had ever made.

"I had the machine in perfect control all the way and could have stayed up indefinitely if I had desired. I circled the field three times to show the crowd that I was able to keep up long."

"The only drawback to the journey was the dampness and the chill. Most of the trip was misty and at times I could not see the train and seldom saw the people at the stations."

For a long time Hamilton could pay no attention to his biplane, so enthusiastic was his reception. The police had all they could do to keep the crowd from crushing his machine. Finally he was able to turn his attention to it and then he announced after an inspection that he would attempt to return to New York within an hour, the weather conditions being in his opinion ideal for flying.

Hamilton started on his return at 11:30 a. m. The crowd cheered him until he was out of sight. All the factory whistles also gave him a farewell blast.

After taking his biplane apart upon his arrival here, the aviator was brought into the city for luncheon at a hotel.

Immediately afterward he returned to the field where he superintended the filling of the gasoline tank. After spending a little time in tuning up his engine he said he was ready for the start.

Putting on his rubber coat he got into the seat of his machine and placing two inflated auto tubes around his body he gave instructions to spectators to start him. Four men gently pushed the machine down the field about seventy feet and then it began to rise. The biplane went up at a sharp angle to about 200 feet. Hamilton then adjusted the machine, turned her course east on the railroad and started off. He moved rapidly and was soon out of sight. The special train was a little late in getting away.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, started from Governors Island at 7:55 o'clock this morning in his aeroplane to New York and Philadelphia and return, under the auspices of the New York Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger. His propeller broke in an attempted start 25 minutes earlier but was quickly repaired and the aviator made a graceful rise, circling the island once and then heading off over the Kill Van Kull at a height of about 225 feet.

Perhaps 4000 people lined the waterfront at the Battery despite the early hour, intently watching Governors Island. Hamilton was lost to sight in the fog at 7:40.

Hamilton was early on the ground and busied himself with the preparations for his flight. He dressed himself in a big leather jacket, inside of which were five inflated automobile tire tubes intended to act as life preservers should the aviator fall into the water. The aviator exchanged greetings with numerous friends and was photographed in his grotesque appearing regalia while Glenn H. Curtiss, who was active in the assistance of his brother aviator, personally went over Hamilton's machine and saw that every nut, bolt and guy wire was in proper place. Just before 7:10 Hamilton seated himself in his machine and with a preliminary whirl of the propellers the machine was let loose. It traveled rapidly along the ground but before it had gone a hundred yards and while yet in contact with the earth one of the propeller blades struck a stake which projected six inches above the surface. The blade was smashed and the aviator, noting the damage, immediately stopped the machine.

It was seen that a new propeller would have to be substituted. There was a scurry and bustle and the aviation supplies on the island were soon found to furnish the desired article. In a moment or two mechanics were busy putting a new propeller in place on the machine. It was the propeller which Glenn H. Curtiss used in his record flight from Albany to New York and fitted the Hamilton machine to perfection.

Hamilton set the new propeller whirling at 7:55 o'clock and, as everything was found to work well, the machine was released at 7:55 and rose rapidly from the island aerodrome. Hamilton did not head at once towards Philadelphia but made a circuit of a mile and a half around Governor's Island, inclining his planes so that the machine gradually ascended until, as he finally headed off over the Kill Van Kull, he was flying at a height of about 225 feet.

The weather conditions were not far from ideal. The air was practically dead, only a slight breeze blowing at the rate of 4 or 5 miles an hour from the southeast. Crowds which had assembled to see the start gave the aviator a hearty cheer as he arose, swept around and passed over the island on his final getaway. No flags were flying from the aeroplane but Hamilton carried with him several hundred small, round, flat, celluloid discs known as peace bombs which he intended to drop at designated places in his flight as an illustration of the possibilities of the aeroplane in war.

Hamilton's brother aviators, Glenn H. Curtiss and Captain Baldwin, were of material assistance to him in his preparations for his flight and in repairing the accident damage. Curtiss and Baldwin and Baldwin's mechanic, "Slim" Shirley, worked like beavers in helping fit the new propeller with the result that it was only 23 minutes from the time of the mishap to the moment when the machine was again ready for her flight.

Rudely girls and linotype men fell through the huge gap in the floors of the building and were quickly buried under machinery and timbers.

WOMAN'S DEATH INVESTIGATED

NEW YORK, June 12.—A coroner's autopsy performed yesterday on the body of Mrs. Margaret Smullen, who died late Friday in a private sanatorium, showed that death was due to general apoplexy, induced by natural causes.

Mrs. Smullen was the daughter of G. Howland Leavitt, millionaire of Bay side, L. I. Last January she made a runaway match with Jos. Smullen, the "Candy Kid," who was a chauffeur and valet for Jim Corbett, the prize fighter, before he became chauffeur for Mrs. Smullen's father. They lived together but a short time.

FOR FLAG DAY

Day Issued by Mayor

Tomorrow, June 14, will be Flag day, and appropriate exercises will be held in the schools throughout the city and the children will be taught the glorious meaning of the flag. The following proclamation relative to the observance of the day was issued by Mayor Meehan this forenoon:

"To the people of Lowell: I earnestly invite all the people of Lowell to join in the public recognition of the birthday of the emblem of our nation. In many of our states, pursuant to law, in the public schools, and also voluntarily in private schools, exercises will be conducted in celebration of flag day. Teach the story of the flag, what it represents, and have the young people pledge their fealty and loyalty to it.

On the fourteenth day of June, 1777, congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new states, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon our fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unimpairedly restored by act of congress on April 4, 1818, when it enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars, in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star to be added to the Union, making forty-six in all.

The flag has become more and more the symbol of a mighty nation. Carried to the utmost parts of the earth, it has been thrown to the breeze protecting liberty and Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, when they contrast the meaning, in far distant lands, of ours and other flags displayed together.

I earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making flag day what it should be—an eventful day. Let us, from one end of our city to the other, flag the stars and stripes to the breeze on June 14, 1910. May it greet the rising and salute the setting sun, and float all day long from every church edifice, school and building, public and private, ever humble, throughout the city.

John F. Meehan, Mayor.

GRADE CROSSINGS

Work of Removing Them Will Start Tomorrow

The real work of abolishing the grade crossings in Lowell will start tomorrow. A lot of preliminary work has already been done and today the contractors are on the ground.

Contractor Stone of New London, Conn., this morning informed City Civil Engineer Bowers that he was on the job and that work on the Plain street job will be underway tomorrow. Mr. Stone said he was under obligations to rush the work and that he would push it through with all possible haste.

Mr. Bowers, after hearing from Mr. Stone, proceeded to arrange for the closing of Plain street to public travel. This street will be closed for at least two months, or until such time as the overhead bridge is built. Lincoln street, in the meantime, will remain open to travel and when the work in Plain street has been finished, Lincoln street will be closed, but not for so long a time as Plain street. Contractor Stone says that he will put on a big gang of men and he says he won't allow the grass to grow under their feet. "I am under obligations to rush the work," he said, "and I will rush it."

BROWN CLASS DAY EXERCISES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 11.—Bright sunny skies and a balmy summer breeze greeted the Brown university students when they assembled today for the annual class day exercises. The forenoon events were indoors, giving the rain-soaked campus grass an opportunity to dry and prepare itself for the time-honored student performances of this afternoon.

The students gathered late in the forenoon in Sayles hall where the class day address was delivered by Warren Clifford Johnson of Boston, president of the senior class. The oration was given by Winfield Wardwell Green of South Weymouth, Mass., and Walter Brown, Henderson of Jamaica, West Indies, recited the poem.

THE RAILROAD BILL

Conferees Expect to Report the Measure on Wednesday

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Conferees on the administration railroad bill were in session more than six hours yesterday and made such progress as led them to predict that they will be able to report to congress early this week, probably not later than Wednesday.

In the tentative draft which has been made up from the bills as they were passed by the house and senate the only two questions that remain in serious dispute are those relating to long and short hauls and the period during which increased rates should be suspended to give the interstate commerce commission time to pass upon their reasonableness.

With an agreement on the railroad bill in sight, the members of congress are beginning to figure on adjournment. Few members expect the session to last longer than Thursday, June 20, and not a few expect as early as June 25, which is Saturday.

Some of the employees on the committees on appropriations have consulted their records and have found that the long sessions usually adjourn about 15 days after the reporting of the general deficiency bill, the last of the great supply measures.

To this calculation was due in large part the prediction that the session would end on the last day of next week.

Only One Conservation Bill

There are not many matters of legislation remaining which are expected to consume much time. A canvass of the senate indicated a decided movement in favor of adopting the house amendments to the postal savings bank bill. This course would avoid a conference and might easily save two or three days.

The sundry civil bill probably will be passed by the senate today and the general deficiency never is held up long in the senate.

The bill to authorize the president to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes is the only one of the conservation measures slated to go through this session.

To that will be added, it is expected, the bill which has already passed the senate to permit the issuance of certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $30,000,000 to complete reclamation projects. It ought not to require more than a week to complete this bill.

No Statehood Measure

No decision has been reached as to statehood legislation, but the general impression seems to be that nothing will be done at the present session.

The railroad bill, therefore, appears to be the key to the adjournment situation, just as it has been for nearly four months. When that is out of the way and the measure has been approved by President Taft, members of congress can lay their plans to go home and not before.

Whether the conference report to be brought out during the week will be of a character that the two branches of congress will be ready to accept, remains to be seen. Unquestionably it will contain many disappointments for some members, and among these will be "insurgent" members in the senate and house.

The conferees have made a great many changes in the form of the bill to be reported. They have had the assistance of Attorney General Wickersham throughout in the matter of harmonizing the phraseology of the two bills wherein both branches of congress undertook to legislate upon the same subjects.

All of the agreements are tentative and, therefore, the conferees are not inclined to make them public.

Concessions to Radicals

It is known, however, that the senate amendment shifting from shippers to the railroads the burden of proving the reasonableness of increases in rates and the Overman amendment prescribing the rule under which federal courts would be permitted to set aside orders of state courts, will both be retained.

These provisions are highly pleasing to progressive republicans and democrats. The most serious trouble looked for in the adoption of the conference report will be in connection with the long and short-haul clause. A rigid requirement that no railroad should charge a higher rate for a short than for a long haul is not favored by the senate conferees. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the house amendment on this subject prevailed.

Many lawyers hold that the house amendment would be declared unconstitutional in that it delegates legislative authority to the interstate commerce commission. The senate amendment prescribes the rule by which railroads would not be permitted to discriminate against short hauls, and thus meets the constitutional question, according to the views of its framers.

Lengthy Debate Possible

The "insurgents" in the senate fear that if the senate conferees yield to the house on this matter their hard fight over this question will prove to have been a waste of time. It is likely they would debate the conference report at length if the house provision is adopted.

In the main the senate conferees have agreed to accept the provision in the house bill which provides for the amending of section 1 of the existing interstate commerce law as greatly to enlarge the jurisdiction of the commission over regulations and practices of railroads.

There is still some dispute over a requirement that all railroads must be prepared to make arrangements with other lines in the establishment of through routes and "to provide reasonable facilities for operating through routes."

The senate conferees assert that there are railroads which might be crippled by a strict application of this provision.

The provisions of the senate and house on the subject of placing telegraph, telephone and cable companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission have been rewritten, but in the main the new draft compares favorably with the La Follette amendment adopted by the senate.

TWO LOWELL MEN

Honored by Steam Engineers' Convention

Two Lowell men were honored at the 11th semi-annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch of the International Steam Engineers held at Lynn, William E. Kensick was elected vice president while Albra V. Hersome was chosen secretary.

There were 200 delegates at the convention and a number of important resolutions were adopted, among them being one to send a committee of three to Governor Draper to urge him to reappoint William M. Beck of Boston on the board of boiler inspectors.

A resolution was passed asking the convention of the international body, to be held in Denver to elect A. M. Huddell of Boston as president. He is now the first vice president of the international union. The choice of a delegate to the international convention was finally left to the executive board of the state branch to decide at their meeting to be held in July.

A feature of the day that was much enjoyed was an excellent fish dinner served soon after 1 o'clock by J. C. Tibbitts at his place on Lynn beach. After the dinner the convention met and elected the officers as follows: President, F. W. DeBergh of Boston; vice president, William E. Kensick of Lowell; secretary, Albra V. Hersome of Boston; treasurer, M. F. McNerny of Boston.

A rising vote of thanks was given to W. F. McAvoy of Milford, the retiring secretary, for his faithful service in the past four years. The next convention will be held at Lawrence the second Sunday in December. Local 295 will be the host.

The Lowell delegates to the convention were William E. Kensick, Albra V. Hersome, Michael Reidy, John McFadden, John Mutter and Lucius Butterfield.

PRINCE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, June 13.—The beautiful homes of notable Bostonians and the priceless and unrivaled Japanese exhibits of the Boston Art Museum were thrown open yesterday upon the visit to the city of Prince and Princess Fushimi of Japan.

The prince, with his suite, which numbered nearly a dozen from the flower kingdom, yesterday arrived in Boston at seven o'clock this morning in a special car.

At noon, the visitors were formally welcomed to the city in the name of the Commonwealth by Lieut-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, and members of the governor's staff.

Prince Fushimi announced during the day that he was in receipt of despatches from Japan which would necessitate his cutting short his visit to this country. Important business matters, he said, had caused the change in his plans.

SUBJECT WAS "CHARACTER"
WORCESTER, June 13.—"Selfishness is the cause of all social evils and in our political life is the cause of all the corruption and the inquiry," said Monsignor Michael C. McDonough of Lewiston, Me., in delivering the bacchanal address before the seniors of Holy Cross last night. His subject was "Character" and he exhorted the seniors to make the most of their opportunities.

DANGEROUS TRIP

Man Crossed Hell Gate on a Log

NEW YORK, June 13.—Standing on a log that rolled violently in the swirling waters of Hell gate, Edward A. Chase, a river driver from Bangor, Me., made a trip through the treacherous channel yesterday, crossing from scaly rock, on the Astoria shore, to the foot of East 89th street, Manhattan.

In one of the roughest spots in Hell gate there is government dredge. Suddenly one end of Chase's log was caught in a whirlpool and drawn under the dredge. Shouts of life-savers who followed him in two boats called Chase's attention to the danger. He jumped from the log into a boat just as the log was sucked under the dredge.

The boat skirted the dredge, and when the log reappeared Chase leaped back on it and continued his wild trip. He had announced he would make the journey without wetting his clothing, and succeeded, although he had a close call when the log pole he carried as a balance broke as he was trying to force the log into midstream.

Chase staggered, but recovered himself, and holding the broken parts of the pole together passed 89th street in safety and was taken into a lifeboat. In the soles of his boots were sharp spikes.

"I'm sorry I had to jump because of that dredge," Chase said when landing. "I knew I could make the trip all right, but was surprised at the force of the cross waves and eddies. Then I had a badly behaved log. After I started I found there was one flat surface on the log, and every time this rolled up it was extremely hard to keep the proper balance."

"I do not think the trip was as difficult as some I have taken while driving logs in Maine. There are rapids in the Piscataquis river that gave me more trouble, but the gate offers such a combination of troubles that comparison is difficult."

ROBBED HIMSELF

THAT IS CHARGE AGAINST EXPRESS CLERK

TRURO, N. S., June 13.—A mysterious robbery of nearly a year ago has been partly cleared up by a verdict of guilty against Laurie Burgess, brother of William J. Burgess, the man robbed. The latter will today be tried on a charge of complicity in the robbery of himself.

William J. Burgess was an express clerk. During a noon hour he was found bound and gagged in the office, of which he temporarily was in charge, and which had been robbed of nearly $6000. There was no clue to the thief. Ultimately some of the loot was discovered in a barn adjoining the Burgess home. Soon after detectives located, by means of some of the stolen checks, Laurie Burgess, then living in the Canadian Northwest. He was brought here for trial and his conviction resulted.

William Burgess maintains he was not concerned in any plot to secure the money and that he had no hopes of profiting from the robbery, of which he had no previous knowledge.

AT ST. ANTHONY'S

PATRONAL FEAST OBSERVED WITH ELABORATE SERVICES

Yesterday was the feast of St. Anthony and was appropriately observed at St. Anthony's (Portuguese) church. At the high mass an eloquent sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Rolin, O. F. M., and there was special music. At the 8 o'clock mass 25 children received their first communion, and in the evening, at the vesper service, many hundreds renewed their baptismal vows. At the evening service, also, a mission was opened, which will last for a week. Two Franciscan fathers, from the monastery of the order in Varatojo, Portugal, will conduct it. They are Rev. Fr. Rolin, O. F. M., and Rev. Ernest Salgado, O. F. M. The masses throughout the week will be celebrated at 5.30 o'clock, and every evening, at 7.15 o'clock, there will be given a sermon by one of the fathers, followed by the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Next Sunday morning a statue of St. Jean Baptiste will be presented to the church by the members of the recently formed St. Jean Baptiste society of the church. It will be placed in a shrine, with appropriate ceremonies.

REICHSBANK CHARTER

Monetary Commission Makes Report on Its Renewal

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The latest developments and discussions in regard to banking in Germany are embodied in a monograph just made public by the National Monetary commission under the title, "Renewal of Reichsbank charter." Senator Aldrich and the other members of the commission had the good fortune to be in Germany at the moment when a special commission was sitting to consider the revision of the charter of the imperial bank, which is made at regular periods of ten years. They have had translated for the use of congress not only the text of the discussions in this commission, made up of the ablest bankers and economists, but also much of the discussion which took place in the financial press before the enactment of the law of June 1, 1903, and the reasons given by the legislative committee for the provisions of this law.

The subject was much discussed whether the requirements imposed upon German banking facilities in the crisis of 1907 would have been mitigated if the imperial bank had possessed a larger capital. This view was dismissed by the committee, which reported the new law with the demonstration that the capital and surplus of the bank were larger than those of the Bank of France, the Bank of Austria-Hungary, or the Bank of Russia, and were second only to the capital resources of the Bank of England.

In deciding the question as to whether a further increase of the resources of the imperial bank was desirable, it was declared by the committee that it should be borne in mind that in the case of a central bank of issue its own funds are of less importance than they are in the case of other banking institutions; they serve principally as a guaranty fund for the creditors of the bank, while the working capital is created through the notes issued and the funds deposited in the bank. The experience of all the banks of issue pointed out, and it further held that as a guaranty fund for the creditors of the Reichsbank its present capital is fully sufficient. The bank does not require an increase of its resources for the task directly laid upon it as a bank of issue and for the sake of the bulk of its business resulting from this capacity.

The other point to which the greatest attention was given by the legislative committee was whether the system of limiting the volume of notes in circulation, by imposing a tax of 5 per cent. on the amount of notes above a fixed limit, when the notes were not fully covered by gold, was, upon the whole, a wise one. The committee found that the system had been shown to have worked perfectly well by the experience of the many years that have elapsed since the establishment of the Reichsbank. Although a certain indirect connection between the limit of untaxed circulation and the discount rate of the Reichsbank in regard to the discount rate must be admitted, in so far as the exceeding of the contingent and the raising of the discount rate presuppose increased demands upon the Reichsbank, a direct influence on the discount rate through the fixing of the note contingent can not be expected. In fact, the management of the Reichsbank has never allowed the tax imposed on the excess circulation to have any decisive influence on its discount policies. As, therefore, the discount policies of the Reichsbank would not be favorably affected by the elimination of the contingent, no reason was found for abandoning this system. On the other hand, it was declared by the committee, it seems altogether desirable to maintain the contingent system, as the exceeding of the contingent has more and more developed into a danger signal heeded by business men.

The former amount of the tax-free note contingent was not, however, regarded as sufficient. The figures for 1908 proved the inadequacy of the contingent, showing that it was exceeded 17 times, with a maximum excess of 572,644,757 marks ($136,000,000), and this conclusion was strengthened by the events of the year 1907. That year showed no less than 25 instances, of which the excess reported on Dec. 31 reached the amount of 625,974,353 marks, a maximum never reached before. At the same time it happened for the first time, in 1907, by reason of the large demands of business, that the Reichsbank had a note circulation which, even in its yearly average, exceeded the contingent by more than 58,000,000 marks. Although these two years could not be accepted as a general demonstration, because they were periods of exceptional financial strain, it had become evident that the old contingent of the Reichsbank was insufficient for the increased demands of business due to the increase of population and the accelerated economic development in Germany.

In establishing an increase the fact has to be reckoned with that the demands on the Reichsbank are regularly made to an especially large extent at the quarter days. The condition, resulting from custom, that at the beginning of a quarter large liabilities have to be met—for instance, in regard to mortgages, rent, interest, and salaries—causes at those times an extraordinarily heavy demand for instruments of payment, which it is the Reichsbank's unavoidable obligation to meet. In accordance with this view the new law increased the limit of authorized issues, covered by a reserve of one-third, to 550,000,000 marks, and in addition provided that this issue might be permitted to rise to 750,000,000 marks ($175,000,000) at the close of March, June, September, and December in each year.

Another important point in which the new law departs from the old charter of the bank is in making the notes of the bank legal tender. There was a strong disinclination to this policy when the bank was established, which is explained by the earnest desire then prevailing to do away with the existing paper regime and to place the metallic currency on a firm foundation. This aim has been realized to such an extent that at the present time Germany's metallic circulation, and particularly that of gold coin, is abundant for all demands of trade. On the other hand, bank notes also are regularly taken in payment, and for payments of large amounts they are used almost exclusively. In view of the fact that the legal status of this mode of payment was somewhat uncertain, however, such institutions as had to make numerous payments, banks especially, generally felt obliged for precautionary reasons to provide themselves with a considerable stock of gold in order to be prepared for any demand for gold that they might have to meet.

In proposing this measure the new law followed the examples of England and France. In England the notes of the Bank of England have been legal tender since January 1, 1844. In France the notes of the Bank of France were invested with this quality by the acts of August 12, 1870, and August 2, 1875. The conferring of the legal-tender quality upon the Reichsbank notes does not in any way affect the maintenance of the gold standard, as is proved by the example of the bank of England. In order to emphasize this more strongly, the words "legally current German money" in the paragraph relating to collection of notes have been replaced by "German gold coin." This expresses beyond a doubt that even a single note of the denomination of 20 marks must be redeemed in gold, although the amount of 20 marks comes still within the limit up to which imperial silver coin is decreed a legal tender by the currency act of July 9, 1873.

Thus the new law, while expanding the legal limit of the untaxed circulation, provides for direct redemption of notes in gold at the bank and gives uniformly, as far as possible, to the paper circulation. Another important provision of the law authorizes the bank and also the private banks of issue to purchase checks. Since the act of March 11, 1909, in relation to checks made it possible for a holder of a check to obtain legal protection for his claim, just the same as the holder of a bill, the committee declared that the fundamental objections to the purchase of checks were removed.

By permitting their purchase by the Reichsbank, the holder of a check payable in another city could get cash for it at any moment by having it discounted, whereas under the old method the amount was paid only after the check had been collected—that is, after a lapse of several days—and no liability was accepted by the bank for the presentation of the check for payment within the legal time limit. The discounted check, in accordance with its intrinsic purpose, would be presented for collection by the bank as quickly as possible, and its equivalent put at the disposal of the party presenting it by means of the giro (his account current being credited with the amount), the necessity of a cash remittance being thus avoided. It is expected that the purchase of checks by the Reichsbank will stimulate the use of checks and, in general, promote monetary intercourse without the employment of cash.

LAWYER HUMMEL

A Passenger on Bubonic Ship

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—Abel Hummel, the famous New York attorney, who was sent to the penitentiary for a year and after his release sailed for France with more than $1,000,000 in cash, is aboard the steamship Nippon Maru, which is held in quarantine off Angel Island. Three cases of bubonic plague were discovered on the ship. Hummel left Paris a few months ago and went to the Orient. He had announced that he would never return to the United States, but it is now discovered that he had hoped to make his way back to this country for a brief stay.

SAVED FROM SEA

WOMEN PICKED FROM OVERTURNED CANOE

BOSTON, June 13.—Two young women, who refused to give their names, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon by the overturning of a canoe in which they were paddling from a yacht to the breakwater at Winthrop Highlands. When they were about half way to shore the tender was overturned. Neither was able to swim, and both would have drowned but for the timely arrival of the dory of the Winthrop Highlands volunteer lifesaving crew. Thomas Green and Ralph Halford were on the breakwater, watching the yacht off shore and saw the two women put off in the canoe which was tied as a tender.

The lifesavers realizing the difficulty of navigating a canoe in the heavy sea kicked up by the recent storm, immediately prepared the dory attached to the station.

The canoe bobbed over the waves, several times yawing as it was tossed through the trough of a wave. When the two women were about half way ashore, a mistroke of a paddle or a side blow of wind caught the shell, overturning it.

The two lifesavers launched the dory, and arrived at the place where the two women had overturned just as one had become exhausted and unconscious, and hurried off toward Winthrop Centre, where it is thought that they live.

Both women professed themselves to be skillful canoeists, but said that they did not expect the surf to be so difficult to navigate.

BOUVIER CAUGHT

Is Charged With Breaking and Entering

FITCHBURG, June 13.—Patrolman William H. Grant chased and caught, early yesterday morning, a man who gave the name of Albert Bouvier, and whom the officer says was attempting to gain an entrance at the rear of the Iver Johnson block on Main street.

The officer was making his rounds shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. While passing through an alleyway in the rear of the Iver Johnson block he saw the form of a man under the windows apparently trying to raise the sash. He saw the man crouched in the darkness, hoping to get near enough to the man to grab him before he was discovered. When within a short distance of the man his presence was noted and the man made a dash for his liberty. He led the officer a merry chase through alleyways and finally into Main street.

As the race proceeded the patrolman pulled his revolver and threatened to shoot, but the man dropped down between two buildings and the officer soon had him.

Yesterday Bouvier was put through

Cross & Co.'s wholesale place and took cigars and cigarettes and that he tried to break into the Iver Johnson sporting goods store and also the C. C. clothing store.

How to Cure Eczema

A NEW IDEA THAT UPSETS THE OLD METHOD

The old method of treating eczema and similar skin diseases as blood disorders is being rapidly superseded by the new compound called Cadum. This remedy is applied direct to the affected parts, thus excluding the air and starting the healing process at once. The itching ceases the moment Cadum is applied, and the most stubborn cases yield to its wonderful curative powers in a remarkably short time. Other skin troubles, such as salt rheum, (psoriasis), acne, herpes, tetter, itching piles, blackheads, pimples, eruptions, etc., are also cured quickly by Cadum, which is sold by all druggists at 10c and 25c a box.

Playwright and Actor in Serious Condition

NEW YORK, June 13.—Two prominent members of the theatrical world are dangerously ill in New York, Eugene Walter, the author of "Paid in Full" and "The Fastest Way," is at his home suffering from an attack of pneumonia. His condition is considered very critical. George P. Huntley, one of the best English actors that ever visited this country, is suffering from typhoid fever, and the attending physicians announce that he has but slight chance of recovery. Mr. Huntley took the part of Eccles in the last star company of "Caste," that played in New York city for weeks. His acting won him a legion of new friends.

KILLED WIFE

MAN THEN TOO KNEW OWN LIFE BY SHOOTING

PITTSBURGH, June 13.—After beating his wife and cutting her face open with the butt of a revolver in the presence of his son and a physician who had been called to attend a sick child, Joseph Semide, a mill worker, shot the woman dead, last night, and turning the weapon upon himself ended his own life.

A 14-year-old son, who had been beaten by the father a few moments before, was hidden behind some furniture and saw the double tragedy. The victims were each 35 years of age and have seven children.

VESSEL AGROUND

Sighted on Handkerchief Shoal

CHATHAM, June 13.—With the lifting of the fog early today after three days of stormy weather, men patrolling the beach sighted an unknown two masted fishing schooner aground on Handkerchief shoal about two miles east of the Handkerchief light. Shortly after sighting the straggled vessel, Captain Kelley of the lifesaving crew and a crew of wreckers put out of this port to assist the crew of the fishermen in floating their craft at high tide. It is believed that the schooner went aground while working her way into Chatham bay for protection from the storm.

POLICE AT WORK

On the Trunk Murder Mystery

MILAN, Italy, June 12.—Whether the police will ever find the person who murdered Mary Scott Castle Charlton and placed her body in a trunk at Lake Como is yet to be decided. The police have discovered a number of clues, but have made no public announcement of the new points. Mrs. Charlton was well known in San Francisco society circles at one time. She created a sensation by attempting to kill a New York lawyer by shooting him as he was in an elevator in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York city. A few months ago Mrs. Castle was married to Porter Charlton of Baltimore.

POLICEMAN CUT

Was Struck on Head With Stone

GREEN, June 12.—An attempt to assist in quelling a disturbance among Italians at Newton Upper Falls proved costly to Patrolman John H. Shaughnessy yesterday afternoon. One of the men he was attempting to arrest struck him on the head with a stone, inflicting a gash that required several stitches. In spite of his injuries he refused to give up and assisted another officer in arresting three men.

Shaughnessy lives at 11 Hale street, Newton Upper Falls, and was on duty at the time. In the house at 29 Hale street a number of Italians live and at noon they commenced quarreling. During the early afternoon neighbors complained of noise in the house and at 2 o'clock Patrolman Ambrose M. Fuller went to investigate.

A crowd collected, and Shaughnessy, who was in civilian's clothes, walked from his home to see what was going on. Fuller called for assistance and Shaughnessy attempted to arrest one man and the others attacked him. In the yard he was struck with the stone on the forehead.

With blood pouring down his face, the dazed officer kept his hold on the man he had arrested and fought off the others until Fuller succeeded in placing them under arrest. He was then taken to his home. It will be several days before he will be able to resume his duties.

The men under arrest are Giovanni Sammarco, 32 years old, of 20 Hale street, who is charged with disturbance and assault on an officer; Antonio Genozio, 28 years old, of 14 Rogers street, Boston, who is held on a charge of attempting to rescue a prisoner; and Benedict Genozio, 35, of 20 Hale street, who is booked for disturbance. All secured bail.

DIAMOND NOTES

"Tenney" Day at Lynn today. Lowell plays there and the big league managers of Boston together with Tenney's Lynn friends will give him a reception.

Home games every day this week after today.

Congressman Ames has presented the team a beautiful flag and it will be hoisted at tomorrow's game, Flag Day, with due ceremony.

Don't miss Thursday's game. Before the league game the Edsons and the Bartlett of the grammar school teams will play for the school championship of the city. Manager Gray will furnish bats, balls, etc. and present a cup to the winners. If you have never seen a grammar school game don't miss this one. The first game starts at one o'clock.

The rain thus far this season has held the receipts back $52,000 behind what they would have been had weather conditions been favorable. In the history of base ball there has never been a more unprofitable season thus far.

Haverhill starts its games at 3.30. Lawrence starts at 3 o'clock, which is the right time for patrons to see a game and then get back to work about supper time. If they must. More benefit by starting early than by starting late—Lawrence Eagle.

If they start at 2.30 the game would be better off.

Frankie Shannon objects to being called the oldest player in the New England league. He also objects to Jim Hearn of the Lowell Sun saying that he started in playing ball shortly after the war—Lynn Daily News.

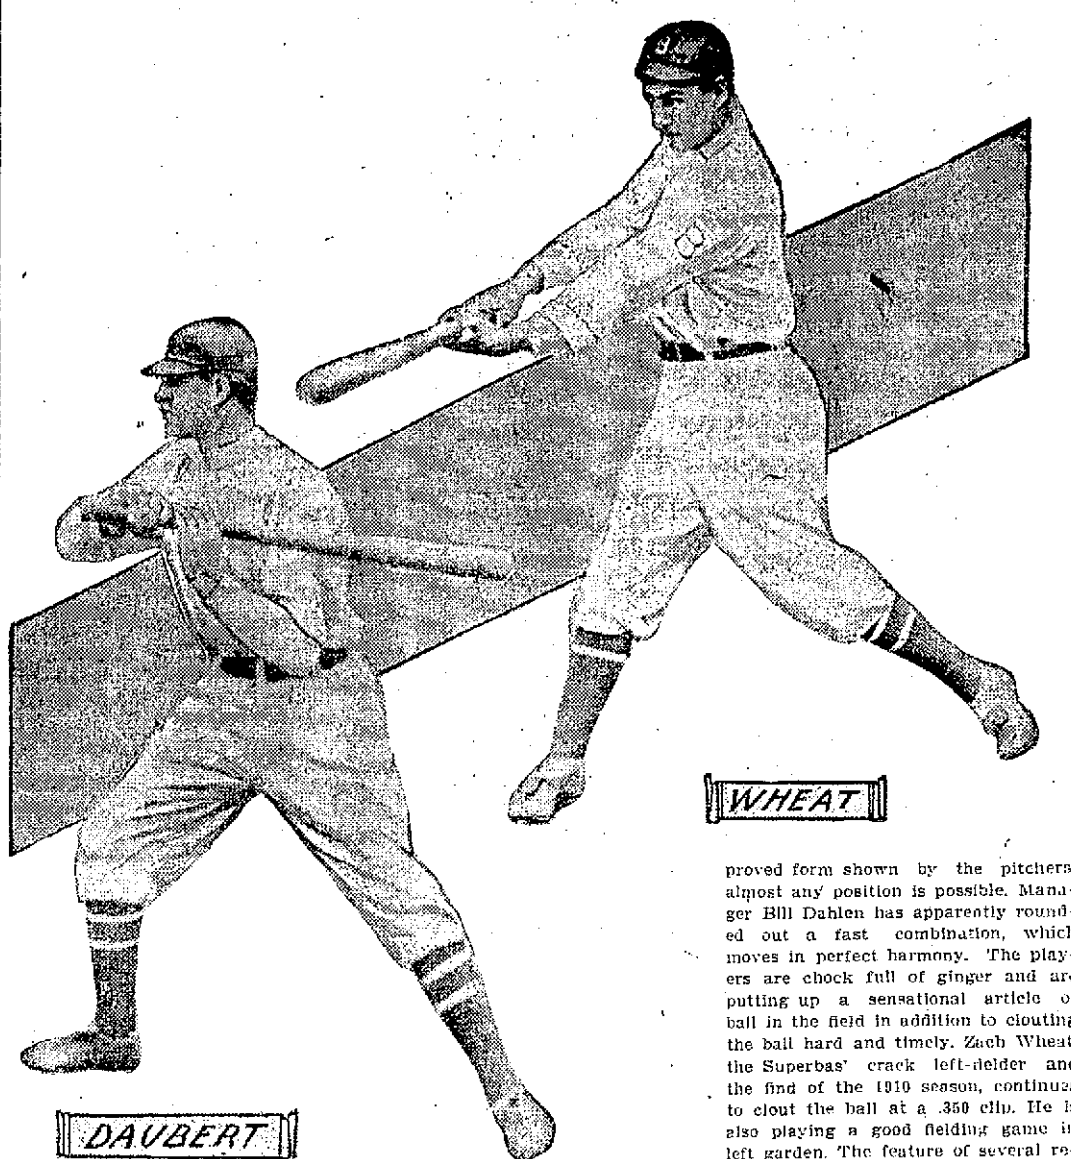

Well to tell the truth Shannon first became known as a crack player with the English high school team in Boston in 1889. He graduated from the high school that year and entered Harvard. He lost his standing as an amateur player the following year by reason of playing semi-professionally on Saturdays. The pitcher of the high school team that year was the lamented "Big Mike" Sullivan whom Arthur Irving took to New York in the big league when he finished school. Sullivan studied law and practiced in Boston up to the time of his death a few years ago. Thus, brother, if Shannon objects to the statement that he started his career shortly after the war, well amend the statement and say that he started just 10 years before the war—with Spout; and, more power to him, he's going yet.

Umpire Connolly, however, gave a grand exhibition yesterday all things considered. He did not miss many of the plate decisions and his ability to size up the next play shows that he is surely improving. If the fans and players will only allow him half a chance he is good once in a while to give the poor weary ump a boost for he worked 13 innings without a rest whereas the players are in the game but a portion of the nine rounds.—Lynn Daily News.

At last there's at least one man as good as to the law reverence, A. J. "One-Eyed" Connolly, hooray! Everybody please copy!

Manager O'Neil of Springfield, has been after Stankard, of whose ability he has the lowest opinion. He has made a number of propositions to Manager Flanagan, but none to date that wait.

FRANK J. GOULD TO BECOME A CITIZEN OF FRANCE

PARIS, June 12.—Frank J. Gould has decided that hereafter he will live his life in Paris, deserting his native country so that he can devote his time to horse racing and writing plays. It has been reported here that Gould will become a Frenchman. He is also expected to marry Miss Edith Kelly, a New York actress. Friends of Gould are surprised over his plan to become a citizen of France, as he has said denial if it were not that fact that it had been printed so extensively. Stallings suits as a manager and Chase suits Stallings as captain. Both men are warm friends.

Umpire Byrne got off a new one at Lynn the other day. The lowering clouds made it impossible to see and Byrne called the game out "on account of darkness, temporarily." As this temporarily stuff did not appear in the rule book, Bill Hamilton said he was from Missouri and the ump finally admitted that temporarily didn't do.—Brookton Times.

There's likewise some class to those "lowering clouds." Dan Lock out there don't hit you as you stand quite a distance from the ground.

FARRELL DENIES REPORT

NEW YORK, June 12.—President Frank Farrell, of New York American league club, emphatically denied last night the story printed in Detroit and telegraphed east to the effect that Hal Chase, not George Stallings, was manager of the New York Americans. "This story is ridiculous," said Farrell, "and seems to have been started to create discussion in my team. Stallings is the manager and Chase, the captain, and the men work together in perfect harmony. Once the game is started, Stallings attends to his duties on the bench, and Chase exercises whatever supervision is necessary over the players in the field. I would not dignify the story by a

REV. WILSON WATERS SPOKE OF HIS ORDINATION

At All Saints church, Chelmsford, yesterday, the rector, Rev. Wilson Waters, spoke of his own ordination to the ministry 20 years ago and the first service held in the village 50 years ago. In part, he said:

"Truly there is something to be thankful for in 50 years of Christian ministry. It is the most glorious, the most inspiring, the most sacred work in which a man can engage, and while in these 20 years there have been some bitter discouragements, some hardships, and perhaps some mistakes, yet St. Paul faced much worse than I have faced. I would not exchange my calling for any other; and seeing we have this ministry, we ought not, for we have received great mercy and great help, from the only source of strength, to do the work committed unto us by the laying on of apostolic hands. I was ordained deacon in St. John's chapel, Cambridge, by Bishop Peabody, June 20, 1890. I was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Potter of Tarrytown, N. Y., in the church where Washington Irving worshipped, April 19, 1891.

Completing my work at St. Anne's,

Lowell, in the fall of 1892, I one day walked to Chelmsford, and saw the beautiful church met Mr. Pease and Miss Hunt, and on invitation of the parish became rector, Dec. 5, 1892. I have found the people to be loyal workers, and with their assistance, and the help of friends, have been able to spend $7000 in improving the property and have had success, I trust, in building up the spiritual temple.

DIST. MEETING

Of L'Union St. Jean Baptiste Yesterday

L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique of the districts of Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Newburyport, Amesbury, Salem, Lynn and Forge Village held its annual district convention at C. M. A. C. hall yesterday, with a large attendance of delegates.

The delegates, together with the members of the three local councils, Carillon, Jacques and Laval, and Barrette council of Forge Village, marched in a body at 10 o'clock from C. M. A. C. hall to St. Joseph's church. Arthur Morvan, vice-president of Laval council, led the procession, and the Garde Frontenac accompanied the marchers.

Rev. Fr. Baron, O. M. I., rector of St. Joseph's church, was the celebrant at the solemn high mass, with Rev. Fr. Donizot, O. M. I., of Tewksbury as deacon, and Rev. Brother Fwenceski of the Tewksbury novitiate as sub-deacon.

Rev. Fr. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., superior of St. Joseph's parish, delivered the sermon. He spoke on the work and ideals of L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique.

A special musical program under the direction of Frank Gaudreau, with Joseph A. Bernard at the organ, was carried out. The mass, royale, was sung by the choir. As a prelude, Mr. Bernard played Gullmunt's "Grand Chorus in D-Major," and as a postlude, the allegro movement from Widor's second organ symphony. At the offertory, Arthur Leveille sang Holden's "O Salutaris." The soloists in the mass were Elzear J. Larochelle, George Labranche, Frank Gaudreau, Telephore Trudel, J. Morin and Joseph Desbians of Lawrence.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Jean Walden Misset of Salem, son of Mr. Jean Misset, who for years was director of the celebrated Salem band, was united in marriage to Miss Elena Marelain Abbott, daughter of Mrs. Emma C. Abbott, at the latter's home, 278 Branch street, Saturday night. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. R. A. Greene, D. D., of the Grace church, in the presence of 40 relatives and intimate friends, the wedding being a very quiet one. The best man was Mr. Frederick A. Whitney of Westfield, formerly of this city. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Blanche A. Abbott, as maid of honor. The bride was gown in white crepe and carried a bouquet of lilacs of the valley. Her sister was gown in yellow crepe and carried yellow marguerites. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Perry D. Thompson.

The house was beautifully decorated with laurel in blossom. At the close of the marriage luncheon was served. There was the usual array of costly gifts. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jean Misset, Miss Misset, Mrs. John Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Thompson, all of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Misset will be at home after Nov. 1 at Dustin street and Columbus avenue, Salem. No cards.

ABERNATHY LADS BEING LIONIZED BY NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 12.—Louis and Abner Abernathy will be two of the most prominent figures in the Roosevelt reception committee. The boys are two six and nine years of age, who rode home from Oklahoma, are being lionized by New Yorkers. Their father, United States Marshal Jack Abernathy, is about the proudest father in the country. After he met his two sons in Trenton, N. J., he took them to a New York hotel, and now they are busy sightseeing. The most remarkable thing about the two boys is that they have not been "spoiled" by their long ride and publicity. They are two healthy American lads who think they have the first father in the world. Nor do they use the slang credited to them by many reporters. The youngest boy still has a baby lip and is happy when he is on his father's knee. In Trenton, N. J., he took them to a New York hotel, and now they are busy sightseeing.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Observed at Evangelical Churches
Throughout the City

Yesterday was Children's day in the evangelical churches throughout the city. There were concert programs, graduation exercises of Sunday school classes and presentation of plants. The weather clerk who has been acting so curiously of late forced a smile for the children yesterday and condescended to suspend the downpour of rain for the convenience of the little ones. The floral decorations in all of the churches were quite elaborate. Beautiful flowers and decorations of greenery, among which hung cages of canary birds, made the Pawtucket church beautiful on Children's day, and more beautiful by far than the decorations were the glad, expectant faces of the little ones. The entire morning service was given up to the children and there was music appropriate to the occasion.

Centralville Methodist
Children's day observance at the Central M. E. church was both interesting and beautiful. The exercises were held in the evening and the program was a long and varied one, consisting mostly of recitations, songs and drills by the children. The platform was prettily decorated with American flags, cut flowers and potted plants, the flowers and plants later being distributed among the children. One of the features of the program was the "collection drill," in which many of the young men and women of the church took part, carrying flags of series in red, white and blue.

First Baptist Church
Children's day service at the First Baptist church Sunday morning was well attended. While the exercises were by the children of the primary and kindergarten departments, the classes of older members were out in full numbers. The Philaetha class of young women reporting 45, the Baraca class of young men 31, and the Floyd class 209. The floral decorations were very beautiful, including large baskets of sweet peas, lilies of the valley, roses and other choice flowers, and also 200 well grown plants in pots that were given at the close of the service to the younger children. The program was arranged by Mrs. L. T. Trull, superintendent of the primary department; Miss Alice Henderson, teacher of the kindergarten; Miss Etta Smith and Miss Gertrude Folger. The committee on decorations was Mrs. E. F. Quinn, Miss Bertha Taylor, Miss Minnie P. Taylor, Mr. James Anderson and Miss Minnie Walsh. The exercises included recitations, dialogues, solos, a military drill by thirteen boys, and other features, more than sixty children having parts, besides the singing by the school and classes.

First Universalist
The First Universalist church was prettily decorated in honor of Children's Day, or Flower Sunday. The exercises were held in the morning and were well attended. The pupil platform was banked with potted plants, palms and ferns and the program was a most delightful one.

Highland Congregational
The program for Children's Sunday at the Highland Congregational church was under the direction of Supt. Frank J. Spooner of the Sunday school and the program committee, consisting of Mrs. Clarence Bancroft and Misses Elsie and Alice Bradt. The pupils were addressed by the pastor, Rev. A. Frederick Dannels and also by Supt. F. J. Spooner.

Worthington Baptist
The following program was given at the Worthington Baptist church: Processional; invocation, pastor; response; quartet; a welcome, Irma Carr; song, Branches of Palm, school; recitation, It is Children's Day, Gladys Vaughn; A Daisy Girl, Dorothy Farley; A Daisy Day, Chester Patten; solo, Consider the Lilies, Miss Griffin; reading, The Little Lad, Miss Alberta McQuesten; recitation, A Little Standard Bearer, Gretchen Carr; exercise, sunbeams, Wallace McQuesten, Harold Patten, Helen Day, Ruth Carr, Bradford Dunn, Barrett Hoy, Rosabel O'Neil; Hazel Vaughn; song, Just because He Loves Us So, school; recitation, Harris Barber; song, Like the Flowers, Charlotte Snow, Marion Leadbetter; recitation, Roses, Beatrice Symonds; exercise, What Makes Children's Day, Myrtle Day, Teresa White, Grace Shaw, Gladys Giles; song, presentation of diplomas by the pastor; promoted to the intermediate department, Glendon Arnold, Irma Carr, Helen Day, Barrett Hoy, Wallace McQuesten, Charlotte Snow, Elizabeth Rhodes, Harris Barber, Ruth Carr, Bradford Dunn, Marion Leadbetter, Harold Patten, Raymond Stirk, Gladys Vaughn; collection; distribution of plants; benediction.

First Presbyterian
Children's day was appropriately observed at the First Presbyterian church. The program was an interesting one. Two babies, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toogood and Mr. and Mrs. William McKenney, were baptized. A large number of the cradle roll was present and each child was presented a potted plant.

Gorham Street Methodist
Services appropriate to Children's Sunday were held at the Gorham Street P. M. church. There were morning and evening services and the children of the Sunday school were prominent in the programs of both. One of the features of the service was the singing by the children's chorus. The drills by different groups were another attractive feature. The church was prettily decorated.

Calvary Baptist Church
Children's day services at the Calvary Baptist church were held last evening. In addition to the regular program, seven boys and eight girls graduated from the primary to the junior department. The program of the evening was as follows: "The Beatitudes," Lepi Kelleo of graduating class, also the Apostles' creed, songs, Etta Clement; recitation, Alice McLane; "The Bible Bees," Victoria Munna, Ruth Hullenberg, Irene Hall, Laurie Kelleo, Walno Kelleo, Ernest Moller, Thelma Beattie, Freda Rogers, Jennie Drummond, Myrtle Sylvester, Mildred Lamm, Louise Chambers, Edna Gaurin and Eva Brown; song, "Little Raindrops," Paul McGregor, Harold Stephens; recitation, Gladys Green; solo, "The Holy City," recitation, Beale Wallace; duet, Sarah Clement and Ruth Bowen; the Ten Commandments, graduating class; the Two Great Commandments, graduating class; the Books of the Old Testament, Gladys Green; the Books of the New Testament, Glen Marshall; presentation of diplomas.

Eliot Congregational
At the Eliot church the children taking part in the exercises sat on the platform against a background of white and green made of syringa blossoms and foliage. The baptismal procession was a pretty feature, the choir boys leading and followed by a flower girl, little Dorothy Davis, and after her came the little candidates for baptism and their parents. At the close of the exercises potted plants used in the decorations were given to the children.

Kirk Street Church
The decorations for Children's day at the Kirk Street church were very beautiful and the exercises were well attended. The decorations about the pupil platform were very attractive, the potted geraniums intended for distribution later forming a long ribbon of red upon a background of green. There were songs and recitations by the children that were very pleasing.

First Trinitarian Church
Standing room was at a premium at the First Trinitarian Congregational church yesterday, Children's day. The children's choir was stationed in the choir loft and the children in their vestments made a pretty picture. Three hundred geraniums in blossom made a striking decoration for the front seats and rear of the pupil platform.

High St. Congregational
Both morning and afternoon services at High Street church were given up to the children. The morning service was devoted to singing and readings by the Sunday school and a talk by Rev. A. C. Ferrin on "A Message From Bird-World." The program included a song by the Sunday school, "When Morning Glides the Skies." The afternoon service at 6 o'clock was held in the vestry and the pastor gave an interesting talk on birds.

Paige St. Church
Children's day exercises were held yesterday at the morning service at the Paige Street Free Baptist church and were well attended. There was a very pleasing program by the Sunday school. A pretty and impressive feature of the services was the consecration of several infants born during the past year, and their reception into the roll of the Sunday school. The room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants and at the conclusion of the exercises each child was presented a plant.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Father and Girl Were Drowned

MONTREAL, June 12.—Albert Esnough, a builder of St. Lambert, and his adopted daughter, Lena Healy, jumped from Victoria bridge, 60 feet, into the swift current of the St. Lawrence yesterday. Both were drowned. Esnough leaped first, and was followed a moment later by the girl, but whether she jumped in the excitement of the moment or in following out a suicide agreement does not appear. The only witness was the bridge electrician. He saw the two sitting down, evidently in earnest conversation. Suddenly both arose and Esnough, who was 45 years old, climbed the five-foot railing and plunged into the river. The girl followed before the electrician could interfere. Esnough had been in ill health for years.

HAVE ARRIVED IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, June 13.—Louis and Temple, the 10 and 6-year-old sons of John R. Abernathy, marshal of Oklahoma, rode into this city Saturday after a ride of 2500 miles on horseback from their home. The purpose of their long ride was to renew their acquaintance with Colonel Roosevelt, who, next to their father, they believe the greatest man in the world.

That two boys of such extreme youth should dare to make such a trip all alone is a great credit to their bringing up. And how they were brought up is told by Marshal Abernathy in the following words:

"Teach a boy self-reliance from the moment he tumbles out of the cradle, make him keep his traces taut and work well forward in his collar and 98 times out of 100 his independence will assert itself before he is two years old. Then guide him with a firm but tender hand; instill into him the principles of right and wrong, and the rest is easy. If there is no taint in his blood, he will develop into a fine man. That's my rule, and you don't think I've taken the right tack, talk to my boys for five minutes and they'll convince you that they are men in principles even if they are babies in years. God bless 'em."

"You see Temple was less than four when his mother died," Captain Jack said. "I was away from my mother so much of the time looking after my duties as marshal that the boys had to hustle for themselves. Their sister, Kitty Jo, had to mother them, and she took the place at the head of the table, following her mother's death. She's conducted the household affairs of the ranch ever since. The other girls are Goldie, 12; John (she's a girl, too, named for me), 8; Pearl, 3, and Lucille, 2."

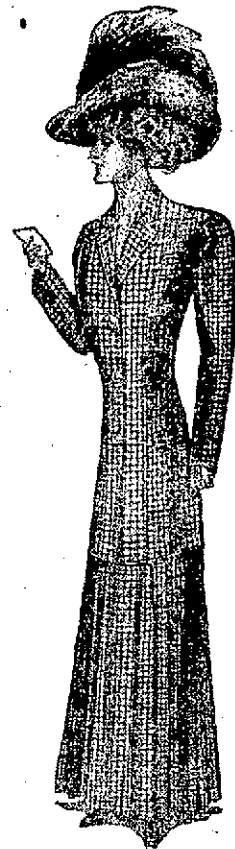

"Of course Louis, as the older of the two boys, became the man of the house. Even his sister Kitty defers to him. I will say that he doesn't exert his authority in an overbearing manner."

SHOWED COURAGE

WOMAN EXTINGUISHED FIRE IN HER HOME

SACO, Me., June 12.—But for the presence of mild and courage of Mrs. Fred N. Thims of lower Beach street, her home would have been burned yesterday. While she was reading in the sitting room her little daughter ran to her, and tugging at her dress said: "You won't lick me, will you, mamma?" "Well, what have you been doing now?" asked Mrs. Thims who suspected the child had broken her doll. "I found some matches in the room upstairs and the bed got afire," sobbed the little girl. Mrs. Thims waited to hear no more, but got a pail of water and ran to the sleeping room upstairs. She found the room filled with smoke and the mattress afire. In spite of the suffocating smoke, she went into the room and soon had the fire under control. She then went to the hallway to get her breath, after which she returned and made short work of the blaze, which in a few minutes more would have spread to the upper part of the house. The mattress was ruined, a bed was burned in the floor, the covering was hurled from a musical instrument and the mopboards were charred. The house is a mile from the fire station, and had not the little girl gone to her mother in time to confess that she had started a fire while playing with matches the house would have been beyond saving by the time the firemen arrived. The little girl, though frightened nearly out of her wits by what she had done, followed her mother upstairs and endeavored to assist her in extinguishing the fire.

YOUTH KILLED

Woman Thought Revolver Was Empty

SALEM, N. J., June 12.—Mrs. Eliza Robinson, 27 years old, was brought to the county jail here last night, charged with killing Walter Harvey, 22 years old, at her home in Pennsylvania, near here, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Robinson is married and lived in a house formerly used as a parsonage adjoining the Pennsylvania Methodist Episcopal church. Harvey, it is said, frequently called upon Mrs. Robinson.

AD'S PELVITONE

This preparation has been carefully compounded by the National Formula Committee of the great American Druggists Syndicate, and is particularly effective for those who are victims of the more common ailments of women. All women thus affected should not hesitate to consult their family physician fully, but when this is impossible this remedy is the next best course, and if taken according to instruction will bring entire relief in a large percentage of cases. It is safe and harmless and can be obtained at any A. D. S. drug store.

The Rev. J. W. Power, pastor of the church, lives next door to the former parsonage, and when he heard revolver shots, he entered the place. He found Harvey lying on the bed with his clothes ignited from the flash of his revolver and quickly extinguished the flames. A physician was summoned and an examination showed that the man had been shot through the brain and the heart.

Mrs. Robinson was taken into custody. She declared that she thought the revolver was empty and that she had no intention of harming Harvey, but only wanted to scare him. The whereabouts of Mrs. Robinson's husband is not known. She came to Salem from Quilston, near here, about a month ago and kept boarders.

TRIED SUICIDE

Worcester Girl Quarreled With Sweetheart

WORCESTER, June 13.—Mrs. Grace O. Rock, aged 17 years, daughter of Mrs. Alva Luzon, 145 Central street, attempted suicide last night by taking a dose of corrosive sublimate, but is expected to recover.

Her act occurred after an altercation with two sweethearts, according to her mother, who was at home when the girl took the poison. Her story is that after returning home, she found one of the girl's lovers in the house and the other gone. Grace complained of a terrible burning in her throat and said she had taken poison. The mother says she did not believe Grace and told her it served her right. Grace, Mrs. Luzon says, went out the back door and when she failed to return half an hour later Mrs. Luzon sent a boarder after her and the girl was found unconscious on the cellar floor. Mr. Rock, the girl's husband, is said to be living in Boston. The couple have not lived together.

WOMAN SUED

BELVA LOCKWOOD ONCE RAN FOR PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON, June 13.—Belva Ann Bennett Lockwood, the only woman in this country to ever run for president, has been sued for $10,000 by James R. Beckwith. The suit is on the grounds of "malicious abuse of criminal process." Belva Lockwood is also the first woman ever to be admitted to practice law before the United States supreme court, as the result of a bill which she caused to be passed before congress in 1879. She was one of the attorneys who secured a judgment against the United States for the Eastern Cherokees in 1906 and this suit for $10,000 grows out of the payment of this money to the descendants of the Indians. She at one time had Brackett arrested on a charge of larceny after trial. Brackett after receiving $1000 from the government in behalf of his family refused to pay the commission claimed by her. She is now in her 80th year.

Me, died in the York hospital Saturday night of burns sustained when her home took fire.

Her son, Fred Norton, is in the hospital in a critical condition. The flames burned the stairs and hallway leading to the chambers before the four occupants of the house were awakened. Norton wrapped his clothing around his mother and, clad in his night clothes, led her through the fire, both being badly burned. He attempted to return to the house to rescue his wife and daughter, but fell exhausted. The wife and daughter jumped to the ground and were slightly injured. The house and contents, including nearly $100 belonging to the daughter, were destroyed, the loss being $1000.

MANUAL TRAINING

The city of Haverhill is to extend the course in manual training with the opening of the schools in the fall. A satisfactory beginning has been made in this course of study which is more educational than manual. The city of Haverhill evidently believes in it and has set out to offer greater opportunities to the pupils. This is in line with the general movement towards technical training. It is a mistake to suppose that the pupil can learn any trade by taking courses in manual training. The courses will, however, enable him to learn any other trade much more easily because in manual training, if properly taught, he learns the principles of all trades.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES NEEDED

In our fight against the white plague we shall never accomplish much until we have a consumptives' hospital to which incipient cases can be promptly sent for treatment. There are hundreds of cases that might be cured in a short time when first diagnosed if we had a hospital to which to send them and in which they could receive the treatment suited to their weakness.

It is not to be assumed that such a hospital would be a bill of expense to the city. Most of the patients would be too glad to pay for treatment. The experience of other cities proves this and shows the great necessity for a properly equipped hospital for consumptives. Physicians in many cases advise a change of climate as a last resort. Had the patients the benefit of a consumptives hospital they would probably have been cured before reaching such an advanced stage. In some cases the change of climate effects a cure; but in others where the disease is too far advanced there is no relief.

THE GUBERNATORIAL SUCCESSION

There seems to be a strong sentiment in this state even among republicans in favor of Mr. Foss as candidate for governor. It is shared in by those republicans who are opposed to the present machine method of succession to the office. There are those who would like to see the custom of having the lieutenant governor regarded as the logical if not the only candidate for governor, once the office has been filled two years in succession by the same man. This method is certainly not calculated to allow the voters absolute freedom of selection. No man should get a claim upon the office by any custom or power that is not expressed in the primaries. Yet for years past it has been a foregone conclusion that the lieutenant governor being the choice of the leaders should be the sole candidate voted for. The fact that a man holds an office for two years is no valid reason why he should be advanced to a higher office for which he may not be as well fitted as many other men equally available. The right of succession may work no harm if the candidate be all right, but otherwise it is a custom that might do immense harm.

THE COST OF LIVING

No less a dignitary than E. H. Gary, chairman of the executive board of the United States steel trust, makes the prediction that the cost of living will go up. One would imagine from his statement that the present cost of living is normal and that an advance is something necessary or desirable. He says:

"We are now in the centre of one of the greatest harvests of prosperity the country has ever witnessed, and the future is bright for a continuance of the good time, but with these good times will surely come an increase in the cost of living. Commodities are going upward; materials are higher and wages are advancing at a fair rate. This means more money for the butcher, baker and others that provide for the home. And it is not only just and proper, but will make for a better general result all over the country."

It is not surprising that an official of the richest corporation in the country should talk in this vein and predict prosperity from a further advance in the cost of living. The present cost of living is pressing hard upon wage earners with large families and even upon men who are earning wages far above the average. Prices have been going up at an enormous rate during the past few years, and according to Mr. Gary the upward movement is not at an end. He is in a position to know as his trust and other trusts are believed to be largely responsible for the high cost of living. His company has no rivals in this country. Practically all the independent concerns have long ago been absorbed or driven out of business. But as to the justice of the prices fixed upon steel rails for example, right here in the American market, we may mention that the United States steel corporation has shipped its rails to European countries and sold them much below the American price. That shows how the American consumer is imposed upon by the steel trust, and what the steel trust does in this respect is done by other trusts in the sale of their products. The beef trust sells beef in London at 25 per cent. less than in New York and has a good profit. Does not that prove that it is robbing the American consumer?

It would thus seem that the prices paid for most commodities in this country are regulated by the arbitrary order of the trusts rather than by the laws of supply and demand. If wages followed the cost of living upward there would be no cause of complaint, but such is not the case and an increase of 25 per cent. in the cost of living to the wage earner is equal to a reduction in wages of the same rate.

It has been said that the cost of living has increased of late in all the countries of the world, but such is not the case. The cost of food in England has decreased in the last ten years if we are to accept reports from United States consuls on the ground. In Paris and Berlin there has been a slight increase in the cost of living in the past few years but nothing like that experienced in this country. There is a cause for the difference. Some investigators assure us that the high cost of living is due mainly to extravagance, improvidence and over indulgence in luxuries. Does that explain why beefsteak and other staple articles of food are thirty per cent. higher than ten years ago?

SEEN AND HEARD

Don't talk all the time about your troubles. Give other folks a little time to talk about theirs.

If a man is thoughtful and polite, a woman finds it hard to believe that he can be entirely dishonest.

The automobile brigade is: "Well, I don't see where all these people who have automobiles ever get the money."

The man who takes a cigar out of his pocket and lights it while he is walking with another man should always say: "I wish I had another one to offer you, old boy," even if he doesn't mean it.

Another bore is the man who thinks it is necessary always to take off his glove before shaking hands with you.

When a girl in the drug store is just going to ask the clerk for a box of complexion powder, "for a friend," and a young man comes in, the thing for her is to speak quick and tell the clerk she wants a two-cent postage stamp.

We all like praise so much that some of us are made happier just by flattery.

Even the romantic girl may be satisfied to marry a coarse, hard-headed business man, who doesn't know a word about the language of flowers, if only he is rich enough.

Some women for six months after they move find excuses for disorder by telling callers: "You see, we haven't got fairly settled yet."

THE ANNUAL QUESTION
Now leafy June is here again,
The elm-tree buds their banquet seek
The collegues give L.L. D's,
And it gets hotter every week.

The blithe vacationist sets out
To find a place four dollars per,
While most of us will stay at home,
And spend the summer as we were.

And now the annual question comes,
To all us men—no doubt to you:
"Must I go buy a new straw hat,
Or can I make the old one do?"

In the neighborhood of his home, Logansport, Ind., Frederick Landis, author of "The Angel of Lonesome Hill," in which Col. Roosevelt makes his debut as a character in fiction, is spoken of as a lawyer, politician, orator and writer. He became known as a writer only this spring when his first book, "The Glory of His Country," was published.

Mr. Landis, who served two terms in congress under the Roosevelt administration, now lives in the old Landis mansion in Logansport, and there does all his writing. In a little attic with sloping walls and only windows at the ends, he sits in a large Morris chair and writes, with his paper on his lapboard which is supported by the arm. He has a great quantity of dark tangled hair, and his most characteristic gesture, when in the act of composing, is to run his fingers through it over and over.

Of this book, his first published work, Mr. Landis has said that if any one person gets half the fun out of reading it that he had out of the writing of it even down to the final revision he will consider himself well repaid. His method is to revise and revise until thoroughly satisfied, and though he writes rapidly, the work of getting his compositions into final shape requires infinite care. "All my life," Mr. Landis says, "I have wanted to write. Four or five times I have been thrown off the track by the smallest circumstance. The first dollar I made was in a country newspaper office. I once wrote a sensational journalistic work in Washington, and that was the happiest year until I got settled down to writing this story. After I was defeated for congress, in 1906, I came home, fixed up this old attic, and began working."

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the features at the Theatre Voyons will be exceptionally good. "The Range Riders" will satisfy anyone who likes pictures with western dash and go to them. The riding and natural scenery shown in this picture excel in interest any that have yet been shown on the screen, and for real thrills has never been beaten. "A Modern Cinderella" is a charming story in which the old fairy tale is cleverly worked into a very modern love story. The actors are up to the roles and the heroine is very dainty and lovable. "The Empty Cradle" is a dramatic picture with just the right amount of pathos and one finely acted. The comedy is a real laugh and the musical features unequalled.

Today, Monday afternoon, is the day of the grand opening of Perin's Hippodrome, Lowell's latest amusement enterprise, and when the doors of Washington park swing open the people of our city will not only be surprised, but also astonished by the many improvements that have been made at the park. All the stands have been repainted and remodeled and the grounds have also been put in condition, and thousands of incandescent lights swung all along the walks and paths, so as to make the park not only as light as a summer's day, but also to make a pleasing effect for the eye.

The performance will start in the afternoon at 2:15, and in the evening at 8:15 sharp. All the boxes for tonight's performance have been reserved for the city officials and invited guests, and from the present outlook the grounds and stand will be filled to capacity.

The various acts engaged for the opening week contain many names that are prominent in the show world, among which are the four Lukens, the greatest casting act in the world; Ma-violo on the slack wire; Robinson and LeFavor in a funny tumbling sketch; DeCraw and his clowns, and as an added attraction the Cycling Brunettes in their famous trick bicycle riding; Woodford's animals, consisting of dogs, cats and monkeys, and also the human monkeys, Comed II, which does everything that man accomplishes with the exception of talking; in addition to these, there will be De-Noto's famous Genoa Military and Concert band, conducted by Prof. De-Noto himself, rendering music ranging from the classic to the latest popular airs, and in the evenings the latest motion pictures will also be shown. All this will be given for the nominal price of ten cents admission.

AMBASSADOR REID IS TO RETIRE FROM THE SERVICE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The days of service of Whitelaw Reid as ambassador to the court of St. James are numbered. This information, learned last night, comes from a source in possession of both the American and British sides of the case.

The informant declares that King George and Mr. Reid, while on cordial terms, are not close to the degree of official intimacy expected between the king and an ambassador.

In support of this it is pointed out that at all court functions given by the late King Edward, Ambassador Reid was seldom in the group that surrounded the queen, the Prince of Wales, King George is against making of the British court a climax to the social ambitions of rich foreigners, and is said to have often remonstrated with his august father for the way presentation a were engineered.

King George is already eliminating all foreigners from his entourage. He is going to retain only those who have married into the British nobility, and this rule will also be followed by the queen.

Mr. Reid has served more than four years. No liking is obtainable as to who his successor may be, but indications point that the post will not go to any one not already connected with diplomatic or political life.

VICE PRESIDENT SAYS THE INSURGENT MOVE- MENT IS ABATING

UTICA, N. Y., June 12.—"I believe that the 'Insurgent' movement, so-called, is abating," said Vice President Sherman, who came to Utica yesterday to attend the wedding of his niece.

"We do not think the change so much in Washington where the 'Insurgents' are still numerous, despite their assertions that they are standing by the president, but from my observations on my recent western trip, I am convinced that the movement is on the wane."

"I have twice before, within a few weeks, been to the middle west and have found that sentiment to be decidedly in favor of a continuance of the protective policy. The outcome in Iowa where the primaries were held Tuesday and where the regulars were successful was strongly indicative to me of continued belief in protection, collected throughout that section of the country."

MAN WAS SHOT The Alleged Assailant Made His Escape

WATERTOWN, June 13.—Domenico Bancoro, 30 years old, unmarried, of 342 North street, Boston, was shot through the left shoulder yesterday by another Italian, who escaped. The two were visiting at 93 Arsenal street, and there were a man and a woman in the room with them. The man who did the shooting was intoxicated. He suddenly burst into rage and drew a revolver and threatened to kill Bancoro. The woman pushed him aside, but he fired a shot which pierced Bancoro's shoulder. A second shot went wild. The woman then threw the enraged Italian out of the house.

BOSTON, June 13.—At a meeting in the Hotel Lenox yesterday afternoon of the state officers, county presidents and delegates of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who will attend the annual convention in Portland, Ore., July 19, it was voted that the Massachusetts delegation would unanimously favor the re-election of Matthew Cummings of Neponset as national president.

The meeting was held after a dinner at which about 60 were present, including representatives of the ladies' auxiliaries. State President John J. Rogers of Worcester presided.

MADE FLIGHT IN RAIN

NEW YORK, June 13.—Such a little thing as a broken key-wire could not keep Charles K. Hamilton on the ground yesterday. Bare-headed, in the pouring rain, with his baggy trousers flapping behind him, he made a flight in the rain.

Hamilton left the ground at 12 minutes past six last evening and for ten minutes and three seconds, circled the lower end of Governor's Island, and hovered over the harbor.

In making his preliminary run over the sandy surface of the lower end of Governor's Island he bumped into a buny stake and smashed a guy wire. Seven times he circled the island, at a height of 200 feet and then came down, with a swoop like a falcon, stopping to his prey. Twice he ventured out over the water, to chase ferreboats.

"TIRED OF LIVING" MAN'S CLOTHING FOUND ON BANKS OF RESERVOIR

BEVERLY, June 13.—While out walking about 8:30 yesterday morning William H. Stanley, residing at 439 Cabot street, discovered a black derby hat, size 6 1/2, and a black coat, size 38, and considerably worn, on the bank of the Salem reservoir. Upon investigation he found a note written on wrapping paper which read as follows: "I am sick and tired of living and have taken this means to find rest. I have no friends who care for me, no money or no work, so what is the use of living. Good-by, C. E. Drummer."

Mr. Stanley notified the police and the reservoir was dragged, but no body was found. The water in the reservoir is used by the city of Salem for drinking purposes.

No person of the name signed to the note is known here.

AT CLARK COLLEGE WORCESTER, June 13.—In caps and gowns the graduating class of Clark college marched to Pilgrim church yesterday and listened to a baccalaureate sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Henry Stiles Bradley of the Medford church.

Dr. Bradley took for his text, "Deliver us from evil." He summarized his sermon in part as follows:

"Cowardice is simply virtue or prudence corrupted by the sense of duty. Prudently is only generosity run to seed. Rashness is courage without its master. Revenge is justice filled with an overwhelming sense of self. Stupidity is frugality carried to the extreme. Pride and vanity are inflamed self-respect. The only way to be delivered from evil is to overcome it with good."

CAMP OF INSTRUCTION

For Officers of the Bay State Militia Closed

YOUTH FRAMINGHAM, June 12.—The military school which was in session on the muster field three days closed last night.

The school was held under most unfavorable conditions, it having rained hard every day with a cold east wind, making overcoats and rubber boots necessary.

The program had to be changed in several instances. The tactical walks scheduled for each morning had to be abandoned Friday and Saturday, but yesterday morning the instructors each took out a squad for three hours into the country in a drizzling rain, which was repeated by several of the officers in the afternoon in a downpour. Other classes repaired to the large mess-houses and worked out problems of advance and rear guard, the issuing of orders, etc.

An interesting feature of the day was the practical talk that Capt. Hanna had with the commanding and field officers in the morning on advance and rear guard duty, and last night it was the opinion of every officer that the camp had been the most instructive ever held in the state, having given the officers an opportunity of learning something entirely new, with every detail explained by regular officers.

It also gave the latter an opportunity of sizing up the men who are holding commissions in this state. Brig. Gen. Embury P. Clark, 1st brigade, who commanded the camp, said before leaving for home that he was much pleased with the way his officers had entered into the spirit of the occasion and performed the duty, and he thanked Maj. Charles H. Barth, 12th

U. S. infantry, who had charge of the instruction, for the thorough manner in which all subjects had been placed before them.

Almost every officer in the M. V. M. has attended some part of the course, the only ones excused being those of the medical and pay departments and the chaplains.

The health of the officers has been excellent, considering the weather. Maj. Frank P. Williams, surgeon of the 8th infantry, acted as post surgeon, Maj. Walter L. Sanborn was adjutant general and Capt. E. F. Tandy post quartermaster, assisted by Capt. John Caldwell of the 5th infantry. Brig. Gen. James G. White, commissary general, was on the field during the whole course, as was Brig. Gen. William B. Emory, quartermaster general, while Brig. Gen. William H. Brigham, adjutant general, spent yesterday on the field and took in some of the studies.

On account of the rain the last evening of the course, inspection under arms, was abandoned.

Before the officers were dismissed Gen. Clark issued the following order: "Commanding officers of regiments and cadet corps will permit a copy of this report to the commanding general of the camp, not later than June 15, 1910, giving the names and rank of officers of their commands present and absent, and the consensus of feeling in their commands regarding the practical benefit resulting from this camp of instruction, and offering such suggestions relative to changes in method of instruction or the character of the same in future camps of this kind as will, in their judgment, result in greater good."

Today's discovery strengthens the theory of many, that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles M. Caughy, the American consul at Milan, who believes that Charlton met the same fate as did his wife, Mrs. Caughy, is actively engaged in furthering the investigation. ## THE SHILOH BOAT THREE STABBED

Ordered to Move From One Man is in a Serious Condition

BOSTON, June 12.—Acting under orders from Capt. Edward Pease, the harbor master, the barkentine Kingdom of the Holy Ghost and U. S. fleet, shifted her position yesterday and went to an anchorage below the castle, off Spectacle Island. Those who saw the craft make sail and up anchor yesterday morning wondered where she was going. A light northeasterly breeze prevailed and when the Kingdom started out with all her sails set it occurred to some of the onlookers that the Kingdom was anchored off Bird Island.

The Kingdom on the anchorage reserved for deep draft vessels. Capt. Perry, the commander of the barkentine, when questioned by Capt. Pease could give him no information regarding the length of her stay in port, and Capt. Pease ordered him to take the Kingdom to anchorage below, where she would not interfere with the regular shipping of the port.

Saturday the Kingdom was boarded by two men who went down from the city, and later a sail boat containing several men left the vessel in the driving rain, making a landing near the South station, where two of the party took a train, presumably for New York.

So much mystery attaches to the Kingdom that she is an object of interest to the passengers of all the passing steamers.

Late yesterday afternoon the Kingdom got under way again and stood across the channel between Castle Island and State ledge buoy. The wind was so light that she was barely moving. It was supposed that Capt. Perry was dissatisfied with his moorings and was trying to find a more suitable anchorage.

DOUBLE MURDER

Believed to Have Been Committed at Como, Italy

COMO, Italy, June 12.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of the fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Porter Charlton, was found today in Lake Como, from the waters of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castel Charlton, was recovered last Friday. ## DOUBLE MURDER

Believed to Have Been Committed at Como, Italy

COMO, Italy, June 12.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of the fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Porter Charlton, was found today in Lake Como, from the waters of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castel Charlton, was recovered last Friday. The torn garment was fished up from the bottom of the lake near the spot where the trunk containing the body of the woman was found.

Today's discovery strengthens the theory of many, that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles M. Caughy, the American consul at Milan, who believes that Charlton met the same fate as did his wife, Mrs. Caughy, is actively engaged in furthering the investigation. Earlier evidence that both of the Americans were killed, presumably for their val-

JACK JOHNSON

HAD A GREAT WORKOUT WITH KAUFMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Jack Johnson's workout yesterday before one of the largest crowds that has yet patronized his Sunday exhibitions proved an impressive performance throughout. An assemblage of experts joined in pronouncing Johnson's showing uncommonly good. The big black seemed to take his work as a frolic. Every minute of Johnson's fast and rough mixing with Kaufman was enjoyed.

Kaufman is giving Johnson the hardest workouts the negro has had since he began training. Johnson is devoting most of his attention to development of skill in shielding his body.

BRAKEMAN CAUGHT BETWEEN ENGINE AND CAR

FITCHBURG, June 12.—Albert Newton, a brakeman on the Boston & Maine, was seriously injured by being caught between a locomotive and a milk car Saturday night.

Newton went between the locomotive and milk car to adjust the coupling, when the locomotive backed down on him, pinning him between the two. His cries attracted the attention of other railroad men, who ran to his assistance. He was taken to the railroad baggage room, where a physician found the lower part of the abdomen injured. He may also be injured internally. Newton was taken to a hospital and was reported to be in a serious condition.

The 53d birthday of Mrs. Abbie C. Ramsdall was very pleasantly celebrated yesterday at her home in Hastings street. # HAMILTON'S GREAT TRIP

NIGHT EDITION

LOST HIS COURSE

Daring Aviator Landed in a Swamp in New Jersey

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, ended his sensational flight today when he landed on the south shore of the Raritan river two miles from Perth Amboy, N. J. No direct reports have been received from Hamilton but it is reported that his engine had broken down and compelled him to alight.

Hamilton left the line of the Pennsylvania railroad at Metuchen and was last seen by the aviator's friends on the special train flying low over Menlo Park. He was sighted shortly after flying down the Raritan river by pedestrians in Perth Amboy, N. J., who reported that the aeroplane was flying close to the ground. Hamilton after sailing a short distance down the Raritan river turned back and landed on a stretch of meadows. This move on the part of the aviator showed that though his motor was working badly he still had the machine under control.

It was learned that Hamilton landed because his motor was working badly. Largely, he thought, because he omitted cleaning the spark plugs during his stop in Philadelphia. A Perth Amboy garage furnished him with new plugs and he immediately began preparations to renew his flight.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The first air line express to Philadelphia by the upper route went through on schedule time to a minute, but on his return trip Hamilton seemed to mistake his direction and turned southeast at Metuchen towards Princeton. The special train that was following him lost sight of him a few minutes later at Menlo park and there was no further news of him until the telegraph wires brought forth the brief news: "Hamilton stuck in the swamps at Perth Amboy."

Fuller advices later established the fact that Hamilton had landed on the south shore of the Raritan river, two miles above Perth Amboy. His descent was deliberate and he was not hurt nor did it appear at first sight that the aeroplane was in any way damaged.

The fact is that Hamilton had made his journey from Governors Island to Philadelphia with but seven cylinders working.

His eighth cylinder went out of commission when he was at a height of 1500 feet above the harbor. Nevertheless, the first leg of the trip was in every way a most remarkable success. Hamilton traveled the 83 miles from Governors Island to the aviation field at North Penn Junction in 1 hour and 50 minutes.

He left Governors Island at 7:30 and alighted at 9:25. At Philadelphia, he stopped two hours and seven minutes for food, gasoline and oil and, rising again at 11:33, hurried ahead of the special train which had become tangled in the railroad yards.

For 25 miles the train chased him at a speed sometimes reaching 75 miles an hour before it caught up with him just after passing Lawrence and finally came abreast of him two miles beyond Princeton Junction, 40 miles out. It was noticed then that his engine was coughing irregularly and when he turned off from the tracks at Metuchen sailing low over the trees

SUPERIOR COURT

Hughes-Williams Land Case Still on Trial

Judge Hardy's desk in superior court was adorned this morning with a huge and fragrant bouquet of mountain laurel, presented by Juror John E. Donovan, of Townsend.

The case of Hughes vs. Williams, an appealed land court case of vital interest to the pastor, deacons and congregation of the Mt. Olive African Baptist church of Cambridge was called. Testimony of the several witnesses has brought out the fact that certain members of the congregation including the clergyman and clerk have been involved in factional differences which have included slander suits and appearances before the grand jury. The case will take all day.

A jury impanelled on Friday to hear the libel suit of Hill vs. Eastern Cold Storage company and Hill vs. Simonds or also, is still waiting and this case will be the next in order.

Judge Hardy heard a few motions during the noon recess today.

BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, June 13.—Replying to an interpellation by Sir Henry James Dalziel in the house of commons today, Sir Edward Grey declared that Sir Eldon Gorst, the British agent and consul general in Egypt, had the complete confidence of the government. Sir Henry thereupon requested the foreign secretary to send a copy of his reply to Mr. Roosevelt. Sir Edward answered that he could give no reason for doing anything of the kind. The exchanges between the foreign secretary and the liberal member for Kirkcaldy came as a sequel to Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Guildhall, in the course of which he criticised the British administration in Egypt as being rather more lenient toward the nationalists than was justified by the conditions there.

Since the delivery of the speech it has been considered inevitable that the conservatives would take advantage of the opportunity to attack the government's policy in its African dependency.

BEATING WESTON'S RECORD

RENO, Nev., June 13.—Jack Eldridge, after a 12 hour rest, leaves today on the last leg of a walk from Boston to San Francisco. He started March 15 to beat Edward Payson Weston's record of 165 days. Eldridge, who is 24 years old, is now 19 days ahead of the septuagenarian's record. He expects to reach the coast June 18, 77 days from Boston.

Last Wednesday he beat Weston's best day's record of 72 miles by three miles. He made 115 miles in 24 hours while crossing the desert.

BURNED TO DEATH

Men and Women Perished in Fire in Montreal

MONTREAL, June 13.—The Herald building was destroyed by fire today. It is reported fifteen or twenty persons are dead in the ruins. Loss on building, $200,000.

Bindery girls and linotype men fell through the huge gap in the floors of the building and were quickly buried under machinery and timbers. The crowds assembled outside the burning building could plainly hear the shouts of the dying inside while the flames were slowly travelling towards them, but practically nothing could be done to save them. All the members of the editorial department escaped uninjured, the dead and dying being confined to the employees of the bindery.

The flames were first confined to the upper floors of the building, but although all the available fire apparatus turned out it was impossible to control the fire which was fanned by a strong wind.

Inspector McMahon of the police force called upon those around him to organize a rescue party, but a tremendous wall of flame suddenly rising from the basement made it impossible to enter the building.

Promoters Take Ten Year Lease of Property

At Annual Rental of $11,000 From Sept. 1—Lessees Will Furnish and Equip the Building to Open in September

C. Edwin Jennings and William D. Bradstreet, the amusement promoters of Boston who have taken the new theatre in process of construction in Page street on the White property, evidently intend business for they have taken a 10-year lease of the new theatre from Mr. White, the owner, at a yearly rental of $11,000. They have the option upon giving one year's notice of a renewal for five years at a rental of $13,500 per year for the additional five years.

The lessees are to completely furnish and appoint the building upon its completion for the purposes of a theatre, this to include a box or booth for motion pictures, such furnishings to become the property of the lessor and they are to make the inside repairs.

The building is to be finished on Sept. 1 or as near that date as possible and the lease is to date from Sept. 1, 1910 to Sept. 1, 1920.

The lease has just been recorded at the office of the register of deeds.

RING SPINNERS

In Three Mills Are on Strike

About 300 ring spinners, men and boys, are out on strike from the Massachusetts, Prescott and Merrimack mills. Most of the strikers are Greeks and one of their representatives said to a reporter for The Sun this afternoon that the men and boys struck because they could not live on the wages they received.

"The Greek men and boys will not make any trouble at the mills," he said. "They will not go near the mills and if the mill people can succeed in filling their places well and good. The average wage that they received was less than $6 a week and they could not live on that. There was a time when they could drag along on such small wages but the cost of living is too high now."

"A great many of my countrymen have left Lowell within the last few weeks and a great many more are preparing to leave. They cannot afford to work here any longer for the wages that are being paid in the mills. They can do better in the west and south, railroading and farming."

"I understand that the demand for a ten per cent. increase was granted at the Hamilton mills and the strikers have gone back to work. Another of the mills offered five per cent. but that was not enough. These poor fellows have been living from hand to mouth and they are completely discouraged."

CREWS OUT FOR PRACTICE

FOUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 13.—All the crews of Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin were on the water together for the first time today. It was the first practice here of Cornell and Wisconsin.

COL. ROOSEVELT

TO BE INVITED TO SEE HAMILTON FLY

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., June 13.—C. K. Hamilton will fly in New Britain on Saturday, July 2, for the benefit of local charities. There will be a race with an auto and a side fight to Marden and New Haven.

Hamilton will extend a personal invitation to Col. Roosevelt on his arrival in New York to come to New Britain on that day.

REQUEEN MASSER

Regular masses for the repose of the soul of the late Margaret T. Kelley will be sung at St. Peter's church and the Immaculate Conception church next Friday morning.

THE BEAM HOUSE

Objectors to Location May Not be Heard for Several Weeks

The chances are that weeks will elapse before the petitioners who oppose the erection of a beam house in Perry street by the American Hosiery & Leather company will be given a hearing.

There are four petitions before the board of health and they carry a considerable number of signatures. The board has already looked over the plans and the premises for the proposed new beam houses in Perry street and the board members, lay of them at least, still go to Milwaukee and perhaps Cincinnati to view modern plants in those cities.

The board members have already been told, however, that they would not find the plants in Milwaukee and Cincinnati odorless, because they are wooden structures, and the company claims that wood retains the odor. The plant the company would build here would be of concrete and steel and as the company hasn't any plant of that kind at the present time the building of one here would be more or less of an experiment. The company and the company's engineer, however, are positive that it would be absolutely odorless.

6 O'CLOCK GRADE CROSSINGS

Work of Removing Them Will Start Tomorrow

The real work of abolishing the grade crossings in Lowell will start tomorrow. A lot of preliminary work has already been done and today the contractors are on the ground.

Contractor Stone of New London, Conn., has been informed by City Engineer Bowers that he was to start the job and that work on the Plain street job will be underway tomorrow. Mr. Stone said he was under obligations to rush the work and that he would push it through with all possible haste.

Mr. Bowers, after hearing from Mr.

Stone, proceeded to arrange for the closing of Plain street to public travel. This street will be closed for at least two months, or until such time as the overhead bridge is built. Lincoln street, in the meantime, will remain open to travel and when the work in Plain street has been finished, Lincoln street will be closed, but not for so long a time as Plain street. Contractor Stone says that he will put on a big gang of men and he says he won't allow the grass to grow under their feet. "I am under obligations to rush the work," he said, "and I will rush it."

BRIEFS WERE FILED

In the Famous Ballinger-Pinchot Case Today

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Briefs were filed by the attorneys for the prosecution and defense with the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today. The committee did not meet today but will assemble next Saturday to prepare for its deliberations.

Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for former Special Agent Glavin and George W. Pepper, counsel for former Forester Pinchot, contend in their briefs that the evidence adduced during the investigation has shown that Secretary Ballinger is unfit to administer the affairs of the public domain because of an obvious leaning toward a policy of distribution instead of conservation of the people's land. They condemn his attitude toward the champions of conservation and charge him with causing embarrassment to the president and loss to the people.

H. E. NOYES DEAD

Injuries in Auto Accident Proved Fatal

Horace E. Noyes, head of the firm of H. E. Noyes & Son and one of Lowell's best known business men, died last night at his home, 21 Nichols street, from internal injuries received in an automobile accident, June 8th, at the junction of Cottage road and Princeton boulevard, while he was hurrying to his son's residence in Tyngsboro to take Mrs. Noyes to the bedside of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry K. Noyes, in Brookline, who passed away on that same night. It was owing to this circumstance and at the request of relatives that The Sun did not state the real nature of his injuries at the time.

Mr. Noyes was with a chauffeur named Cornelius Shea, from Boston, when in a big Buick car when it struck the car driven by Dr. Varney of North Chelmsford, then hit the curb, throwing both out. Mr. Noyes landed on the turf while the chauffeur landed head foremost on the sidewalk. Both were rendered unconscious and Shea was taken to the Lowell General hospital, where he is resting comfortably today with hope for his recovery. Mr. Noyes was removed to his home, where an examination disclosed internal injuries. His advanced years and the serious nature of his injuries were too much for his vitality and after a heroic struggle he passed away last evening.

Mr. Noyes was born in 1845, in East Haverhill, N. H. He had lived in Lowell for 25 years and was very well known here. His son, Harry K. Noyes, who is one of the partners in the big produce establishment established by his father, survives him.

The double bereavement coming within a few days is a severe blow to Harry K. Noyes and has excited the deep sympathy and condolence of his wide circle of friends.

LARCENY CHARGE

WOMAN WAS ARRESTED IN THIS CITY

Mrs. Rose (Morin) Casey, aged 19, was arrested Saturday night in this city and held for Dover authorities on a charge of larceny.

GRAFTLESS TOWN

PLAN TO BUILD ONE IN KENTUCKY

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 13.—A graftless town is being built on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river, directly opposite here. The town will have no officials, hence, it is agreed, there will be no graft.

J. A. Brown of New York is the builder and his backers are Mrs. Kate Hawley, a philanthropist of New York, and James Crawford, a capitalist of Terre Haute, Ind. The town has been laid out and work has started on a large factory building and the electric plant.

The new town will be run on socialist lines, although Brown states he is not a socialist. He says Messrs. Hawley and Crawford want him to build the ideal city of the world. The people will rule themselves.

There will be a public meeting once a week in the coliseum in the town, where all trials will take place. People accused of any crime will be brought before the people as a tribunal and they will vote on the guilt or innocence of the accused. All home owners will have an interest in the public utilities of the town, and share in the profits.

Under the regulations in the new town, if a clerk in the community store "sasses" a customer, he can be brought before the town meeting and have his job taken away from him. Brown says he purposes to have a town where every resident will obey the Golden Rule.

WOMAN ARRESTED

FEARED SHE WOULD LOSE HER JOB

NEW YORK, June 13.—Ashamed of herself and pleading with Magistrate Brown to be released that her friends would not hear of her disgrace, Mrs. Mary Conner, No. 449 Manhattan avenue, the pretty and handsomely clothed woman arrested in a taxi cab on Saturday night, was arraigned in the Harlem police court charged with intoxication yesterday.

STORY OF FLIGHT

HAMILTON'S START A MOST DARING ONE

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—With a dull, leaden sky overhead, Charles K. Hamilton, the young aviator who has achieved world wide fame in less than a year, today made the most daring flight of his career, traveling in his airplane from Governors Island, New York, to a point on the outskirts of Philadelphia, a distance of 86 miles, in 113 minutes, unofficial time.

A feature of the wonderful achievement of the modest young aviator was the ease with which he picked up and followed a train on the Pennsylvania railroad traveling at express-train speed. According to his program he flew from Governors Island to South Elizabeth, N. J., where the train was awaiting his appearance. From that point, down after town along the line reported the amazing feat, the train had passed "with Hamilton flying directly over it." Occasionally, with the probable desire to give variety to his journey, he diverged a little. At Princeton, for instance, he went up near the old college town and ascended slightly as that famous student and alumni gathered there for commencement could see him.

At the aviation field, four miles northeast from the center of the city, as the crow flies, a tremendous crowd awaited the arrival of the daring aviator. An airplane ideal landing cushion composed of tall grass growing out of soft ground had been selected. The field lies to the north of the Pennsylvania tracks near North Penn. Junction and it was surrounded by five hundred policemen to keep back the crowds. All the mills in the neighborhood were closed down and that section of Philadelphia took a holiday.

The crowd gathered at 6 a. m. and patiently waited for news of Hamilton's start. Finally the signal flags, erected on a tall pole, told of Hamilton's leaving Governors Island and other signals arranged by the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger under whose auspices Hamilton made the trip, kept the crowd informed of the aviator's progress.

It was a misty morning and the range of vision did not extend very far. A report came that Hamilton had crossed into Pennsylvania and it did not seem long before he was seen to come from the eastern edge of the crowd that Hamilton was in sight. Sure enough, there he was, high in the air, directly over the special train. A moment later he was in plain view of all and then a tremendous roar of applause burst up flying steadily toward him.

He landed easily but before he could get out of his machine three lines and rushed at Hamilton. The aviator was, however, quickly surrounded by a cordon of police.

The first thing he asked for when he stepped out was a cigarette. He was as cool as if he had just alighted from an automobile ride.

Glenn Curtiss was on the field to welcome Hamilton. To the governor he said that it was the best trip he had ever made.

"I had the machine in perfect control all the way and could have stayed up indefinitely if I had desired. I circled the field three times to show the crowd that I was able to keep up long."

"The only drawback to the journey was the dampness and the chill. Most of the trip was misty and at times I could not see the train and seldom saw the people at the stations."

For a moment Hamilton could pay no attention to his biplane, so enthusiastic was his reception. The police had all they could do to keep the crowd from crushing his machine. Finally he was able to turn his attention to it and then he announced after an inspection that he would attempt to return to New York within an hour.

After taking his biplane apart upon his arrival here, the aviator was brought into the city for luncheon at a hotel.

FOR FLAG DAY

Proclamation for Observance of Day Issued by Mayor

Tomorrow, June 14, will be Flag day, and appropriate exercises will be held in the schools throughout the city and the children will be taught the glorious meaning of the flag. The following proclamation relative to the observance of the day was issued by Mayor Meehan this forenoon:

To the people of Lowell: I earnestly

On the fourteenth day of June, 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field, representing a new constellation. The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new states, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon our fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of congress on April 4, 1818, when it enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars, in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and such addition to take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding admission." Since 1818, 26 stars or states have been added to the Union, making forty-six in all.

The flag has become more and more the symbol of a mighty nation. Carried to the utmost parts of the earth, it has been thrown to the breeze proclaiming liberty and Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism, in far distant lands, of ours and other flags displayed together.

I earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making flag day what it should be—an eventful day. Let us, from one end of our city to the other, ring the stars and stripes to the breeze on June 14, 1910. May it greet the rising and set the setting sun, and float all day long from every church edifice, school and building, public and private, however humble, throughout the city.

John F. Meehan, Mayor.

MAYOR JOHN F. MEEHAN.

Invite all the people of Lowell to join in the public recognition of the birthday of the emblem of our nation. In many of our states, pursuant to law.

DAVID RANKEN, JR.

Gave Away $3,000,000 That He Might be Poor

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—To die poor, David Ranken, Jr., has not only given up his fortune of more than $3,000,000 to the support of his favorite school, but the $3,000 per annum he has reserved for his own support during the rest of his life will revert to the institution at his death.

The David Ranken Junior School of Mechanical Trades, the beneficiary of his founder, is to be made one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Few people, even in St. Louis, know Ranken personally, for he avoids publicity. He is a bachelor, seventy-five years old, and a native of Ireland. He amassed his fortune in real estate and stock deals.

The property devoted to the school consists of the land now known as the Ranken Tract. Mr. Ranken's home, stock in the Illinois Central and Rock Island railroads, and of the Mississippi Valley Trust company, Mercantile Trust company, Boatmen's bank and Merchants' Laclede National bank.

A reporter visited Mr. Ranken at his office and asked for a statement. Mr. Ranken studied the ceiling for a moment and said: "I desire very much to see my name in the newspapers. I decline to say anything."

Mr. Ranken has never been seen on a business matter at his home. Like his office, his home is unpretentious.

He occupies three small rooms over a grocery store. When he enters the door and climbs to his rooms he shuts out the world.

There he has lived for years and planned his fortune and worked out the scheme and ambition of his life—the founding of the Ranken Trades School for poor boys—where boys over fifteen years old receive an education for a nominal fee. Mr. Ranken visits his school every day and watches the boys at work.

The founder of the Ranken Trades School is extremely plain in habits and dress. One would never imagine he was entering the quarters of a millionaire on stepping into Mr. Ranken's office. He maintains no suite of carpeted rooms for the visitor to admire. He has only a single room, and the smallest one on the floor. The most modest lawyer in St. Louis would not think of establishing himself in such meagre quarters.

If Mr. Ranken ever employed an assistant, he was a stenographer. One knew it. He has not even a telephone. If any one wants to talk business to David Ranken, Jr., he must go to his office and talk face to face. And he must make it brief. A brief study and the answer comes emphatically.

The Ranken Trades School was established by Mr. Ranken about a year ago with an endowment of about $500,000.

The students gathered late in the forenoon in St. Louis hall where the class day address was delivered by Warren Clifford Johnson of Boston, president of the senior class. The oration was given by Winfield Wardwell Green of South Weymouth, Mass., and Walter Brooks Henderson of Jamaica, West Indies, recited the poem.

MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
SOUTH HADLEY, June 13.—Both Grove and Ivy day exercises in connection with commencement at Mount Holyoke college were held here today. Several hundred of the alumnae and guests of the graduating class witnessed the ceremonies. The oration was delivered by Miss Esther Richards of South Sherborn, Mass.

POLICE OFFICER

Was Killed by a Patrol Box

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dennis J. Sullivan, a Jersey City policeman, was electrocuted yesterday as a result of the storm that blew down and tangled telegraph, telephone and electric light wires. Sullivan was three-quarters of a mile from the tangle.

At Passaic and Kelso streets two telephone wires were blown down. They twisted around telegraph and electric light wires. At Eighteenth and Grove streets, as a result of this, a telegraph pole was set afire. Sullivan was on the pole. He turned in an alarm, and then, at the suggestion of bystanders, decided to telephone to the police station in Seventh street, to have the Electric Light and Power company in shut off the power, that lives of the firemen might not be endangered.

Across the street from the fire was a police patrol box. Sullivan put his key into the lock and was knocked twenty feet in the air by the current of his body. The man was unconscious, and where the current entered his hand was badly burned. An ambulance was called. The policeman died a half hour later in St. Francis hospital.

The short circuit extended to all the patrol boxes in the district, rendering them deadly. In the police station when the central wires began to sputter, the switch was thrown, shutting off the current, and the network of wires was saved.

Abel Brown, the superintendent of police telegraph, went out to the place of the trouble. When he reached the tangled wires he endeavored to cut them with a pair of axes. The voltage was so strong that he was thrown down. His rubber gloves were burned through and his hands were scorched.

The power was finally shut off and the necessary repairs made and the fire extinguished. Sullivan leaves a widow and two children.

BROWN CLASS DAY EXERCISES
PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 13.—Bright sunny skies and a balmy summer breeze greeted the Brown university students when they assembled today for the annual class day exercises. The forenoon events were indoors, giving the rain-soaked campus grass an opportunity to dry and prepare itself for the time-honored student performances of this afternoon.

LATEST CRIPPLE CURED

Miracle Performed at Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre

BOSTON, June 12.—Having been enabled to discard crutches, which she had used years, as the result of a visit to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Que., Miss Frances B. Little, daughter of John Little of 114 Draper street, Dorchester, yesterday afternoon and evening received congratulations of a host of friends.

Miss Little, who is 24 years old, was afflicted with infantile paralysis. At the age of 18 she became so crippled that she had to use crutches, her left foot becoming entirely useless. In recent years she was able to take only a few steps with the aid of crutches.

The best medical skill was brought to her aid, but no hope was held out that she would ultimately recover. A surgeon advised amputation of one foot in the hope that progress of the disease might be arrested.

But Miss Little had faith in prayer. Having concluded that all that medical skill could do had been done, she decided to visit the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. In the meantime prayers of clergy, her family and friends were continuously offered, as were also masses by Miss Little's spiritual adviser, Rev. Fr. Edward Kenney of St. Peter's church, Dorchester. Others received holy communion to the end that Miss Little's health might be bettered.

Corpus Christi, Sunday, May 29, was devoted in part by the Catholic church to a parade in honor of the feast of Corpus Christi. On that day there was a large outpouring of people of the Meetinghouse hill district connected with St. Peter's church of which Rev. Peter Roman is rector.

Miss Little was greatly affected because she was unable to attend school that day. She then determined to visit the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. With her older sister, Miss Marie Little, she left Dorchester on June 5, arriving in Quebec the following day.

She presented herself at the shrine, accompanied by her sister, as a supplicant for restoration of health. Three days later while in prayer in the chapel Miss Little, who had remained seated, being unable to kneel, said to her sister: "I can move my foot. Let us go to the shrine and pray."

She went to the shrine and knelt in prayer. On arising she found that she had no further use for her crutches and left them where they had fallen. Miss Little left St. Anne's Friday to return to Boston. She arrived home late Saturday evening and found her household most thankful over her recovery.

Miss Little was born in the North End of Boston. She was educated at St. John's parochial school, under the tutelage of the sisters of Notre Dame.

McGARRY ARRESTED

In Connection With the Murder of John Fielding

MOOSUP, Conn., June 12.—On suspicion of knowing something about the holdup and attack on the highway here last night, in which John Fielding of New Bedford, Mass., was killed and Samuel Stansfield of England severely injured, Frank McGarry of Moosup, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bliven today. George Berger, also of Moosup, was arrested last night also in connection with the affair and it is expected will be arraigned with McGarry some time today.

Fielding, Stansfield and a third man named Whitaker came here from East Killingly last night by trolley and were attacked upon their arrival. Fielding was struck a severe blow behind the ear and died soon afterwards. Stansfield was considerably battered, but it is stated today he is recovering and will recover. Whitaker disappeared during the attack and has not been found.

Coverer Adams has begun an inquest.

Captain and Nine Men Left Pawtucket on Fishing Trip

PAWTUCKET, June 12.—Considerable alarm was felt in this town today over the disappearance of Captain Frank Holgate and nine men who went on a fishing trip Saturday night, and had not been heard from up to this afternoon. The men left this town about 10 o'clock Saturday night in the 30 foot launch Clara Alma owned by Holgate, expecting to return Sunday morning. When they did not put in an appearance at noon yesterday the friends of Holgate and his wife became worried and sent out searching parties. The Pawtucket Motorboat club also inaugurated a search, continuing it throughout last night and today but up to noon today absolutely no clue to the missing men was obtained.

The usual destination of fishing parties from here is Prudence Island, but no sign of the Clara Alma or its occupants was found there by the searchers. There is always a heavy sea running in the vicinity of the island and Saturday a stiff northeast wind was blowing, making the water more turbulent. It was not known here today why the nine men were.

THE CREW LOST FORMER INMATES

Coal Barge Majestic Went Down

NEW LONDON, June 12.—The loss of the coal barge Majestic with its crew of three in tow of the tug Harold has been reported to the Thames Towboat Co. The barge was lost off Barnegat on Saturday. The Harold left Norfolk, Va., with barges Majestic and Volunteer in tow for Sound ports. The Majestic sprung a leak and sank. The tug put into New York for instructions. Captain John Davis of the barge belonged here.

Say They Were Badly Whipped

BOSTON, June 12.—The legislative investigation of the charges of cruelty at the Lyman school for boys at Western today brought out the evidence of several former inmates, who claimed that they had been severely punished or had seen other boys badly whipped. Before the hearing began Chairman Ham read a provision in the statute which provides that corporal punishment shall be permitted at the school under certain restrictions.

The investigation originated in the charge that John Newman, a Cambridge boy, died as the result of cruel treatment, although the school officials claimed that he committed suicide.

BILL IN EQUITY
CHICAGO, June 12.—The bill in equity against the Union Stock Yards and Transit Co., et al., charging restraint of trade, was filed here today by United States District Attorney Sims.

WILL GO TO JAIL Rather Than Pay a Fine of $5

BOSTON, June 12.—Expressing regret that their sentence was a fine of $5 instead of imprisonment, Mrs. Glendower Evans, a wealthy society woman, and Miss Mabel Gillespie, a trade unionist, appealed today from a lower court conviction of distributing handbills at a strike without a license.

Mrs. Evans said after the court proceedings that she would go to jail rather than pay the fine.

INVESTIGATION Of Purchase of Friar Lands

WASHINGTON, June 12.—As a result of information sent to the house last Saturday by the war department disclosing the alleged fact that Frank W. Carpenter, executive secretary of the Philippine government, and E. L. Worcester had bought and leased "Friar lands" in the Philippines, Rep. Marlin, democrat (Colo.) today introduced a resolution demanding an investigation and charging malfeasance in office.

AT ST. PETER'S HOLY NAME SOCIETY HOLDS RELIGIOUS MEETING

The regular monthly religious meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name society was held in St. Paul's chapel last evening and, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, there was a large attendance. Rev. John E. Burns, spiritual director, officiated, and the Holy Name choir, under the direction of James E. Donnelly, assisted, with John J. Kelly presiding at the organ. Rev. Fr. Burns, after the recitation of the rosary, spoke briefly relative to the forthcoming communion day of the society in July, and hoped for a big attendance. He announced that there would be a business meeting of the society at the Fair hall on Thursday evening. The reverend gentleman then gave a very interesting instruction on "Faith," after which benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given. The service closed with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

URNS PURPLE MAN'S CONDITION IS PUZZLING THE DOCTORS

NEW YORK, June 12.—A singular case of discoloration of the human body was brought to the Flower hospital last night, when Joseph Pick, aged 22, was rushed there by an ambulance surgeon who thought the man was dying as the result of gas poisoning.

Pick was on Second avenue when he collapsed. Bystanders summoned Policeman Schultz of the East Fifty-first street station house, who took him to the unconscious man and ejaculated: "Gas poisoning, but how did he get out on the street with it?"

Pick's face was a purplish blue—the same color as is apparent in extreme cases of gas asphyxiation. When Dr. Newcomb jumped off the back seat of the Flower hospital ambulance he too exclaimed: "Gas poisoning!"

At the hospital the man was stripped and it was found his whole body was the same tinged as his face, but otherwise he had no symptoms of asphyxiation. After about an hour Pick recovered consciousness long enough to give his name and address.

His mother, Mrs. Paula Pick, said that Joseph was employed in a chemical factory in Long Island City, and that he had been slowly acquiring the queer bluish tinge. With the passing of time, he having been working in the chemical factory about a year, the bluish tinge had become more and more perceptible and covered a larger area of his body. Within the last two or three days it had crept up on his face.

IVY DAY AT SMITH'S

NORTHLAMPTON, June 12.—After three days in obscurity, the sun came out today in time to brighten the annual ivy day exercises at Smith college. The ivy day celebration this year was unusually notable, chiefly because more than 5000 alumni had come back here, and also because it was the last ivy day celebration under the administration of President L. Clarke Seyler, who retires this month after having presided over the destinies of Smith college for 35 years.

The alumni procession proceeded to the ivy procession. The alumni marched around the campus and opened ranks on the back campus to allow the ivy procession to pass through, as the seniors, escorted by the juniors, made their way to the new library building, where the class ivy was planted. Each of the seniors was given in white, wore a picture hat and carried a cane. The juniors wore gowns of various colors and carried a chain of laurel.

After the ivy had been planted with the customary exercises the seniors proceeded to Assembly hall, where the indoor exercises were held. ## SALUTE TO GOVERNOR

MARLBOROUGH, June 12.—The principal day of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of Marlborough was observed in this morning with a salute of 21 guns and the ringing of church bells. A little later in the day the city was again shaken by the re-verboration of the cannon but this time the salute was only 17 guns in honor of Governor Eben S. Frazier who with Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, Adjutant General Brigham of the state militia and three members of the governor's staff was among the principal guests of the day. President Taft had been invited but sent regrets. The presidential family was represented, however, by Miss Helen Torrey of Milbury, the president's aunt.

COLLECTING EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The government is engaged in collecting evidence intended, it is understood, to form the basis of a suit against the Great Lakes Towing Co. under the Sherman anti-trust law, the grounds being that it is a combination in restraint of trade.

SHERIFF SHOT DEAD

The Assailant Made His Escape to the Woods

EMMETT F. HASKINS,
The Dead Deputy Sheriff.

Officer Was Killed While At- tempting to Make an Arrest —Searching Party Has Orders to Shoot to Kill at First Sight of Murderer

MONROE BRIDGE, June 12.—Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins of Charlemont was shot dead early yesterday in the home of Silas Phelps, after he had forced his way into the house to arrest Phelps for an attack Saturday night on a mill superintendent. All day and throughout the night an armed posse of several hundred officials and citizens of both Massachusetts and Vermont has been hunting both sides of the boundary line between the two states for the alleged murderer, who made his escape through a rear door into the woods.

The search was directed principally at Monroe mountain, a foothill of the Hoosac range, the heavily-wooded slopes of which might afford refuge to the fugitive. A heavy rain fell during the day and night, obliterating any scent, but those in charge of the search ordered from Springfield the two bloodhounds recently added to the police department.

Phelps escaped at 10.15 a.m. yesterday, from his home, about a mile outside this village, where he had barricaded himself with his wife and six children against the police, who ordered him to surrender following the slaying of Sheriff Haskins.

Fugitive Well Armed

Despite the vigilance of these officers and the watchfulness of a crowd which had gathered, Phelps made his escape, armed with the double-barreled shotgun alleged to have been used in the death of Sheriff Haskins. Phelps bought 100 rounds of ammunition Saturday, it was learned.

Phelps, who is 42 years old, has had a bad reputation in this and nearby towns. He is only a short time out of Greenfield jail, where he served a year for shooting at an employer. He has been in the police court on other occasions charged with shooting a brother and with horsewhipping his wife, whom it is alleged he had strangled to the waist. It was his wife who, at 4 a.m. yesterday morning, when Sheriff Haskins ordered the doors of Phelps' home to be opened to him, told him that her husband would shoot if the sheriff entered.

Saturday night, Phelps, who is said to have been drinking, had an altercation with Supt. Penman of the Ramo Paper Works, where Phelps was employed as a laborer. Phelps was charged by the superintendent with neglecting his work and thereupon, it is alleged, drew a long bladed jack-knife.

Wounded in Scuffle

In the scuffle which followed the superintendent received a nasty cut from under the left shoulder down over the heart nearly to the abdomen.

Phelps then escaped to his home. The mill authorities when they learned of the affair sent for Sheriff Haskins at Charlemont to come to Monroe Bridge and arrest Phelps.

After driving nearly a dozen miles over the country roads, Sheriff Haskins reached Phelps' cottage at 4 a.m. He was accompanied by Lewis Sears, a hotelkeeper of Charlemont. They knocked at the Phelps' door and for a while received no answer. Clamoring for admittance, they were told by Mrs. Phelps from a window that her husband would shoot any person who entered.

The sheriff then broke down the door and, advancing across the room to the stairs at the head of which he heard Phelps' voice commanded him to surrender himself. He started to mount the stairs when it is alleged Phelps fired one shot from the gun which he held in his hand. Haskins' body falling to the floor.

Unable to Remove Body

Sears, who also had entered the house, was then ordered out. He asked permission to take his friend's body. Phelps at first refused, but when his wife interposed he allowed Sears three minutes to remove the body.

Small of stature and not strong enough to carry the heavy sheriff, Sears was forced to slowly drag the body across the door. He had reached the piazza when Phelps declared the time was up and, pointing the gun at Sears, ordered him to go. His order was obeyed.

When Sears reached town with the story of Sheriff Haskins' death, the authorities sent a hurry call to surrounding towns for help, and a posse was soon formed which was posted around the Phelps home. There was no noticeable movement by those inside until about 10.15 a.m., when Phelps was discerned scurrying through the woods back of his home. He had apparently escaped through a rear door.

Then the man hunt began. Phelps headed for Monroe mountain, on his way cutting all telephone and telegraph wires to points east of Monroe to facilitate his escape. After the searchers came across the cut wires no further trace of the fugitive was found. The hunt went on, however, all the day, those prosecuting it training through the bush under a heavy rain, and it was a bedraggled lot of men that continued the search at nightfall.

STILL AT LARGE
MONROE BRIDGE, June 12.—Silas Phelps, who fled to the woods from his home here yesterday after Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins had been killed in an attempt to arrest him, was still in hiding today, the armed posse having no trace of the fugitive through the night. Reinforced by officers of the state police, the posse started out early today and divided at the base of Monroe mountain, where State Officer Thomas McKay of Northampton went into the woods on the eastern side of the mountain while State Detective Bly of North Adams led another small posse into the thickets on the western side. Other men were also in the woods and had orders to shoot to kill at the first sight of Phelps. No bloodhounds were used on the trail, the owner of the dogs in Springfield stating that they were too young to pick a scent in the woods after such a heavy rain.

Phelps left his wife and six children practically destitute. The authorities are making every effort to locate him, and efforts will be made to further provide for the family. Two of the youngest children are sick in bed. Mrs. Phelps stated that she did not know or did not care where her husband was. She said it was a relief to have him away.

WIFE CLAIM POSTPONED
WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 12.—The annual hill climb races of automobiles up the Giant's Despair mountain course which were postponed from Saturday until today were again put off until tomorrow owing to the muddy and dangerous condition of the course.

JUMPED FROM TRAIN
KIEV, Russia, June 12.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev is attended with many pathetic incidents. Today a girl of Jewish birth who had been ordered expelled, distressed by her loss of residence, jumped from the window of an express train upon which she was being taken to Odessa. She was picked up unconscious.

ROOSEVELT WELCOME

20,000 Men Will be in the Fifth Avenue Line

NEW YORK, June 12.—Secretary Cosby of the Roosevelt reception committee estimates that between 15,000 and 20,000 persons, comprising home and visiting organizations, will be in line along Fifth avenue Saturday afternoon at the time of the parade in honor of Theodore Roosevelt's return.

R. A. C. Smith, chairman of the harbor display committee, places the estimate of boats at something more than 100. Many of these are private yachts which are not listed by the committee.

Many of the organizations will be in uniform or wear some insignia, and nearly all will have bands. To each organization comprising more than 100 persons a block has been assigned on Fifth avenue, between 34th and 59th streets. Many will carry Roosevelt flags and others, society flags and national emblems. They will not march, but will stand in their places as Col. Roosevelt, the Rough Riders and other Spanish war veterans go past.

The Hamilton club of Chicago, under the leadership of John H. Batten, will send 100 members, who will go down the bay on the steamship Commodore and later have a stand in Fifth avenue. The Pittsburgh business men's association will send 500, marshaled by Col. A. P. Moore. Omaha will send a delegation, and Philadelphia, Cincinnati and other cities will add to the numbers.

The Army and Navy union has asked a place for between 200 and 300;

the Spanish war veterans, who are to march, will turn out about 2000, and the Roosevelt Neighbors association of Oyster Bay, together with a delegation from the Nassau county board of supervisors, will have 600 men.

Representatives of governors will be given positions on the stand at the Battery, as will the governors who are present.

They will also go down the bay on one of the cutters to greet the ex-president, and be the guests of the committee during the parade. Secretary Wilson and Secretary Meyer of the cabinet have been assigned places on the stand, and will also go down the bay and ride with the committee.

Among the gubernatorial representatives will be F. E. Goodall of Spokane, Wash., who will represent Gov. Hay, Gov. J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey, and Gov. Henry O. Quinby of New Hampshire will be present.

The Republican club of New York will go down the bay on the steamship Albany, the Roosevelt Neighbors on the steamer Nassau.

Big Gen. Walter Howe, commander of the department of the east, has secured the steamers Col. Wyckoff and Lieut. Edward Cheney, the latter to be used as scout. The battleship Connecticut will furnish two launches, which have been assigned to the commander's flagship, and the navy yard will send two launches which will be used as scouts. Four revenue cutters have been assigned to Collector Loeb, to be used to take parties of guests.

EX-PRES. ROOSEVELT

Addressed Large Number of Em- igrants on Board of Ship

On board Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, June 12, via wireless to Crookshaven, Ireland, June 12.—

Theodore Roosevelt was the chief figure in a noteworthy scene in the steerage this afternoon when he attended a Catholic service held for 1200 emigrant, Russian and Galician Poles. The emigrants, surrounding the altar draped with the American flag, chanted a litany and when Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly the priest interpreted.

Mr. Roosevelt welcomed them to America and gave them some good advice on the necessity of avoiding association with strangers upon landing. He exhorted them to be mindful of the duties of citizenship and to protect the rights of women. At the end of his remarks the emigrants crowded about him, trying to kiss his hands.

Later, at a service in the second cabin at which a German priest officiated, Mr. Roosevelt spoke in a similar vein to a gathering of Germans who cheered his remarks.

The ex-president, accompanied by the steamer's captain, inspected the third cabins and complimented the captain on their comfort and condition. He said it was to be hoped that the steerage might eventually be quite abolished and its place be taken by third class cabins.

This morning Mr. Roosevelt attended a Protestant service in the saloon. On Monday he will address the crew and stokers and on Tuesday, with French, German and Polish priests and Protestant clergy he will give a reception to the first and second cabin passengers. The weather has been perfect ever since the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria left port.

In the New Haven four rowers had been changed to the freshman eight, displacing Adams at number 2, the latter going to the four in Bomelsdorff's place. The varsity and freshman eights went up river for a mile and a half and raced down three-quarters of a mile, the varsity winning by a length.

POLICE AT WORK

On the Trunk Murder Mystery

MILAN, Italy, June 13.—Whether the police will ever find the person who murdered Mary Scott Castle Charlton and placed her body in a trunk at Lake Como is yet to be decided. The police have discovered a number of clues, but have made no public announcement of the new points. Mrs. Charlton was well known in San Francisco society circles at one time. She created a sensation by attempting to kill a New York lawyer by shooting him as he was in an elevator in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York city. A few months ago Mrs. Castle was married to Porter Charlton of Baltimore.

POLICEMAN CUT

Was Struck on Head With Stone

GREEN, June 13.—An attempt to assist in quelling a disturbance among Italians at Newton Upper Falls proved costly to Patrolman John H. Shaughnessy yesterday afternoon. One of the men he was attempting to arrest struck him on the head with a stone, inflicting a gash that required several stitches. In spite of his injuries he refused to give up and assisted another officer in arresting three men.

Saughnessy lives at 11 Hale street, Newton Upper Falls, and was off duty at the time. In the house at 20 Hale street a number of Italians were and at noon they commenced quarreling. During the early afternoon neighbors complained of noise in the house and at 2 o'clock Patrolman Ambrose M. Fuller went to investigate.

A crowd collected, and Shaughnessy, who was in citizen's clothes, walked from his home to see what was going on. Fuller called for assistance and Shaughnessy attempted to arrest one man and the others attacked him. In the yard he was struck with the stone on the forehead.

With blood pouring down his face, the dazed officer kept his hold on the man he had arrested and fought off the others until Fuller succeeded in placing them under arrest. He was then taken to his home. It will be several days before he will be able to resume his duties.

The men under arrest are Giovanni Sammarco, 33, of 20 Hale street, who is charged with disturbance and assault on an officer; Antonio Genesio, 28 years old, of 14 Rogers street, Boston, who is held on a charge of attempting to rescue a prisoner; and Benedetto Genesio, 36, of 20 Hale street, who is booked for disturbance. All secured bail.

DIAMOND NOTES

"Tenney" Day at Lynn today. Local players there and the big league magnates of Boston together with Tenney's Lynn friends will give him a reception.

Home games every day this week after today.

Congressman Ames has presented the team a beautiful flag and it will be hoisted at tomorrow's game, Flag Day, with due ceremony.

Don't miss Thursday's game. Before the league game the Elisons and the Bartlett of the grammar school league will play for the school championship of the city. Manager Gray will furnish bats, balls, etc. and present a cup to the winners. If you have never seen a grammar school game don't miss this one. The first game starts at one o'clock.

The rain thus far this season has held the receipts back $50,000 behind what they would have been had weather conditions been favorable. In the history of base ball there has never been a more unprofitable season thus far.

Haverhill starts its games at 3.30. Lawrence starts at 3 o'clock, which is the right time for patrons to see a game and then get back to work about supper time if they must. More games by starting early than by starting late.—Lawrence Eagle.

If they'd start at 2.30 the game would be better off.

Frankie Shannon objects to being called the oldest player in the New England league. He also objects to him being of the Lowell Sun saying that he started in playing ball shortly after the war.—Lynn Daily News.

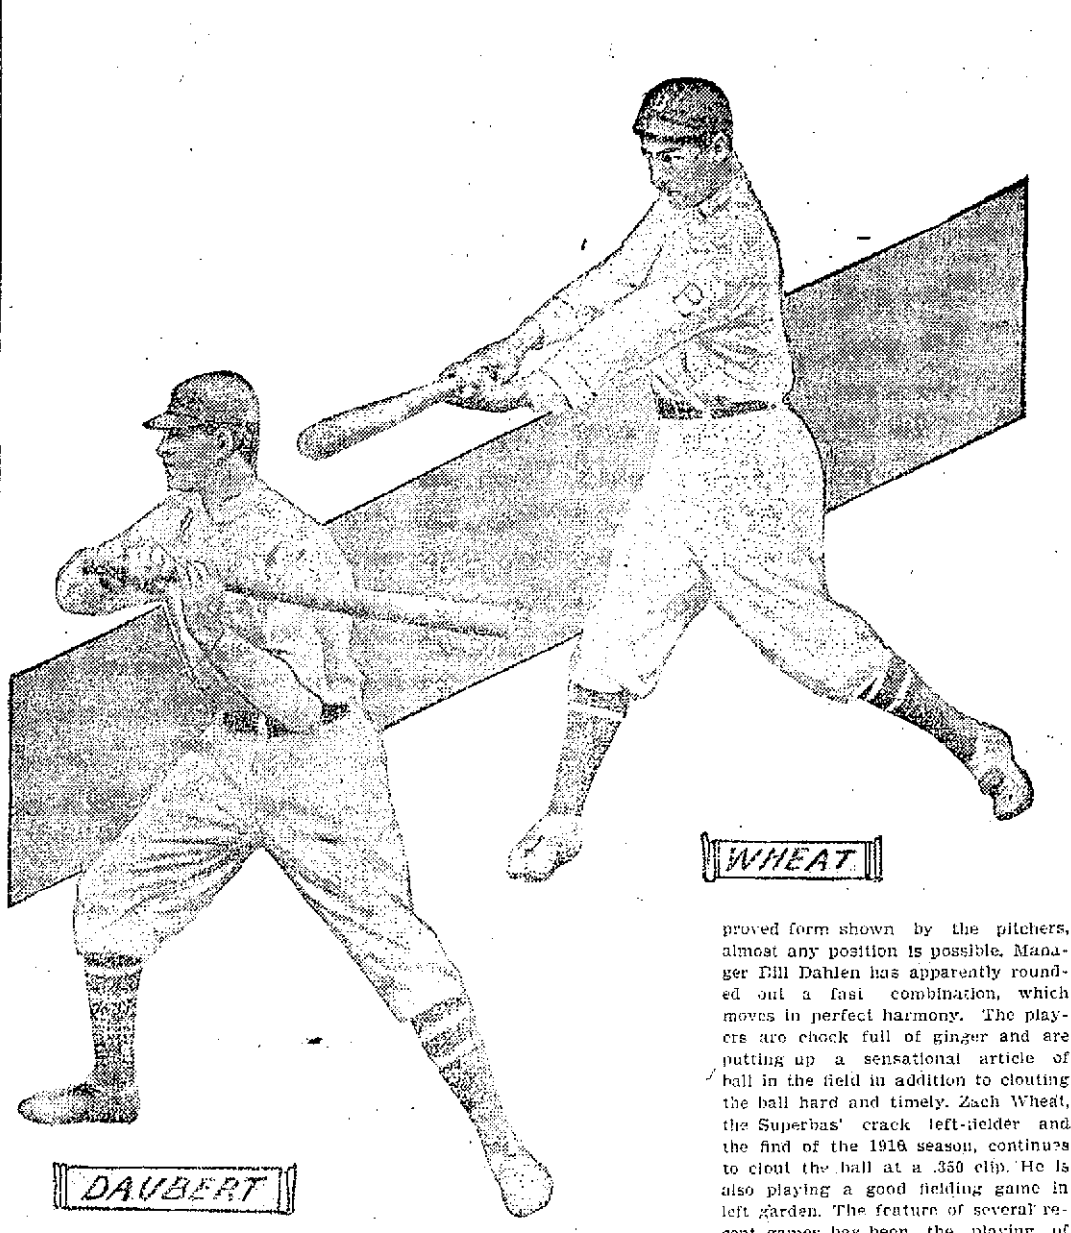

Well to tell the truth Shannon first became known as a crack player with the English High school team in Boston in 1898. He graduated from the High school that year and entered Harvard. He lost his standing as an amateur player the following year by reason of playing semi-professionally on Saturdays. The pitcher of the High school team that year was the famous "Big Mite" Sullivan when Arthur Dwyer took to New York in the big game when he finished school. Sullivan studied law and practiced in Boston up to the time of his death a few years ago. Thus, brother, if Shannon objects to the statement that he started his career shortly after the war, we'll amend the statement and say that he started just 10 years before the war, with stars and more power to him, he's going yet.

Umpire Connolly, however, gave a grand exhibition yesterday all things considered. He did not miss many of the plate decisions and his ability to size up the next play shows that he is surely improving if the fans and managers will only allow him half a chance. It is good once in a while to give the poor weary ump a boost. He worked 15 innings without a rest whereas the players are in the game but a portion of the nine rounds.—Lynn Daily News.

At last there's at least one man so poor as to do him reverence. A boost for "One-Eyed" Connolly, honey! Everybody please copy!

Manager O'Neil of Springfield, has been after Stankard, of whose ability he has high ideas. He has made a number of propositions to Manager Flanagan, but none to date that war-

BROOKLYN'S TWO CRACK YOUNGSTERS, WHO ARE PLAYING SENSATIONAL GAME

BROOKLYN, June 13.—The town enthusiastic fans have already out to place the Brooklyn team in a third place—at least, judging from the speed being figured, and some of the most the team is displaying and the improved form shown by the pitchers, almost any position is possible. Manager Bill Dahlen has apparently rounded out a fast combination, which moves in perfect harmony. The players are chock full of ginger and are putting up a sensational article of ball in the field in addition to clouting the ball hard and timely. Zach Wheat, the Superbas' crack left-fielder and the find of the 1910 season, continues to clout the ball at a 350 clip. He is also playing a good fielding game in left garden. The feature of several recent games has been the playing of Jake Daubert at first base. Local fans are comparing his work with Hal Chase, and the similarity is not all in favor of Chase. The Superbas' initial sacker is digging them out from any old position, and his batting has also been a factor in winning many games.

FRANK J. GOULD TO BECOME A CITIZEN OF FRANCE

PARIS, June 13.—Frank J. Gould has decided that hereafter he will live his life in Paris, deserting his native country so that he can devote his time to horse racing and writing plays. It has been reported here that Gould will become a Frenchman. He is also expected to marry Miss Edith Kelly, a New York actress. Friends of Gould are surprised over his plan to become a citizen of France, as he has said many times that he wanted to share in raising his children. Though divorced, Gould made almost daily visits to his children while in New York city.

FARRELL DENIES REPORT

NEW YORK, June 13.—President Frank Farrell, of New York American league club, emphatically denied last night the story printed in Detroit and telegraphed east to the effect that Hal Chase, not George Stallings, was manager of the New York Americans.

"This story is ridiculous," said Farrell, "and seems to have been started to create dissension in my team. Stallings is the manager and Chase the captain, and the men work together, and in perfect harmony. Once the same is started, Stallings attends to his duties on the bench, and Chase exercises whatever supervision is necessary over the players in the field."

"I would not dignify the story by a

St. Joseph's and St. Jean Baptiste's choir, under the direction of Dr. Caisse, sang "Les Solitaires de Quebec" and "O Canada." An St. Louis' choir, under the direction of Oiler J. David, sang "Sol Cannidien" and "Vive la Canadienne." Dr. J. E. Nolet sang "Raisons Francais." Misses Ernestine and Blanche Alexander played a duet. The hall was attractively decorated with American, French and Sacred Heart flags.

The speakers of the evening were Rev. Fr. Brullard, O. M. I., Editor Arthur Beaune of L'Etiole, Secretary General J. A. Caron, and Dr. J. H. Boucher.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of Pierre A. Brousseau, president; Joseph F. Montminy, treasurer; Jesse Alexander, secretary; Arthur Morvan, Wm. A. Parbenette, Zeph. Loranger, Adolphe Bouchard, Elphage Beaudet and Dr. J. E. Nolet.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Jean Walden Misseud of Salem, son of Mr. Jean Misseud, who for years was director of the celebrated Salem band, was united in marriage to Miss Eleant Marellyn Abbott, daughter of Mrs. Emma C. Abbott, at the latter's home, 278 Branch street, Saturday night. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. Fr. A. Greone, D. D., of the Grace church, in the presence of 40 relatives and intimate friends, the wedding being a very quiet one. The best man was Mr. Frederick A. Whitney of Westfield, formerly of this city. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Blanche A. Abbott, as maid of honor. The bride was gowned in white crepe meteor, with duchess lace, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her sister was gowned in yellow crepe meteor, and carried yellow marguerites. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Perry D. Thompson.

The house was beautifully decorated with laurel in blossom. At the close of the marriage luncheon was served. There was the usual array of costly gifts. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jean Misseud, Miss Misseud, Mrs. John Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Thompson, all of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Misseud will be at home after Nov. 1 at Duane street and Columbus avenue, Salem. No cards.

ABERNATHY LADS BEING LIONIZED BY NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 13.—Louis and rightseeing. The most remarkable thing about the two boys is that they have not been "spotted" by their long ride and publicity. They are two healthy American lads who think they have the finest father in the world. Nor do they use the slang credited to them by many reporters. The youngest boy still has a baby lip and is happy. After he met his two sons in Trenton, N. J., he took them to a New York hotel, and now they are busy dispute over that.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Observed at Evangelical Churches
Throughout the City

Yesterday was Children's day in the evangelical churches throughout the city. There were concert programs, graduation exercises of Sunday school classes and presentation of plants. The weather clerk who has been acting so curiously of late forced a smile for the children yesterday and descended to suspend the downpour of rain for the convenience of the little ones. The floral decorations in all of the churches were quite elaborate.

Beautiful flowers and decorations of greenery, among which hung cages of canary birds, made the Pawtucket church beautiful on Children's day, and more beautiful by far than the decorations were the glad, expectant faces of the little ones. The entire morning service was given up to the children and there was music appropriate to the occasion.

Centralville Methodist

Children's day observance at the Central M. E. church was both interesting and beautiful. The exercises were held in the evening and the program was a long and varied one, consisting mostly of recitations, songs and drills by the children. The platform was prettily decorated with American flags, cut flowers and potted plants. The flowers and plants later being distributed among the children. One of the features of the program was the "collection drill," in which many of the young men and women of the church took part, carrying flags of series in red, white and blue.

First Baptist Church

Children's day service at the First Baptist church Sunday morning was well attended. While the exercises were by the children of the primary and kindergarten departments the classes of older members were out in full numbers. The Philaena class of young women reporting 45, the Baraca class of young men 33, and the Floyd class 200. The floral decorations were very beautiful, including large baskets of sweet peas, lilies of the valley, roses and other choice flowers, and also 200 well grown plants in pots that were given at the close of the service to the younger children. The program was arranged by Mrs. L. T. Trull, superintendent of the primary department; Miss Alice Henderson, teacher of the kindergarten; Miss Etta Smith and Miss Gertrude Fuller. The committee on decorations was Mrs. I. F. Perrin, Miss Bortina Taylor, Miss Minnie F. Taylor, Mr. James Anderson and Miss Minnie Walsh. The exercises included recitations, dialogues, solos, a military drill by thirteen boys, and other features, more than sixty children having parts, besides the singing by the school and classes.

Gorham Street Methodist

Services appropriate to Children's Sunday were held at the Gorham Street P. M. church. There were morning and evening services and the children of the Sunday school were prominent in the programs of both. One of the features of the service was the singing by the children's chorus. The girls of different groups were another attractive feature. The church was prettily decorated.

Calvary Baptist Church

Children's day services at the Calvary Baptist church were held last evening. In addition to the regular program, seven boys and eight girls graduated from the primary to the junior department. The program of the evening was as follows: "The Beatitudes," Lept Kallio of graduating class, also the Apostles' creed; song, Etta Clement; recitation, Alice McLane; "The Bible Bees," Victoria Monn, Ruth Hullenberg, Irene Hall, Laurie Kellen, Waino Kellen, Ernest Moller, Thelma Beattie, Freda Rogers, Jennie Drumm, Myrtle Sylvester, Mildred Aldrich, Louise Chambers, Edna Ralston and the Brownies; song, "Little Raindrops," Paul McGreor, Harold Stephens; recitation, Gladys Green; solo, "The Holy City," recitation, Bessie Wallace; duet, Sarah Clement and Ruth Bowen; the Ten Commandments, graduating class; the Two Great Commandments, graduating class; the Books of the Old Testament, Gladys Green; the Books of the New Testament, Glen Marshall; presentation of diplomas.

Eliot Congregational

At the Eliot church the children taking part in the exercises sat on the platform against a background of white and green made of syringa blossoms and foliage. The baptismal procession was a pretty feature, the choir boys leading and followed by a flower girl, little Dorothy Davis, and after her came the little candidates for baptism and their parents. At the close of the exercises potted plants used in the decorations were given to the children.

Kirk Street Church

The decorations for Children's day at the Kirk Street church were very beautiful and the exercises were well attended. The decorations about the pulpit platform were very attractive, the potted geraniums intended for distribution later forming a long ribbon of red upon a background of green. There were songs and recitations by the children that were very pleasing.

First Trinitarian Church

High St. Congregational

Both morning and afternoon services at High Street church were given up to the children. The morning service was devoted to singing and readings by the Sunday school and a talk by Rev. A. C. Ferrin on "A Message From Bird-World." The program included a song by the Sunday school, "When Morning Gilds the Skies." The afternoon service at 3 o'clock was held in the vestry and the pastor gave an interesting talk on birds.

Paige St. Church

Children's day exercises were held yesterday at the morning service at the Paige Street Free Baptist church and were well attended. There was a very pleasing program by the Sunday school. A pretty and impressive feature of the services was the consecration of several infants born during the past year, and their reception into the roll of the Sunday school. The rostrum was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants and at the conclusion of the exercises each child was presented a plant.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Father and Girl Were Drowned

MONTREAL, June 13.—Albert Esnough, a builder of St. Lambert, and his adopted daughter, Lena Healy, jumped from Victoria bridge, 60 feet, into the swift current of the St. Lawrence yesterday. Both were drowned.

Enough leaped first, and was followed a moment later by the girl, but whether she jumped into the excitement of the moment or in following out a suicide agreement does not appear.

The only witness was the bridge electrician. He saw the two sitting down, evidently in earnest conversation. Suddenly both arose and Esnough, who was 45 years old, climbed the five-foot railing and plunged into the river. The girl followed before the electrician could interfere.

Enough had been in ill health for years.

ABERNATHY BOYS

HAVE ARRIVED IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, June 13.—Louis and Temple, the 10 and 6-year-old sons of John R. Abernathy, marshal of Oklahoma, rode into this city Saturday after a ride of 2500 miles on horseback from their home.

The purpose of their long ride was to renew their acquaintance with Colonel Roosevelt, who, next to their father, they believe the greatest man in the world.

That two boys of such extreme youth should dare to make such a trip all alone is a great credit to their bringing up. And how they were brought up is told by Marshal Abernathy in the following words:

"Teach a boy self-reliance from the moment he tumbles out of the cradle, make him keep his traces taut and work well forward in his collar and 99 times out of 100 his independence will assert itself before he is two years old. Then guide him with a firm but tender hand; instill into him the principles of right and wrong, and the result is that if there is no fault in his blood, and he doesn't possess a yellow streak, he will develop into a fine man. That's my rule, and if you don't think I've taken the right tack, talk to my boys for five minutes and they'll convince you that they are men in principles even if they are babies in years."

"I see Temple was less than four when his mother died," Captain Jack said. "I was away from my ranch so much of the time looking after my duties as marshal that the boys had to hustle for themselves. Their sister, Kitty Jo, had to mother them, and she was a good mother."

"Following her mother's death, she conducted the household affairs of the ranch ever since. The other girls are Goldie, 12; John (she's a girl, too, and named for me), 5; Pearl, 3, and Lucille, 2."

"Of course Louis, as the older of the two boys, became the man of the house. Even his sister Kitty defers to him, but I will say that he doesn't exert his authority in an overbearing manner."

SHOWED COURAGE

WOMAN EXTINGUISHED FIRE IN HER HOME

SACO, Me., June 13.—But for the presence of mind and courage of Mrs. Fred N. Thims of lower Beach street, her home would have been burned yesterday. While she was reading in the sitting room her little daughter ran to her and began to cry, saying that the house was on fire.

"Well, what have you been doing now?" asked Mrs. Thims who suspected the child had broken her doll.

"I found some matches in the room upstairs and the bed got afire," sobbed the little girl.

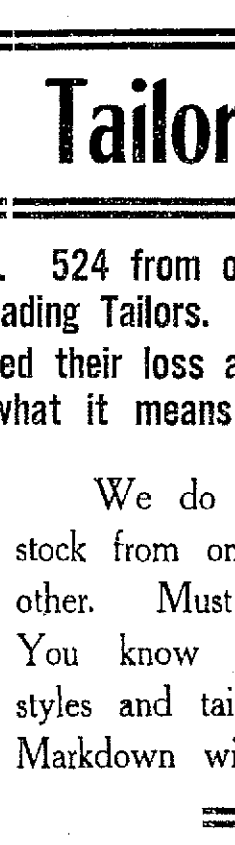

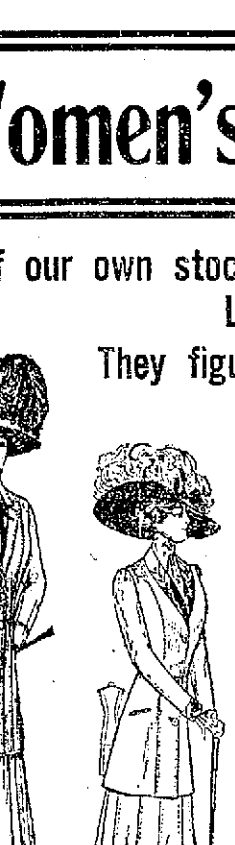

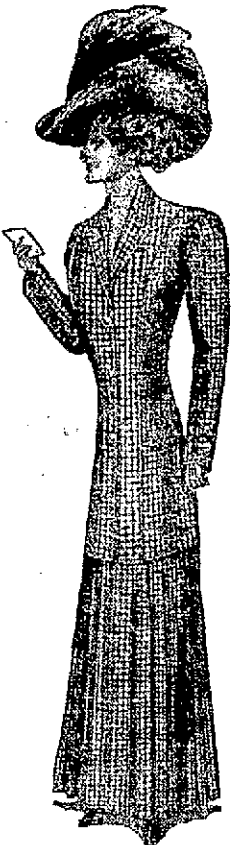

Mrs. Thims waited to hear no more, but got a pail of water and ran to the sleeping room upstairs. She found the room filled with smoke and the mattress afire. In spite of the suffocating smoke, she went into the room and soon had the fire under control. She then went to the hallway to get her breath, after which she returned and made short work of the blaze, which in a few minutes more would have spread to the upper part of the house.

The mattress was ruined, a hole was burned in the floor, the covering was burned from a musical instrument and the mopboards were charred.

The house is a mile from the fire station, and had not the little girl gone to her mother in time to confess that she had started a fire while playing with matches the house would have been beyond saving by the time the firemen arrived.

The little girl, though frightened nearly out of her wits by what she had done, followed her mother upstairs and endeavored to assist her in extinguishing the fire.

YOUTH KILLED

Woman Thought Revolver Was Empty

SALEM, N. J., June 13.—Mrs. Eliza Robinson, 27 years old, was brought to the county jail here last night, charged with killing Walter Harvey, 22 years old, at her home in Pennville, near here, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Robinson is married and lived in a house formerly used as a parsonage adjoining the Pennville Methodist Episcopal church. Harvey, it is said, frequently called upon Mrs. Robinson, but did not know she was married until recently.

The Rev. J. W. Power, pastor of the church, lives next door to the former parsonage, and, when he heard revolver shots, he entered the place. He found Harvey lying on a bed with his clothes ignited from the flash of the revolver and quickly extinguished the flames. A physician was summoned and an examination showed that the man had been shot through the brain and the heart.

Mrs. Robinson was taken into custody. She declared that she thought the revolver was empty and that she had no intention of harming Harvey, but only wanted to scare him. The whereabouts of Mrs. Robinson's husband is not known. She came to Salem from Quinton, near here, about a month ago and kept boarders.

TRIED SUICIDE

Worcester Girl Quarreled With Sweetheart

WORCESTER, June 13.—Mrs. Grace O. Rock, aged 17 years, daughter of Mrs. Alva Luzon, 145 Central street, attempted suicide last night by taking a dose of corrosive sublimate, but is expected to recover.

Her act occurred after an altercation with two sweethearts, according to her mother, who was at home when the girl took the poison. Her story is that after returning home she found one of the girl's lovers in the house and the other gone. Grace complained of a terrible burning in her throat and said she had taken poison.

The mother says she did not believe Grace and told her it served her right. Grace, Mrs. Luzon says, went out the back door and when she failed to return half an hour later Mrs. Luzon sent a boarder after her and the girl was found unconscious on the cellar floor. Mr. Rock, the girl's husband, is said to be living in Boston. The couple have not lived together.

WOMAN SUED

BELVA LOCKWOOD ONCE RAN FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Belva Ann Bennett Lockwood, the only woman in this country to ever run for the presidency, has been sued for $10,000 by James R. Brackett. The suit is on the grounds of "malicious abuse of criminal process." Belva Lockwood is also the first woman ever to be admitted to practice law before the United States supreme court, as the result of a bill which she caused to be passed before congress in 1879.

Me, died in the York hospital Saturday night of burns sustained when her home took fire.

Her son, Fred Norton, is in the hospital in a critical condition. The flames burned the stairs and hallway leading to the chambers before the four occupants of the house were awakened.

Norton wrapped his clothing around his mother and, clad in his night clothes, led her through the fire, both being badly burned. He attempted to return to the house to rescue his wife and daughter, but fell exhausted. The wife and daughter jumped to the ground and were slightly injured.

The house and contents, including nearly $100 belonging to the daughter, were destroyed, the loss being $1000.

MANUAL TRAINING

The city of Haverhill is to extend the course in manual training with the opening of the schools in the fall. A satisfactory beginning has been made in this course of study which is more educational than manual. The city of Haverhill evidently believes in it and has set out to offer greater opportunities to the pupils. This is in line with the general movement towards technical training. It is a mistake to suppose that the pupil can learn any trade by taking courses in manual training. The courses will, however, enable him to learn any other trade much more easily because in manual training, if properly taught, he learns the principles of all trades.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES NEEDED

In our fight against the white plague we shall never accomplish much until we have a consumptives' hospital to which incipient cases can be promptly sent for treatment. There are hundreds of cases that might be cured in a short time when first diagnosed if we had a hospital to which to send them and in which they could receive the treatment suited to their weakness.

It is not to be assumed that such a hospital would be a bill of expense to the city. Most of the patients would be too glad to pay for treatment. The experience of other cities proves this and shows the great necessity for a properly equipped hospital for consumptives. Physicians in many cases advise a change of climate as a last resort. Had the patients the benefit of a consumptives hospital they would probably have been cured before reaching such an advanced stage. In some cases the change of climate effects a cure; but in others where the disease is too far advanced there is no relief.

THE GUBERNATORIAL SUCCESSION

There seems to be a strong sentiment in this state even among republicans in favor of Mr. Foss as candidate for governor. It is shared in by those republicans who are opposed to the present machine method of succession to the office. There are those who would like to see the custom of having the lieutenant governor regarded as the logical if not the only candidate for governor, once the office has been filled two years in succession by the same man. This method is certainly not calculated to allow the voters absolute freedom of selection. No man should get a claim upon the office by any custom or power that is not expressed in the primaries. Yet for years past it has been a foregone conclusion that the lieutenant governor being the choice of the leaders should be the sole candidate voted for. The fact that a man holds an office for two years is no valid reason why he should be advanced to a higher office for which he may not be as well fitted as many other men equally available. The right of succession may work no harm if the candidate be all right, but otherwise it is a custom that might do immense harm.

THE COST OF LIVING

No less a dignitary than E. H. Gary, chairman of the executive board of the United States steel trust, makes the prediction that the cost of living will go up. One would imagine from his statement that the present cost of living is normal and that an advance is something necessary or desirable. He says:

"We are now in the centre of one of the greatest harvests of prosperity the country has ever witnessed, and the future is bright for a continuance of the good time, but with these good times will surely come an increase in the cost of living. Commodities are going upward; materials are higher and wages are advancing at a fair rate. This means more money for the butcher, baker and others that provide for the home. And it is not only just and proper, but will make for a better general result all over the country."

It is not surprising that an official of the richest corporation in the country should talk in this vein and predict prosperity from a further advance in the cost of living. The present cost of living is pressing hard upon wage earners with large families and even upon men who are earning wages far above the average. Prices have been going up at an enormous rate during the past few years, and according to Mr. Gary the upward movement is not at an end. He is in a position to know as his trust and other trusts are believed to be largely responsible for the high cost of living. His company has no rivals in this country. Practically all the independent concerns have long ago been absorbed or driven out of business. But as to the justice of the prices fixed upon steel rails, for example, right here in the American market, we may mention that the United States steel corporation has shipped its rails to European countries and sold them much below the American price. That shows how the American consumer is imposed upon by the steel trust, and what the steel trust does in this respect is done by other trusts in the sale of their products. The beef trust sells beef in London at 25 per cent. less than in New York and has a good profit. Does not that prove that it is robbing the American consumer?

It would thus seem that the prices paid for most commodities in this country are regulated by the arbitrary edict of the trusts rather than by the laws of supply and demand. If wages followed the cost of living upward there would be no cause of complaint, but such is not the case and an increase of 25 per cent. in the cost of living to the wage earner is equal to a reduction in wages of the same rate.

It has been said that the cost of living has increased of late in all the countries of the world, but such is not the case. The cost of food in England has decreased in the last ten years if we are to accept reports from United States consuls on the ground. In Paris and Berlin there has been a slight increase in the cost of living in the past few years, but nothing like that experienced in this country. There is a cause for the difference. Some investigators assure us that the high cost of living is due mainly to extravagance, improvidence and over-indulgence in luxuries. Does that explain why beefsteak and other staple articles of food are thirty per cent. higher than ten years ago?

SEEN AND HEARD

Don't talk all the time about your troubles. Give other folks a little time to talk about theirs.

If a man is thoughtful and polite, a woman finds it hard to believe that he can be entirely dishonest.

The automobile bromide is: "Well, I don't see where all these people who have automobiles ever got the money."

The man who takes a cigar out of his pocket and lights it while he is walking with another man should always say: "I wish I had another one to offer you, old boy," even if he doesn't mean it.

Another bore is the man who thinks it is necessary always to take off his glove before shaking hands with you.

He became known as a writer only this spring when his first book, "The Glory of His Country," was published.

Mr. Landis, who served two terms in congress under the Roosevelt administration, now lives in the old Landis mansion in Logansport, and does all his writing. In a little attic, with sloping walls and only windows at the ends, he sits in a large Morris chair and writes, with his paper on his lapboard which is supported by the arm. He has a great quantity of dark tangled hair, and his most characteristic gesture, when in the act of composing, is to run his fingers through it over and over.

Of this book, his first published work, Mr. Landis has said that if any one person gets half the fun out of reading it that he had out of the writing of it even down to the final revision he will consider himself well repaid. His method is to revise and revise, and then to write rapidly, and though he writes rapidly, the work of getting his compositions into final shape requires infinite care. "All my life," Mr. Landis says, "I have wanted to write. Four or five times I have been thrown off the track by the smallest circumstance. The first time I made up in a country newspaper office a year ago, and in journalistic work in Washington, and that was the happiest year until I got settled down to writing this story. After I was defeated for congress, in 1906, I came home, fixed up this old attic, and began working."

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the features at the Theatre Voyons will be exceptionally good. "The Range Riders" will satisfy anyone who likes pictures with western scenes and so to them. The ride and natural scenery shown in this picture excel in interest any that have yet been shown on the screen, and for real thrills it has never been beaten. "A Modern Cinderella" is a charming story in which the old fairy tale is cleverly worked into a ride and a love story. The actors are up to their roles and the heroine is very dainty and lovable. "The Empty Cradle" is a dramatic picture with just the right amount of pathos and one finely acted. The comedy is a real laugh and the musical features unequalled.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Get in line and follow the crowd to the academy and see a first class performance of vaudeville, pictures and songs. ## OPENING DAY OF PERIN'S HIPPODROME AT WASHINGTON PARK

Today, Monday afternoon, is the day set for the grand opening of Perin's Hippodrome, Lowell's latest amusement enterprise, and when the doors of Washington park swing open the people of our city will not only be surprised, but also astonished by the many improvements that have been made at the park. All the stands have been repainted and remodeled and the grounds have also been put in condition, and thousands of incandescent lights swing all along the walks and paths, so as to make the park not only as light as a summer's day, but also to make a pleasing effect for the eye.

The performance will start in the afternoon at 2.15, and in the evening at 8.15 sharp. All the boxes for tonight's performance have been reserved for the city officials and invited guests, and from the present outlook the grounds and stand will be filled to capacity.

The various acts engaged for the opening week contain many names that are prominent in the show world, among which are the four Lurons, the greatest casting act in the world; Mariello on the slack wire; Robinson and LeFavour in a funny tumbling sketch; DuCrov and his clowns, and as an added attraction the Cycling Brunettes in their famous trick bicycle riding; Woodford's animals, consisting of dogs, ponies and monkeys, and the human monkey, Counsel II, which does everything that man accomplishes with the exception of talking; in addition to these, there will be De Noto's famous Genoa Military, and Concert band, conducted by Prof. De Noto himself, rendering music ranging from the classic to the latest popular songs, and in the evening the latest motion pictures will also be shown. All this will be given for the nominal price of ten cents admission.

AMBASSADOR REID

IS TO RETIRE FROM THE SERVICE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The days of service of Whiteley Reid as ambassador to the court of St. James are numbered. This information, learned last night, comes from a source in possession of both the American and British sides of the case.

The informant declares that King George and Mr. Reid, while on official terms, are not close to the degree of official intimacy expected between the king and an ambassador.

In support of this it is pointed out that at all court functions given by the late King Edward, Ambassador Reid was seldom in the group that surrounded the then Prince of Wales. King George is against making of the British court a climax to the social ambitions of rich foreigners, and is said to have often remonstrated with his august father for the way presentations were engineered.

Mr. Reid has served more than four years. No inkling is obtainable as to who his successor may be, but indications are that the post will not go to any one not already connected with diplomatic or political life.

VICE PRESIDENT SAYS THE INSURGENT MOVEMENT IS ABATING

UTICA, N. Y., June 13.—"I believe that the 'insurgent' movement, so-called, is abating," said Vice President Sherman, who came to Utica yesterday to attend the wedding of his niece. "We do not notice the change so much in Washington where the 'insurgents' are still insuring, despite their assertions that they are standing by the president, but from my observations on my recent western trip, I am convinced that the movement is on the wane."

I have twice before, within a few weeks, been in the middle west and have found that sentiment to be decidedly in favor of a continuance of the protective policy. The outcome in Iowa where the primaries were held Tuesday and where the regulars were successful was strongly indicative of a continued belief in republican policies throughout that section of the country."

MAN WAS SHOT The Alleged Assailant Made His Escape

WATERTOWN, June 13.—Domenico Bancardo, 30 years old, unmarried, of 342 North street, Boston, was shot through the left shoulder yesterday by another Italian, who escaped. The two were riding at 88 Arsenal street, and there were a man and a woman in the room with them. The man who did the shooting was intoxicated. He suddenly burst into rage and drew a revolver and threatened to kill Bancardo. The woman pushed him aside, but he fired a shot which pierced Bancardo's shoulder. A second shot went wild. The woman then threw the enraged Italian out of the house.

The injured man was taken to the Waltham hospital, and it is believed he will recover. The bullet passed entirely through the shoulder. The man who did the shooting ran across fields and finally escaped on a street car bound for Boston. He tore off his collar and necktie as he ran and threw them away. The police know his name and have sent out a description of him.

A. O. H. DELEGATES ENDORSE MATTHEW CUMMINGS FOR RE-ELECTION

BOSTON, June 13.—At a meeting in the Hotel Lenox yesterday-afternoon of the state officers, county presidents and delegates of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who will attend the annual convention in Portland, Ore., July 13, it was voted that the Massachusetts delegation would unanimously favor the re-election of Matthew Cummings of Neponset as national president.

The meeting was held after a dinner at which about 60 were present, including representatives of the ladies' auxiliary, State President John J. Rogers of Worcester presided.

MADE FLIGHT IN RAIN

NEW YORK, June 13.—Such a little thing as a broken guy-wire could not keep Charles K. Hamilton on the ground yesterday. Bare headed, in the pouring rain, with his heavy trousers flapping behind him, in a gale, Hamilton left the ground at 12 minutes past six last evening and for two minutes and three seconds, circled the lower end of Governor's Island, and hovered over the harbor.

In making his preliminary run over the sandy surface of the towers end of Governor's Island he bumped into a buoy stake and smashed a guy wire. Seven times he circled the island, at a height of 200 feet and then came down, with a swoop like a falcon stopping to its prey. Twice he ventured out over the water, to chase ferrets.

A MIDNIGHT FIRE

An alarm from box 24 about midnight Saturday night summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze on the top floor of the house numbered 207 Middlesex street. The fire was discovered by Patrolman Connors, who aroused the occupants of the building before ringing in the alarm.

"TIRED OF LIVING" MAN'S CLOTHING FOUND ON BANKS OF RESERVOIR

NEVERLY, June 13.—While out walking about 8.30 yesterday morning William H. Stanley, residing at 400 Cabot street, discovered a black derby hat, size 6 7/8, and a black coat, size 33, and considerably worn, on the bank of the Salem reservoir. Upon investigation he found a note written on wrapping paper which read as follows: "I am sick and tired of living and have taken this means to find rest. I have no friends who care for me, no money or no work, so what is the use of living. Good-by, C. H. Drummer."

Mr. Stanley notified the police and the reservoir was dragged, but no body was found.

The water in the reservoir is used by the city of Salem for drinking purposes.

AT CLARK COLLEGE

WORCESTER, June 13.—In caps and gowns the graduating class of Clark college marched to Pilgrim church yesterday and listened to a benediction sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Henry Silles Bradley of the Piedmont church.

Dr. Bradley took for his text, "Deliver us from evil." He summarized his sermon in part as follows:

"Cowardice is simply virtue or prudence untitled of the sense of duty. Gradually it is only generosity run to seed. Fearfulness is courage without its master. Revenge is justice filled with an overwhelming sense of self. Stinginess is frugality carried to the extreme. Pride and vanity are inflated self respect. The only way to be delivered from evil is to overcome it with good."

REICHSBANK CHARTER

Monetary Commission Makes Report on Its Renewal

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The latest developments and discussions in regard to banking in Germany are embodied in a monograph just made public by the National Monetary commission under the title, "Renewal of Reichsbank charter." Senator Aldrich and the other members of the commission had the good fortune to be in Germany at the moment when a special commission was sitting to consider the revision of the charter of the Imperial bank, which is made at regular periods of ten years. They have had translated for the use of congress not only the text of the discussions in this commission, made up of the ablest bankers and economists, but also much of the discussion which took place in the financial press before the enactment of the law of June 1, 1909, and the reasons given by the legislative committee for the provisions of this law.

The subject was much discussed whether the strain imposed upon German banking facilities in the crisis of 1907 would have been mitigated if the Imperial bank had possessed a larger capital. This view was dismissed by the committee, which reported that the capital and funds of the bank were larger than those of the Bank of France, the Bank of Austria-Hungary, or the Bank of Russia, and were second only to the capital resources of the Bank of England.

In deciding the question as to whether a further increase of the resources of the Imperial bank was desirable, it was decided by the committee that it should be borne in mind that in the case of a central bank of issue its own funds are of less importance than they are in the case of other banking institutions; they serve principally as a guaranty fund for the creditors of the bank, while the working capital is created through the notes issued and the funds deposited in the bank. The experience of all the banks of issue proves this; the special commission pointed out, and further held that the Imperial bank had a large reserve of the Reichsbank's present capital is fully sufficient. The bank does not require an increase of its resources for the task directly laid upon it as a bank of issue and for the sake of the bulk of its business resulting from this capacity.

Another point to which the greatest attention was given by the legislative committee was whether the system of limiting the volume of notes in circulation, by imposing a tax of 5 per cent. on the amount of notes above a fixed limit, when the notes were not fully covered by gold, was, upon the whole, a wise one. The committee found that the system had been shown to have worked perfectly well by the experience of the many banks that have elapsed since the establishment of the Reichsbank. Although a certain indirect connection between the limit of untaxed note circulation and the action of the Reichsbank in regard to the discount rate must be admitted, in so far as the exceeding of the contingent and the raising of the discount rate presuppose increased demands upon the Reichsbank, a direct influence on the discount rate through the limit of the note contingent can not be expected. In fact, the main argument of the Reichsbank has never allowed the tax imposed on the excess circulation to have any decisive influence on its discount policies. As, therefore, the discount policies of the Reichsbank would not be favorably affected by the elimination of the contingent, no reason was found for abandoning this system. On the other hand, it was declared by the committee, it seems altogether desirable to maintain the contingent system, as the exceeding of the contingent has more and more developed into a danger signal heeded by business men. The former amount of the tax-free note contingent was not, however, regarded as sufficient. The figures for 1906 proved the inadequacy of the contingent, showing that it was exceeded 17 times, with a maximum excess of 57,644,737 marks ($126,000,000), and this conclusion was strengthened by the events of the year 1907. That year showed no less than 25 instances, of which the excess reported on Dec. 31 reached the amount of 625,974,553 marks, a maximum never reached before. At the same time it happened for the first time, in 1907, by reason of the large demands of business, that the Reichsbank had a note circulation which, even in its yearly average, exceeded the contingent by more than 55,000,000 marks. Although these two years could not be accepted as a general demonstration, because they were periods of exceptional financial strain, it had become evident that the old contingent of the Reichsbank was insufficient for the increased demands of business due to the increase of population and the accelerated economic development in Germany.

In establishing an increase the fact was to be reckoned with that the demands of the Reichsbank are regularly made to an especially large extent at the quarter days. The condition, resulting from custom, that at the beginning of a quarter large liabilities have to be met—for instance, in regard to mortgages, rent, interest, and salaries—demands at those times an extraordinary payment, which it is the Reichsbank's unavoidable obligation to meet. In accordance with this view the new law increased the limit of authorized issues, covered by a reserve of one-third, to 550,000,000 marks, and in addition provided that this issue might be permitted to rise to 750,000,000 marks ($175,000,000) at the close of March, June, September, and December in each year.

Another important point in which the new law departs from the old charter of the bank is in making the notes of the bank legal tender. There was a strong disinclination to this policy when the bank was established, which is explained by the earnest desire then prevailing to do away with the existing paper regime and to place the metallic currency on a firm foundation. This aim has been realized to such an extent that at the present time Germany's metallic circulation, and particularly that of gold coin, is abundant for all demands of trade. On the other hand, bank notes also are regularly taken in payment, and for payments of large amounts they are used almost exclusively. In view of the fact that the legal status of this mode of payment was somewhat uncertain, however, such institutions as had to make numerous payments, banks especially, generally felt obliged for precautionary reasons to provide themselves with a considerable stock of gold in order to be prepared for any demand for gold that they might have to meet.

In proposing this measure the new law followed the examples of England and France. In England the notes of the Bank of England have been legal tender since January 1, 1893. In France the notes of the Bank of France were invested with this quality by the acts of August 12, 1870, and August 3, 1875. The conferring of the legal-tender quality upon the Reichsbank notes does not in any way affect the maintenance of the gold standard, as is proved by the example of the bank of England. In order to emphasize this more strongly, the words "legally current German money" in the paragraph relating to redemption of notes, have been replaced by "German gold coin." This expresses beyond a doubt that even a single note of the denomination of 20 marks need be redeemed in gold, although the amount of 20 marks comes still within the limit up to which imperial silver coin is decreed a legal tender by the currency act of July 9, 1873.

Thus the new law, while expanding the legal limit of the untaxed circulation, provides for direct redemption of notes in gold at the bank and gives uniformity as far as possible to the paper circulation. Another important provision of the law authorizes the bank and also the private banks or issue to purchase checks. Since the act of March 11, 1909, in relation to checks made it possible for a holder of a check to obtain legal protection for his claim, just the same as the holder of a bill; the committee declared that the fundamental objections to the purchase of checks were removed.

By permitting their purchase by the Reichsbank, the holder of a check payable in another city could get cash for it at any moment by having it discounted, whereas under the old method the amount was paid only after the check had been collected—that is, after a lapse of several days—and no liability was accepted by the bank for the presentation of the check for payment within the legal time limit. The discounted check, in accordance with its intrinsic purpose, would be presented for collection by the bank as quickly as possible, and its equivalent put at the disposal of the party presenting it by means of the giro (his account current being credited with the amount), the necessity of a cash remittance being thus avoided. It is expected that the purchase of checks by the Reichsbank will stimulate the use of checks and, in general, promote monetary intercourse without the employment of cash.

off Angel Island. Three cases of bubonic plague were discovered on the ship. Hummel left Paris a few months ago and went to the Orient. He had announced that he would never return to the United States, but it is now discovered that he had hoped to make his way back to this country for a brief stay.

SAVED FROM SEA WOMEN PICKED FROM OVERTURNED CANOE

BOSTON, June 13.—Two young women, who refused to give their names, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon by the overturning of a canoe in which they were paddling from a yacht to the breakwater at Winthrop Highlands.

When they were about half way to shore, the canoe was overturned. Neither was able to swim, and both would have drowned but for the timely arrival of the dory of the Winthrop Highlands volunteer lifesaving crew.

Thomas Green and Ralph Halford were on the breakwater, watching the yacht off shore and saw the two women put off in the canoe which was tipped as a tender.

The lifesavers realizing the difficulty of navigating a canoe in the heavy sea picked up by the recent storm, immediately prepared the dory attached to the station.

The canoe bobbed over the waves, several times caving as it slanted through the trough of a wave. When the two women were about half way ashore, a mistral of wind caught the shell, overturning it.

The two lifesavers launched the dory, and arrived at the place where the two women had overturned just as one had become exhausted and loosened her hold on the edge of the canoe.

Both were hauled into the dory and rowed ashore. They refused to give their names or accept any further assistance, but hurried off toward Winthrop Centre, where it is thought that they live.

Both women protested themselves to be skillful canoeists, but said that they did not expect the surf to be so difficult to navigate.

When within a short distance of the man his presence was noted and the man made a dash for his liberty. He led the officer a merry chase through alleyways and finally into Main street.

The man, grasped the patrolman, pulled his revolver and threatened to shoot, but the man dropped down between two buildings and the officer soon had him.

THE RAILROAD BILL

Conferees Expect to Report the Measure on Wednesday

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Conferees on the administration railroad bill were in session more than six hours yesterday and made such progress as led them to predict that they will be able to report to congress early this week, probably not later than Wednesday.

In the tentative draft which has been made up from the bills as they were passed by the house and senate the only two questions that remain in serious dispute are those relating to long and short hauls and the period during which increases in rates should be suspended to give the interstate commerce commission time to pass upon their reasonableness.

With an agreement on the railroad bill in sight, the members of congress are beginning to figure on adjournment. Few members of either branch now expect the session to last longer than Thursday, June 30, and not a few guess as early as June 25, which is Saturday.

Some of the employees on the committees on appropriations have concluded that the long sessions usually adjourn in about 15 days after the reporting of the general deficiency bill, the last of the great supply measures.

To this calculation was due in large part the prediction that the session would end on the last day of next week.

Only One Conservation Bill

There are not many matters of legislation remaining which are expected to consume much time. The senate is in favor of adopting the house amendments to the postal savings bank bill. This course would avoid a conference and might easily save two or three days.

The sundry civil bill probably will be passed by the senate today and the general deficiency never is held up long in the senate.

The bill to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes is the only one of the conservation measures slated to go through this session.

To that with the added, it is expected, the bill which has already passed the senate to permit the issuance of certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $50,000,000 to complete reclamation projects. It ought not to require more than a week to complete this bill.

No Statehood Measure

No decision has been reached as to whether to introduce legislation, but the general impression seems to be that nothing will be done at the present session.

The railroad bill, therefore, appears to be the key to the adjournment situation just as it has been for nearly four months. When that is out of the way and the measure has been approved by President Taft, members of congress can lay their plans to go home and not before.

Whether the conference report to be brought out during the week will be of a character that the two branches of congress would be ready to accept remains to be seen. Unquestionably it will contain many disappointments for some members, and among these will be "insurgent" members in the senate and house.

The conferees have made a great many changes in the form of the bill to be reported. They have had the assistance of Attorney General Wickesham throughout in the matter of harmonizing the phraseology of the two bills wherein both branches of congress undertook to legislate upon the same subjects.

All of the agreements are tentative and, therefore, the conferees are not inclined to make them public.

Concessions to Radicals

It is known, however, that the senate amendment shifting from shippers to the railroads the burden of proving the reasonableness of increases in rates and the Overman amendment prescribing the rule under which federal courts would be permitted to set aside orders of state courts, will both be retained.

These provisions are highly pleasing to progressive republicans and democrats. The most serious trouble looked for in the adoption of the conference report will be in connection with the long and short-haul clause. A right requirement that no railroad should charge a higher rate for a short than for a long haul is not favored by the senate conferees. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the house amendment on this subject prevailed.

Many lawyers hold that the house amendment would be declared unconstitutional, in that it delegates legislative authority to the interstate commerce commission. The senate amendment prescribes the rule by which railroads would not be permitted to discriminate against short hauls, and thus invests the constitutional question, according to the views of its framers, in the hands of the judiciary.

Lengthy Debate Possible

The "insurgents" in the senate fear that if the senate conferees yield to the house in this matter their hard fight over this question will prove to have been a waste of time. It is likely they would debate the conference report at length if the house provision is adopted.

In the main the senate conferees have agreed to accept the provision in the house bill which provides for the amending of section 1 of the existing interstate commerce law as greatly to enlarge the jurisdiction of the commission over regulations and practices of railroads.

There is still some dispute over a requirement that all railroads must be prepared to make arrangements with other lines in the establishment of through routes and "to provide reasonable facilities for operating through routes."

The senate conferees assert that there are railroads which might be crippled by a strict application of this provision.

The provisions of the senate and house on the subject of placing telephone, telegraph and cable companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission have been rewritten, but in the main the new draft compares favorably with the La Follette amendment adopted by the senate.

TWO LOWELL MEN

Honored by Steam Engineers' Convention

Two Lowell men were honored at the 11th semi-annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch of the International Steam Engineers held at Lynn, William E. Kenefick was elected vice president while Albra W. Horsene was chosen secretary.

There were 200 delegates at the convention and a number of important resolutions were adopted, among them being one to send a committee of three to Governor Draper to urge him to reappoint William M. Beck of Boston on the board of boiler inspectors.

A resolution was passed asking the convention of the international body, to be held in Denver, to elect A. M. Huddell of Boston as president. He is now the first vice president of the international union. The choice of a delegate to the international convention was finally left to the executive board of the state branch to decide at their meeting in Lowell in July.

A feature of the day that was much enjoyed was an excellent fish dinner served soon after 1 o'clock by J. C. Tibbitts at his place on Lynn beach. After the dinner the convention met and elected the officers as follows: President, F. W. O'Donnell of Boston; vice president, William E. Kenefick of Lowell; secretary, Albra W. Horsene of Lowell; treasurer, M. P. McNeeney of Boston.

A rising vote of thanks was given to W. F. McAvoy of Milford, the retiring secretary, for his faithful service in the past four years. The next convention will be held at Lawrence the second Sunday in December. Local 225 will be the host.

The Lowell delegates to the convention were William E. Kenefick, Albra W. Horsene, Michael Reidy, John McRadden, John Mutter and Lucius Dinterfield.

DANGEROUS TRIP

Man Crossed Hell Gate on a Log

NEW YORK, June 13.—Standing on a log that rolled violently in the swirling waters of Hell gate, Edward A. Chase, a river driver from Bangor, Me., made a trip through the treacherous channel yesterday, crossing from scaly rock on the Astoria shore, to the foot of East 89th street, Manhattan.

In one of the roughest spots in Hell gate there is government dredge. Suddenly one end of Chase's log was caught in a whirlpool and drawn under the dredge. Shouts of live-savers who followed him in two boats called Chase's attention to the danger. He jumped from the log into a boat just as the log was sucked under the dredge.

The boat skirted the dredge, and when the log reappeared Chase leaped back on it and continued his wild trip. He had announced he would make the journey without wetting his clothing, and succeeded, although he had a close call when the log pole he carried as a balance broke as he was trying to force the log into midstream.

Chase staggered, but recovered himself, and holding the broken parts of the pole together passed 89th street in safety and was taken into a lifeboat. In the soles of his boots were sharp spikes.

"I'm sorry I had to jump because of that dredge," Chase said when landing. "I knew I could make the trip all right, but was surprised at the force of the cross waves and eddies. Then I had a badly behaved log. After I started I found there was a flat surface on the log, and every time this rolled up it was extremely hard to keep the proper balance."

"I do not think the trip was as difficult as some I have taken while driving logs in Maine. There are rapids in the Piscataquis river that gave me more trouble, but the gate offers such a combination of troubles that comparison is difficult."

THAT IS CHARGE AGAINST EXPRESS CLERK

TRURO, N. S., June 13.—A mysterious robbery of nearly a year ago has been partly cleared up by a verdict of guilty against Laurie Burgess, brother of William J. Burgess, the man robbed. The latter will today be tried on a charge of complicity in the robbery of himself.

William J. Burgess was an express clerk. During a noon hour he was found bound and gagged in the office of which he temporarily was in charge, and which had been robbed of nearly $6000. There was no clue to the thief.

Ultimately some of the loot was discovered in a barn adjoining the Burgess home. Soon after detectives located, by means of some of the stolen checks, Laurie Burgess, then living in the Canadian Northwest. He was brought here for trial and his conviction resulted.

William Burgess maintains he was not concerned in any plot to secure the money and that he had no hopes of profiting from the robbery, of which he had no previous knowledge.

CAMP OF INSTRUCTION

For Officers of the Bay State Militia Closed

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, June 13.—The military school which was in session on the muster field three days closed last night.

The school was held under most unfavorable weather conditions, it having rained hard every day, with a cold east wind, making overcoats and rubber boots necessary.

The program had to be changed in several instances. The tactical walks scheduled for each morning had to be abandoned Friday and Saturday, but yesterday morning the instructors each took out a squad for three hours into the country in a drizzling rain, which was repeated by several of the officers in the afternoon in a downpour. Other classes reported to the large mess-houses and worked out problems of advance and rear guard, the issuing of orders, etc.

An interesting feature of the day was the practical talk that Capt. Hanna had with the commanding and field officers in the marquee on advance and rear guard duty. At night it was the opinion of every officer that the camp had been one of the most instructive ever held in the state, having given the officers an opportunity of learning something entirely new, with every detail explained by regular officers.

It also gave the officers an opportunity of seeing up the men who are holding commissions in this state.

THE SHILON BOAT THREE STABBED

Ordered to Move From One Man Is in a Serious Condition

BOSTON, June 13.—Acting under orders from Capt. Edward Pease, the harbor master, the barkentine Kingdom of the Holy Ghost and Un fleet, shifted her position yesterday and went to an anchorage below the castle, off Spectacle Island. Those who saw the craft make sail and up anchor yesterday morning wondered where she was going. A light northwesterly breeze prevailed and when the Kingdom started out with all her sails set it occasioned considerable comment.

The Kingdom was anchored off Bird Island flats on the anchorage reserved for deep draft vessels. Capt. Pease, the commander of the barkentine, when questioned by Capt. Pease could give him no information regarding the length of her stay in port, and Capt. Pease ordered him to take the Kingdom to anchorage below, where she would not interfere with the regular shipping of the port.

Saturday the Kingdom was boarded by two men who went down to the city, and later a sail boat containing several men left the vessel in the driving rain and made a landing near the South station, where two of the party took a train, presumably for New York.

So much mystery attaches to the Kingdom that she is an object of interest to the passengers of all the passing steamers.

Later yesterday afternoon the Kingdom got under way again and stood across the channel between Castle Island and State ledge buoy. The wind was so light that she was barely moving. It was supposed that Capt. Pease was dissatisfied with her movements and was trying to find a more suitable anchorage.

BILLERICA NEWS

Rev. Fr. Foley, O. M. I., Preached to Graduates

In accordance with a decree issued recently by Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, the Father Matthew T. A. society voted at its last regular meeting to request him to appoint a chaplain for the organization. Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's church, has been named. The following letter, which is self explanatory, was received Friday by President Cowdrey of the Mathews:

Granby Street Boston, Mass., June 9, 1910.
Mr. Charles E. Cowdrey, North Billerica.
Sir: His Grace, the most reverend archbishop, has received your note of June 7 requesting the appointment of a chaplain to your society. The archbishop has accordingly appointed Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's parish, North Billerica.

James E. O'Connell, Secretary.
Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's church in North Billerica, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the members of the graduating class of the Howe high school yesterday morning.

There was a large congregation, which was made up of people of all denominations. The members of the class occupied pews in the front of the church.

WESTFORD

All the public schools throughout the town with the exception of the academy closed the school year Friday, June 10, when the graduation exercises will be held. At a recent meeting of the school board about the same corps of teachers was re-elected. Miss Elizabeth Cushing at the First school, who has done excellent work for the past four years, resigned. Miss Crocker has been elected to fill the vacancy. At Granville's Grammar school, principal of the Sargent school for the past two years, resigned and will attend a commercial school in Boston.

U. S. infantry, who had charge of the instruction, for the thorough manner in which all subjects had been placed before the class.

Almost every officer in the M. V. M. has attended some part of the course, the only ones excused being those of the medical and pay departments and the chaplains.

The health of the officers has been excellent considering the weather. Maj. Frank P. Williams, surgeon of the 8th Infantry, acted as post surgeon. Maj. Walter L. Sanborn was adjutant general and Capt. E. F. Tandy post quartermaster, assisted by Capt. John Caldwell of the 8th Infantry. Brig. Gen. James G. White, commissary general, was on the field during the whole course, as was Brig. Gen. William B. Emery, quartermaster general, while Brig. Gen. William H. Brigham, adjutant general, spent yesterday on the field and took in some of the studies.

On account of the rain the last evening of the course, the inspection under arms, was abandoned.

Before the officers were dismissed

Gen. Clark issued the following order: "Commanding officers of regiments and cadet corps will submit a concise report to the commanding general of the camp, not later than June 15, 1910, giving the names and ranks of all of their commands present and absent, and the consensus of feeling in their commands regarding the practical benefits resulting from this camp of instruction, and offering such suggestions relative to changes in method of instruction as they may deem advisable for future camps of this kind as will, in their judgment, result in greater good."

WORCESTER, June 13.—Italian stabling affairs kept the police busy last night, and one of three victims who required medical attention is in a serious condition at the City Hospital.

Giordani Picheri, aged 21, of 9 Lyon street, was brought to the station after being found in Shrewsbury street with his face and body covered with blood. A deep gash in the middle of his back was his worst wound, but he also suffers from stab wounds in the right forearm, right shoulder and on the forehead. He told the police, they say, that he was stabbed in a legent court house by Pretore Franco during a dispute over a card game. The police were unable to find any street in the city named Regent court and the directory gives no man of the name which Richard mentioned.

Earlier in the evening Jelastina Luplin, aged 18, and John Lepardo, aged 34, of the same address, were brought to the station with knife gashes about their faces and hands and were taken to the hospital. Neither was badly hurt and both claimed that they got into a row during a card game. Both were placed under arrest.

ON SOCIALISM

Rev. Fr. Mullen Gave Second Lecture

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish held its regular meeting Sunday evening. There was a large attendance of members. From the reports of the different committees there is great activity among the members. The contest committee reported that at the meeting of the general committee July 5th the winner of the prize for bringing in the largest number of members will be announced.

Rev. Fr. Mullen continued his talk on socialism. At the last meeting Fr. Mullen explained to the members when and how socialism originated. In continuing his talk he took for his subject "Christianity and Socialism." He referred to the letters of Pope Leo XIII, showing that a man could not at the same time be a socialist and a Christian. He pointed out that the doctrines of socialism are opposed to every form of Christianity. He dwelt on the fact that the principles of socialism are in the teaching of the Catholic church offer a solution of the social problem. Fr. Mullen's words were listened to with much attention and it was the opinion of the members that if all the working men of Lowell heard Fr. Mullen's explanation of socialism and its evils they would be benefited thereby. At the next meeting of the society Fr. Mullen will explain to the members the means the leaders of socialism take to ensure the working men into their false teachings.

Believed to Have Been Committed at Como, Italy

COMO, Italy, June 13.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of his fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Porter Charlton, was found today in Lake Como, from the waters of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castel Charlton, was recovered last Friday. The torn garment was fished up from the bottom of the lake near the spot where the trunk containing the body of the woman was found.

Today's discovery strengthens the theory of many, that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles M. Caughy, the American consul at Milan, who believes that Charlton met the same fate as did his wife. Mr. Caughy is actively engaged in furthering the investigation. Earlier evidence that both of the Americans were killed, presumably for their valuable discovery.

BRAKEMAN CAUGHT BETWEEN ENGINE AND CAR

FITCHBURG, June 13.—Albert Newton, a brakeman on the Boston & Lowell, was seriously injured by being caught between a locomotive and a milk car Saturday night. Newton went between the locomotive and milk car to adjust the knuckle, when the locomotive backed down. His cries attracted the attention of other railroad men, who ran to the scene. He was taken to the railroad baggage room, where a physician found the lower part of the abdomen injured. He may also be injured internally. Newton was taken to his home and was reported to be in a serious condition.

ables, was found in the blood spattered bed at the villa which they occupied.

It is declared that the seven wounds found on the woman's head did not release any such quantity of blood as left its stains in their lake shore home.

Isopotoff, a chance acquaintance of the Charltons, from whom they leased the villa, remains in custody and is frequently questioned, but he Russian maintains his self possession, and insists that he knows nothing as to how or by whom the crime was committed.

On the supposition that Lake Como contains the body of Charlton, a thorough search of its bottom and shores was begun today in the vicinity of the spot from which the fishermen had drawn to the surface the trunk with its gruesome contents.

It was not long before the searchers were rewarded by the finding of the portion of a man's coat. This was exhibited among the fisherfolk and others in the vicinity who had seen the Charltons and some of these declared at once that it was part of a suit which the young American had worn. The search was continued with renewed interest.

BURIED IN THE RUINS

EXTRA FIRE IN MONTREAL

20 Persons Dead and Many Were Injured

MONTREAL, June 13.—Bodies of probably twenty bindery girls and linotype men are buried beneath tons of wrecked machinery and heavy debris in the basement of the Herald building in this city which was wrecked by fire today. Many of the victims met their death in slow torture. Flames crept slowly upon them as they lay helpless and as a rescue party was fighting to penetrate the building.

The victims were swept downward through the building by a huge water tank which plunged from roof to cellar. Almost instantly there was an explosion of gas from severed pipes which hung about the sides of the immense jagged hole.

Flames, fanned by a stiff wind, were soon sweeping the upper floors of the building. Scores of persons in the editorial and other departments had to fight for their lives through smoke and wreckage. The fire department, promptly on hand, could make little impression on the increasing flames.

Cries of the buried victims rose over the shouts of the firemen and the crowd which quickly gathered. Although the flames were steadily creeping down the building it appeared for a time as if some who had been hurled to the basement might be rescued. The police headed a volunteer party, which, protected by a water curtain formed by streams from fire hose, tried to enter the building.

With the opening of the doors the groans and cries of those pinned in the ruins became more distinct. But just within a massive wall of flame suddenly arose. Gradually the cries died out. All attempts at rescue soon had to be abandoned.

Blaze Spread Quickly

MONTREAL, June 13.—The Herald building was destroyed by fire today. It is reported fifteen or twenty persons are dead in the ruins. Loss on building, $200,000.

"ROSEY" RETIRES

Was Known as Leader at the Essex Market Court

NEW YORK, June 13.—"Rosey" the Lawyer has quit the law business. The former leader of the Essex Market bar is going into the calling of mink cloaks and suits for women. Already his last farewells have been said to Judge, policeman, The Duke of Essex street, the mayor of Second Avenue and the other East Side notables with whom Rosey spent twenty years at the bar. And the competition that has driven Rosey from the courts—the competition of the younger generation.

"Am I afraid of the young lawyers?" exclaimed Rosey, otherwise Hyman Rosenschein, in his Harlem flat, in West One Hundred and Forty-first street, yesterday. "You bet I'm not. I am not afraid of the young lawyers. It is the young policemen I fear."

"In the old days the policemen helped me to get clients. They would say to the prisoners in their cells: 'You want a good lawyer. There's Rosey, he's the best there is.' And a word from them went a long way. And for that little service they charged me nothing."

"But look at things now. Everything on a business basis. The younger policemen first demanded fifty per cent of the fees and then twenty-five. Finally some of them decided they'd keep it all. So now they hire a young lawyer for $5 a week, work him day and night and keep all the fees. I can't prove this, but I'm morally certain of it."

"Then there's another thing about the law business I don't like nowadays. There's too many laws. In the old days the common law was good enough for anybody. But now the people in Albany pass a new law every day and a man has to keep track of them all."

"My birthday was yesterday. I was sixty-four years old. It wasn't much of a birthday compared to other days. There was one birthday a number of years ago. Judge Finn was on the bench. I had a long line of fish peddlers, push-cart men, and others for clients. I stepped up to the bridge and stood there with my clients."

"Your Honor," says I, waving my hand at the clients. "This is my birthday."

"Discharged," says Finn.

"And my long line of clients went out of the door happy."

And so Rosey has turned from the bar. He is going back into the cloak and suit business with his nephew, Charles Henis, at Nos. 18-20 West Twenty-first street. In fact, he is already working daily in the office of the firm. But he regrets that he has had nothing to do with designing this year's fashions. That was all done last April before he entered the firm. Next year, however, he is going to give some thought to the subject of women's dresses and promises that he will do something novel.

Rosey came to this country from Kempen, Posen in 1871. He entered a lawyer's office and was admitted to the bar in 1890. In all that time he hasn't handled a divorce case.

"Whenever I got one," said he "I'd go to the home of the clients and argue them out of it."

A congressman in Rosey's district once said: "The best monument to him lives in the hearts of those he has recruited."

RING SPINNERS In Three Mills Are on Strike

About 300 ring spinners, men and boys, are out on strike from the Massachusetts, Prescott and Merrimack mills. Most of the strikers are Greeks and one of their representatives said to a reporter for The Sun this afternoon that the men and boys struck because they could not live on the wages they received.

"The Greek men and boys will not make any trouble at the mills," he said. "They will not go near the mills and if the mill people can succeed in filling their places well and good. The average wage that they received was less than $8 a week and they could not live on that. There was a time when they could drag along on such small wages but the cost of living is too high now."

"A great many of my countrymen have left Lowell within the last few weeks and a great many more are preparing to leave. They cannot afford to work here any longer for the wages that are being paid in the mills. They can do better in the west and south, railroading and farming."

"I understand that the demand for a ten per cent increase was granted at the Hamilton mills and the strikers have gone back to work. Another of the mills offered five per cent, but that was not enough. These poor fellows have been living from hand to mouth and they are completely discouraged."

LOWELL GIRL AMONG THE GRADUATES FROM SMITH THIS YEAR

Miss Ella Martin, daughter of Mr. Edward Martin, the Gorham street grocer, is one of the graduates from Smith college this year. She graduated from the Edison school when only twelve years old and was salutatorian. She then entered the high school, took a four years' course and was a Carney medal scholar. She returned to High school for a post graduate course. During her term of five years at the High school she was salutatorian. At the High school she never missed a session, never was tardy and never was dismissed.

Daring Aviator Landed in a Swamp in New Jersey

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, ended his sensational flight today when he landed on the south shore of the Raritan river two miles from Perth Amboy, N. J. No direct reports have been received from Hamilton but it is reported that his engine had broken down and compelled him to alight.

Hamilton left the line of the Pennsylvania railroad at Metuchen and was last seen by the aviator's friends on the special train flying low over Menlo Park. He was sighted shortly after flying down the Raritan river by pedestrians in Perth Amboy, N. J., who reported that the aeroplane was flying close to the ground. Hamilton after sailing a short distance down the Raritan river turned back and landed on a stretch of meadows. This move on the part of the aviator showed that though his motor was working badly he still had the machine under control.

It was learned that Hamilton landed because his motor was working badly, largely, he thought, because the omitted cleaning the spark plugs during his stop in Philadelphia. A Perth Amboy garage furnished him with new plugs and he immediately began preparations to renew his flight.

THE THIMBLE CLUB Is Charge Against Police Officer

IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED

BOSTON, June 13.—Two important measures went through the legislature today and will probably reach the governor tomorrow, the first being a bill permitting the Boston Holding Co. to issue preferred stock, while the second provides for the expenditure of $2,000,000 in improving Commonwealth flats off East Boston.

The house ways and means committee reported a state tax revalued of $4,410,111, compared with $4,500,000 last year.

The tax is one of the largest in the history of the state.

Objectors to Location May Not be Heard for Several Weeks

The chances are that weeks will elapse before the pathfinders who oppose the erection of a beam house in Perry street by the American Hilde & Leather company will be given a hearing.

There are four petitions before the board of health and they carry a considerable number of signatures. The board has already looked over the plans and the premises for the proposed new beam houses in Perry street, but of one here would be more or less of an experiment. The company and the company's engineer, however, are positive that it would be absolutely odorless.

6 O'CLOCK GRADE CROSSINGS

Work of Removing Them Will Start Tomorrow

The real work of abolishing the grade crossings in Lowell will start tomorrow. A lot of preliminary work has already been done and today the contractors are on the ground.

Contractor Stone of New London, Conn., this morning informed City Civil Engineer Bowers that he was on the job and that work on the Plain street job will be underway tomorrow. Mr. Stone said he was under obligations to rush the work and that he would push it through with all possible haste.

Mr. Bowers, after hearing from Mr. Stone, proceeded to arrange for the closing of Plain street to public travel. This street will be closed for at least two months, or until such time as the overhead bridge is built. Lincoln street, in the meantime, will remain open to travel and when the work in Plain street has been finished, Lincoln street will be closed, but not for so long a time as Plain street. Contractor Stone says that he will put on a big gang of men and he says he would allow the grass to grow under their feet. "I am under obligations to rush the work," he said, "and I will rush it."

In the Famous Ballinger-Pinchot Case Today

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Briefs were filed by the attorneys for the prosecution and defense with the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today. The committee did not meet today but will assemble next Saturday to prepare for its deliberations.

Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for former Special Agent Glavin and George W. Pepper, counsel for former Forester Pinchot, contended in their briefs that the evidence adduced during the investigation has shown that Secretary Ballinger is unfit to administer the affairs of the public domain because of an obvious leaning toward a policy of distribution instead of conservation of the people's land. They condemn his attitude toward the champions of conservation and charge him with causing embarrassment to the president and loss to the people.

Equally insistent that Mr. Ballinger's actions in and out of the interior department have not been open to criticism, John J. Vertrees, counsel for the secretary, declares that none of the accusations made against him has been sustained by presentation of fact.

Mr. Vertrees attempts to show by the evidence that there has been a conspiracy about to secure Mr. Ballinger's removal from office because he did not approve of the so-called Garfield policy.

H. E. NOYES DEAD

Injuries in Auto Accident Proved Fatal

Horace E. Noyes, head of the firm of H. E. Noyes & Son and one of Lowell's best known business men, died last night at his home, 31 Nichols street, from internal injuries received in an automobile accident, June 8th, at the junction of Cottage road and Princeton boulevard, while he was hurrying to his son's residence in Tyngsboro to take Mrs. Noyes to the bedside of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry K. Noyes, in Brookline, who passed away on that same night. It was owing to this circumstance and at the request of relatives that The Sun did not state the real nature of his injuries at the time.

Mr. Noyes, with a chauffeur named Cornelius Shea, from Boston, was in a big Buick car when it struck the car driven by Dr. Verney of North Chelmsford, then hit the curb, throwing Mrs. Noyes, who was leaning on the fender, into the air. She landed on the sidewalk and was killed. Both were rendered unconscious and Shea was taken to the Lowell General hospital, where he is resting comfortably today with hope for his recovery. Mr. Noyes was removed to his home, where an examination disclosed internal injuries. His advanced years and the serious nature of his injuries were too much for his vitality and after a heroic struggle he passed away last evening.

Mr. Noyes was born in 1845, in East Haverhill, N. H. He had lived in Lowell for 25 years and was very well known here. His son, Harry K. Noyes, who is one of the partners in the big produce establishment established by his father, survives him.

The double bereavement coming within a few days is a severe blow to Harry K. Noyes and has excited the deep sympathy and condolence of his wide circle of friends.

LARCENY CHARGE

Mrs. Rose (Morin) Casey, aged 39, was arrested Saturday night in this city and held for Dover authorities on a charge of larceny.

A princess dress belonging to M. Port of Dover, N. H., a suit case, an umbrella belonging to Napoleon Seney, also of Dover, who swore out the warrant for her arrest, were found in her possession, the police say. Asst. City Marshal Thomas W. Wilkinson came to Lowell yesterday and brought Mrs. Casey and the goods to Dover. The larceny is alleged to have taken place at a boarding house in Police street, Dover, where all the parties concerned stayed.

HAMILTON'S START A MOST DARING ONE

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—With a dull, leaden sky overhead, Charles K. Hamilton, the young aviator who has achieved world wide fame in less than a year, today made the most daring flight of his career, traveling in his biplane from Governors island, New York, to a point on the outskirts of Philadelphia, a distance of 26 miles, in 113 minutes, unofficial time.

A feature of the wonderful achievement of the modest young aviator was the ease with which he picked up and followed a train on the Pennsylvania railroad traveling at express-train speed. According to his program, he flew from Governors island to South Elizabeth, N. J., where the train was awaiting his appearance. From that point, town after town along the line reported the amazing feat that the train had passed with Hamilton flying directly over it. Occasionally, with the probable desire to give variety to his journey, he diverged a little. At Princeton, for instance, he went up near the old college town and ascended slightly so that the students and alumni gathered there for commencement could see him.

At the aviation field, four miles northeast from the center of the city, as the crowd flies, a tremendous crowd awaited the arrival of the daring aviator. An almost ideal landing cushion composed of tall grass growing out of soft ground had been selected. The Pennsylvania tracks near North Penn. Junction and it was surrounded by five hundred policemen to keep back the crowds. All the mills in the neighborhood were shut down and that section of Philadelphia took a holiday.

The crowd began gathering at 6 a. m. and patiently waited for news of Hamilton's start. Finally the signal flags, erected on a tall pole, told of Hamilton's leaving Governors island and other signals arranged by the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger under whose auspices Hamilton made the trip, kept the crowd informed of the aviator's progress.

It was a misty morning and the range of vision did not extend very far. A report came that Hamilton had crossed into Pennsylvania and it did not seem long before a shout went up from the eastern edge of the crowd that Hamilton was in sight. Sure enough, there he was, high in the air, directly over the special train. A moment later he was in plain view of all and then a tremendous roar of applause went up. Flying steadily Hamilton rapidly approached, swerved to the right and crossed the field several times and then swooped down like a seagull after a fish.

He landed easily but before he could get out of his machine the crowd broke through the police lines and rushed at Hamilton. The aviator was, however, quickly surrounded by a cordon of police.

The first thing he asked for when he stepped out was a cigarette. He was as cool as if he had just alighted from an automobile ride.

Governor Stuart was on the field to welcome Hamilton. To the governor he said that it was the best trip he had ever made.

"I had the machine in perfect control all the way and could have stayed up indefinitely if I had desired. I circled the field three times to show the crowd that I was able to keep up longer."

The only drawback to the journey was the dampness and the chill. Most of the trip was misty and at times I could not see the train and seldom saw the people at the stations."

For a long time Hamilton could pay no attention to his biplane, or even to the fact that he was in it. The police had all they could do to keep the crowd from crushing his machine. Finally he was able to turn his attention to it and then he announced after an inspection that he would attempt to return to New York within an hour, the weather conditions being in his opinion ideal for flying.

Hamilton started on his return at 11:30 a. m. The crowd cheered him until he was out of sight. All the factory whistles also gave him a farewell blast.

After taking his biplane apart upon his arrival here, the aviator was brought into the city for luncheon at a hotel.

Immediately afterward he returned to the field where he superintended the filling of the gas tank and the adjustment of a little time in tuning up his engine he said he was ready for the start.

Putting on his rubber coat he got into the seat of his machine and placing two inflated auto tubes around his body he gave instructions to spectators to start him. Four men gently pushed the machine down the field about seventy feet and then it began to rise. The biplane went up at a sharp angle and about 200 feet. Hamilton then adjusted the machine, turned her course east on the railroad and started off. He moved rapidly and was soon out of sight. The special train was a little late in getting away.

STARTED EASILY

CHARLES H. HAMILTON, A COOL HEADED AVIATOR

NEW YORK, June 13.—With about as much apparent concern as that displayed by a summer vacationist on a Pullman car journey, Charles K. Hamilton soared away from Governors island early today, set upon accomplishing an aerial voyage to Philadelphia, a distance of 26 miles, absolutely unknown in the field of aviation a year ago, was delayed at the start by the smashing of one of his propeller blades, but a new propeller was quickly fitted to the machine and a second and final start made at 7:35 o'clock.

The flight was under the auspices of the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Hamilton, puffing out to abate propellers by a padding of inflated rubber automobile tubes under his leather jacket, made one day preliminary circle over the army reservation before setting out for his objective point.

He rose on an easy slant to an altitude of 225 feet, and the motor and new propeller developed no bulky tendencies, headed off towards the Jersey shore, the river and harbor craft followed him a holy Godepeed as he sped over the waters of the upper bay and the Kill Von Kull.

The young aviator carried letters from Governor Hughes and Mayor Gaynor, which he intended to deliver to Gov. Stuart and Mayor Keeton in Philadelphia and a special message from the New York Times to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The two papers have contributed a purse which is to vary in value, according to what Hamilton is able to achieve. The total amount has not been made public but it is known that even if unsuccessful in accomplishing his full task of 26 miles, Hamilton is to be handsomely rewarded for the effort.

GREAT CROWD

WITNESSED THE START OF THE TRIP

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator, started from Governors island at 7:35 o'clock this morning in his aeroplane to New York and Philadelphia and return under the auspices of the New York Times and Philadelphia Public Ledger. His propeller broke in an attempted start 25 minutes earlier but was quickly repaired and the aviator made a graceful rise, circling the island once and then heading off over the Kill Von Kull at a height of about 225 feet.

Perhaps 4000 people lined the waterfront at the Battery despite the early hour, intently watching Governors island. Hamilton was lost to sight in the fog at 7:40.

Hamilton was early on the ground and busied himself with the preparations for his flight. He dressed himself in a big leather jacket, inside of which were five inflated automobile tire tubes intended to act as life preservers should the aviator fall into the water. The aviator exchanged greetings with numerous friends and was photographed in his grotesque appearing regalia while Glenn H. Curtiss, who was active in the assistance of his brother aviator, personally went over Hamilton's machine and saw that every nut, bolt and guy wire was in proper trim. Just before 7:10 Hamilton seated himself in his machine and with a preliminary whirl of the propellers the machine was let loose. It travelled rapidly along the ground but before it had gone a hundred yards and while yet in contact with the earth one of the propeller blades struck a stake which projected six inches above the surface. The blade was smashed and the aviator, noting the damage, immediately stopped the machine. It was seen that a new propeller would have to be substituted. There was a hurry and bustle and the aviation supplies of the last night were soon found to furnish the desired propeller. At a moment or two mechanics were busy putting a new propeller in place on the machine. It was the propeller which Glenn H. Curtiss used in his record flight from Albany to New York and fitted the Hamilton machine to perfection.

Hamilton set the new propeller whirling at 7:32 o'clock and, as everything was found to work well, the machine was released at 7:35 and rose rapidly from the island aerodrome. Hamilton did not head at once towards Philadelphia but made a circuit of a mile and a half around Governors island, including his planes so that the machine gradually ascended until, as he finally headed off over the Kill Von Kull, he was flying at a height of about 225 feet.

The weather conditions were not far from ideal. The air was practically dead, only a slight breeze blowing at the rate of 5 or 8 miles an hour from the southeast. Crowds which had assembled to see the start gave the aviator a hearty cheer as he arose, swept around and passed over the island on his last getaway. No flares were flying from the aeroplane but Hamilton, faced with him several hundred yards, round, flat, celluloid discs known as peace bombs which he intended to drop at designated places in his flight as an illustration of the possibilities of the aeroplane in war.

Hamilton's brother aviators, Glenn H. Curtiss and Martin Baldwin, were of material assistance to him in his preparations for his flight and in repairing the accident damage. Curtiss and Baldwin and Baldwin's mechanic, "Slim" Shriver worked like beavers in helping fit the new propeller with the result that it was only 23 minutes after the accident that Hamilton was ready to start. He was up to the moment when the machine was again ready for his flight.

FLYING OVER TRAIN

METROHUEEN, N. J., June 13.—Hamilton passed this place, 25 miles from Jersey City, at 8:09 a. m. He is flying directly over the special train of the Pennsylvania railroad which is acting as a guide.

MAKING GOOD TIME

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 13.—Hamilton passed over Millstone Junction, about one mile west of here, at 8:15. He is still flying directly over the special train and according to the figures, he traveled five miles in ten minutes.

A GREAT STRIKE

OF CLOAKMAKERS THREATENED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 13.—A strike involving 75,000 cloakmakers of New York and neighboring cities will be called before July 15, according to delegates who returned yesterday from the convention of the International Ladies' Garmentmakers union. Arrangements were made for a conference of the national executive committee to be held tomorrow, at which a date will be fixed for a general strike. In addition to the cloakmakers, the shirtmakers, waistmakers, wrapper-makers and corsetmakers will be called out. The plan is to have the strike in full swing in the middle of July, which is the busiest season in the cloak trade.

A tax for each man and 50 cents for each woman in the trade has been ordered as an emergency fund.

It is found that manufacturers in other cities are doing the work of the manufacturers affected by the strike. They will also find strikes on their hands. Organized M. Seligman of the International Union said:

"The strike will be the biggest ever known in the cloak trade, and the preparations will be so complete that it will be won. There will be a complete stop in all branches of the industry."

Gen. Sec. John A. Dyche yesterday issued a statement giving the reasons for the strike.

"The masses desire an improvement of their condition. We must prepare to fight for a normal eight hour day with no more home work and no more seven days a week. If it were possible to introduce an eight hour workday for the bituminous miners, it is also possible to introduce it in our trade."

FUNERALS

FOR FLAG DAY

Proclamation for Observance of Day Issued by Mayor

Tomorrow, June 14, will be Flag day, and appropriate exercises will be held in the schools throughout the day and the children will be taught the glorious meaning of the flag. The following proclamation relative to the observance of the day was issued by Mayor Mesban this forenoon:

To the people of Lowell: I earnestly

On the fourteenth day of June, 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field, representing a new constellation. The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new states, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon our fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of congress on April 4, 1818, when it enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars, in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star to be added to the union of the flag; and such addition to take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding admission." Since 1818, 26 stars or states have been added to the Union, making forty-six in all.

The flag has become more and more the symbol of a mighty nation. It cried to the utmost parts of the earth, it has been thrown to the breeze proclaiming liberty and Americans cannot fall of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism, in far distant lands, of ours and other flags displayed together.

I earnestly exhort our citizens to join in making flag day what it should be, an eventful day. Let us, from one end of our city to the other, fling the stars and stripes to the breeze on June 14, 1910. May it greet the rising and set the setting sun, and float all day long from every church edifice, school and building, public and private, however humble, throughout the city.

John F. Mesban, Mayor.

MAYOR JOHN F. MESBAN.

invites all the people of Lowell to join in the public recognition of the birthday of the emblem of our nation. In many of our states, pursuant to law,

Gave Away $3,000,000 That He Might be Poor

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—To die poor, David Ranken, Jr., has not only given up his fortune of more than $3,000,000 to the support of his favorite school, but the $3,000 per annum he has reserved for his own support during the rest of his life will revert to the institution at his death.

The David Ranken Junior School of Mechanical Trades, the beneficiary of his founder, is to be made one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Few people, even in St. Louis, know Ranken personally, for he avoids publicity. He is a bachelor, seventy-five years old, and a native of Ireland. He amassed his fortune in real estate and stock deals.

The property devoted to the school consists of the land now known as the Ranken Tract. Mr. Ranken's home is in the Illinois Central and Rock Island railroads, and of the Mississippi Valley Trust company, Mercantile Trust company, Boatmen's bank and Merchants' Laclede National bank.

A reporter visited Mr. Ranken at his office and asked for a statement. Mr. Ranken studied the ceiling for a moment and said:

"I dislike very much to see my name in the newspapers. I decline to say anything."

Mr. Ranken has never been seen on a business matter at his home. Like his office, his home is unpretentious.

He occupies three small rooms over a grocery store. When he enters the door and climbs to his rooms he shuts out the world.

There he has lived for years and planned his fortune and worked out the scheme and ambition of his life—the founding of the Ranken Trades School for poor boys—where boys over fifteen years old receive an education for a nominal fee. Mr. Ranken visits his school every day and watches the boys at work.

The founder of the Ranken Trades School is extremely plain in habits and dress. One would never imagine he was entering the quarters of a millionaire as stepping into Mr. Ranken's office. He maintains no suite of carpeted rooms for the visitor to admire. He has only a single room, and the smallest one on the floor. The most modest lawyer in St. Louis would not think of establishing himself in such meagre quarters.

Mr. Ranken ever employed an assistant or a stenographer, no one ever knew it. He has not even a telephone. If any one wants to talk business to David Ranken, Jr., he must go to his office and talk face to face. And he must make it brief. A brief study and the answer comes emphatically.

The Ranken Trades School was established by Mr. Ranken about a year ago with an endowment of about $500,000.

POLICE OFFICER

Was Killed by a Patrol Box

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dennis J. Sullivan, a Jersey City policeman, was electrocuted yesterday as a result of the storm that blew down and tangled telephone, telegraph and electric light wires. Sullivan was three-quarters of a mile from the tangle.

At Fawcett and Kelso streets two telephone wires were blown down. They twisted around telegraph and electric light wires. At Eighteenth and Grove streets, as a result of this, a telegraph pole was set afire. Sullivan was on the pole. He turned in 30 alarm, and then, at the suggestion of bystanders, decided to telephone to the police station in Seventh street, to have the Electric Light and Power company to shut off the power, that lives of the firemen might not be endangered.

Across the street from the fire was a police patrol box. Sullivan put his key into the lock and was knocked twenty feet. A current of between 2500 and 3000 volts passed through his body. The man was unconcious, and where the current entered his hand was badly burned. An ambulance was called. The policeman died a half hour later in St. Francis hospital.

The short circuit extended to all the patrol boxes in the district, rendering them deadly. In the police station, when the central wires began to sputter, the switch was thrown, shutting off the current, and the network of wires was saved.

Abel Brown, the superintendent of police telegraph, went out to the place of the trouble. When he reached the tangled wires he endeavored to cut them with a fire axe. The voltage was so strong that he was thrown down. His rubber gloves were burned through and his hands were scorched.

The power was finally shut off and the necessary repairs made and the fire extinguished. Sullivan leaves a widow and two children.

BROWN CLASS DAY EXERCISES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 13.—Bright sunny skies and a balmy summer breeze attended the Brown university students when they assembled today for the annual class day exercises. The forenoon events were indoors, giving the rain-soaked campus grass an opportunity to dry and prepare itself for the time-honored student performances of this afternoon.

The students gathered late in the forenoon in Sayles hall where the class day address was delivered by Warren Clifford Johnson of Boston, president of the senior class. The oration was given by Winfield Wardwell Green of South Weymouth, Mass., and Walter Brooks Henderson of Jamaica, West Indies, recited the poem.

MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE

LATEST CRIPPLE CURED

Miracle Performed at Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre

BOSTON, June 13.—Having been enabled to discard crutches, which she had used years, as the result of a visit to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Que., Miss Frances B. Little, daughter of John Little of 114 Draper street, Dorchester, yesterday afternoon and evening received congratulations of a host of friends.

Miss Little, who is 24 years old, was afflicted with infantile paralysis. At the age of 18 she became so crippled that she had to use crutches, her left foot becoming entirely useless. In recent years she was able to take only a few steps with the aid of crutches.

The best medical skill was brought to her aid, but no hope was held out that she would ultimately recover. A surgeon advised amputation of one foot in the hope that progress of the disease might be arrested.

But Miss Little had faith in prayer. Having concluded that all that medical skill could do had been done, she decided to visit the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. In the meantime prayers of clergy, her family and friends were continuously offered, as were also masses by Miss Little's spiritual advisor, Rev. Fr. Edward Kenney of St. Peter's church, Dorchester. Others received holy communion to the end that Miss Little's health might be bettered.

Corpus Christi, Sunday, May 29, was devoted in part by the Catholic churches to a parade in honor of the feast of Corpus Christi. On that day there was a large outpouring of people of the Meetinghouse hill district, connected with St. Peter's church of which Rev. Peter Roman is rector.

Miss Little was greatly affected because she was unable to attend service that day. She then determined to visit the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. With her older sister, Miss Marie Little, she left Dorchester on June 5, arriving in Quebec the following day.

She presented herself at the shrine, accompanied by her sister, as a supplicant for restoration of health. Three days later while in prayer in the chapel Miss Little, who had remained seated, being unable to kneel, said to her sister: "I can move my foot. Let us go to the shrine and pray."

She went to the shrine and knelt in prayer. On arising she found that she had no further use for her crutches and left them where they had fallen.

Miss Little left St. Anne's Friday to return to Boston. She arrived home late Saturday evening and found her household most thankful over her recovery.

Miss Little was born in the North End of Boston. She was educated at St. John's parochial school, under the tutelage of the sisters of Notre Dame.

WILL GO TO JAIL Rather Than Pay a Fine of $5

BOSTON, June 13.—Expressing regret that their sentence was a fine of $5 instead of imprisonment, Mrs. Glendower Evans, a wealthy society woman, and Miss Mabel Gillespie, a trade unionist, appealed today from a lower court conviction of distributing handbills at a strike without a license.

Mrs. Evans said after the court proceedings that she would go to jail rather than pay the fine.

INVESTIGATION Of Purchase of Friar Lands

WASHINGTON, June 13.—As a result of information sent to the house last Saturday by the war department disclosing the alleged fact that Frank W. Carpenter, executive secretary of the Philippine government, and E. L. Worcester had bought and leased "Friar lands" in the Philippines, Rep. Martin, democrat (Calif.), today introduced a resolution demanding an investigation and charging malfeasance in office.

AT ST. PETER'S HOLY NAME SOCIETY HOLDS RELIGIOUS MEETING

The regular monthly religious meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name society was held in St. Paul's chapel last evening and, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, there was a large attendance. Rev. John F. Burns, spiritual director, officiated, and the Holy Name choir, under the direction of James E. Donnelly assisted, with Mr. John J. Kelly presiding at the organ. Rev. Fr. Burns, after the recitation of the rosary, spoke briefly relative to the forthcoming communion day of the society in July, and hoped for a big attendance. He announced that there would be no business meeting of the society at the Fair hall on Thursday evening. The reverend gentleman then gave a very interesting instruction on "Faith," after which benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given. The service closed with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

URNS PURPLE MAN'S CONDITION IS PUZZLING THE DOCTORS

NEW YORK, June 13.—A singular case of discoloration of the human body was brought to the New York hospital last night, when Joseph Pick, aged 22, was rushed there by an ambulance surgeon who thought the man was dying as the result of gas poisoning.

Pick was on Second avenue when he collapsed. bystanders summoned Policeman Schull of the East Fifty-first street station house, who took him to the unconscious man and ejaculated: "Gas poisoning—but how did he get out on the street with it?"

Pick's face was a purplish blue—the same color as is apparent in extreme cases of gas asphyxiation. When Dr. Newcomb of the New York hospital examined the man, he found him to be unconscious and his condition was so puzzling that he exclaimed: "Gas poisoning?"

At the hospital the man was stripped and it was found his whole body was the same tinged as his face, but otherwise he had no symptoms of asphyxiation. After about an hour Pick recovered consciousness enough to give his name and address.

His mother, Mrs. Louise Pick, said that Joseph was employed in a chemical factory in Long Island City, and that he had been slowly acquiring the queer bluish tinge. With the passing of the day he had been working in the chemical factory about a year, the bluish tinge had become more and more perceptible and covered a larger area of his body. Within the last two or three days it had crept up on his face.

IVY DAY AT SMITH'S

NORTHAMPTON, June 13.—After three days in obscurity, the sun came out today in time to brighten the annual ivy day exercises at Smith college. The ivy day celebration this year was unusually notable, chiefly because more than 2000 alumni had come back here and also because it was the last ivy day celebration under the administration of President L. Clarke Seyles, who retires this month after having served for 25 years the duties of Smith college for 25 years.

The alumni procession preceded the ivy procession. The alumni marched around the campus and around ranks on the back campus to allow the ivy procession to pass through, as the seniors, escorted by the juniors, made their way to the new library building, where the ivy day was planned. Each of the seniors was gowned in white, wore a picture hat and carried a rose. The juniors wore dresses of various colors and carried a chain of laurel.

After the ivy had been planted with the customary exercises the seniors proceeded to assembly hall, where the indoor exercises were held. An organ procession, composed by Elsie Sweeney of Columbia, Ind., was played by Laurel F. Legate of Newburyport, Mass. Class President Caroline D. Park of Englewood, N. J., delivered an address of welcome. Gravo B. McGuire of Chicago read the class poem, and Josephine Kaiser of Kansas City, Mo., delivered the ivy oration.

SALUTE TO GOVERNOR

MARLBORO, June 13.—The principal day of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of Marlboro was observed in this morning with a salute of 21 guns and the ringing of church bells. A little later in the day the city was again shaken by the reverberation of the cannon but this time the salute was only 17 guns in honor of Governor Eben S. Draper who with Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, Adjutant General Brigham of the state militia and three members of the governor's staff was among the principal guests of the day. President Tar had been invited but sent regrets. The presidential family was represented, however, by Mrs. Della Tarney of Marlbury, the president's aunt.

SHERIFF SHOT DEAD ROOSEVELT WELCOME

The Assailant Made His Escape to the Woods

20,000 Men Will be in the Fifth Avenue Line

EMMETT F. HASKINS,

Officer Was Killed While At- tempting to Make an Arrest —Searching Party Has Orders to Shoot to Kill at First Sight of Murderer

MONROE BRIDGE, June 13.—Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins of Charlestown was shot dead early yesterday in the home of Silas Phelps, after he had forced his way into the house to arrest Phelps for an attack Saturday night on a mill superintendent. All day and through the night an armed posse of several hundred officials and citizens of both Massachusetts and Vermont has been hunting both sides of the boundary line between the two states for the alleged murderer, who made his escape through a rear door into the woods.

The search was directed principally at Monroe mountain, a foothill of the Hoosac range, the heavily-wooded slopes of which might afford refuge to the fugitive. A heavy rain fell during the day and night, obliterating any scent, but those in charge of the search ordered from Springfield the two bloodhounds recently added to the police department.

Phelps escaped at 10:15 a. m. yesterday, from his home, about a mile outside this village, where he had barricaded himself with his wife and six children against the police, who ordered him to surrender following the slaying of Sheriff Haskins.

Despite the vigilance of these officers and the watchfulness of a crowd which had gathered, Phelps made his escape, armed with the double-barreled shotgun alleged to have been used in the death of Sheriff Haskins. Phelps bought 100 rounds of ammunition Saturday. It was learned.

Phelps, who is 42 years old, has had a bad reputation in this and nearby towns. He is only a short time out of Greenfield jail, where he served a year for shooting at an employer. He has been in the police court on other occasions charged with shooting a brother and with horsewhipping his wife, whom it is alleged he had strangled in the waist. It was his wife who at 4 a. m. yesterday morning, when Sheriff Haskins ordered the doors of Phelps' home to be opened to him, told him that her husband would shoot if the sheriff entered.

Saturday night, Phelps, who is said to have been drinking, had an altercation with Sup't. Fennan of the Ramo-mage Paper Works, where Phelps was employed as a laborer. Phelps was charged by the superintendent with neglecting his work and thereupon, it is alleged, drew a long bladed jack-knife.

Wounded in Scuffle
In the scuffle which followed the superintendent received a nasty cut from under the left shoulder down over the heart nearly to the abdomen.

Phelps then escaped to his home. The mill authorities, when they learned of the affair sent for Sheriff Haskins of Charlestown, to come to Monroe Bridge and arrest Phelps.

After driving nearly a dozen miles over the country roads, Sheriff Haskins reached Phelps' cottage at 4 a. m. He was accompanied by Lewis Sears, a hotelkeeper of Charlestown. They knocked at the Phelps' door and for a while received no answer. "Clamoring for admittance, they were told by Mrs. Phelps from a window that her husband would shoot any person who entered."

The sheriff then broke down the door and, advancing across the room to the stairs at the head of which he heard Phelps' voice, commanded him to surrender himself. He started to mount the stairs when it is alleged Phelps fired one shot from the gun which he held in his hand, Haskins' body falling to the floor.

Unable to Remove Body
Sears, who also had entered the house, was then ordered out. He asked permission to take his friend's body. Phelps at first refused, but when his wife interposed he allowed Sears three minutes to remove the body.

Small of stature and not strong enough to carry the heavy shroud, Sears was forced to slowly drag the body across the floor. He had reached the piazza when Phelps declared the time was up and, pointing the gun at Sears, ordered him to go. His order was obeyed.

When Sears reached town with the story of Sheriff Haskins' death, the authorities sent a hurry call to surrounding towns for help, and a posse was soon formed which was posted around the Phelps home. There was no noticeable movement by those inside until about 10:15 a. m., when Phelps was discerned scurrying through the woods back of his home. He had apparently escaped through a rear door.

Then the man hunt began. Phelps headed for Monroe mountain, on his way cutting all telephone and telegraph wires to points east of Monroe to facilitate his escape. After the searchers came across the cut wires no further trace of the fugitive was found. The hunt went on, however, all the day, those prosecuting it tramping through the bush under a heavy rain, until it was a bedraggled lot of men that continued the search at nightfall.

STILL AT LARGE

MONROE BRIDGE, June 13.—Silas Phelps, who fled to the woods from his home here yesterday after Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins had been killed in an attempt to arrest him, was still in hiding today, the armed posse having no trace of the fugitive through the night. Reinforced by officers of the state police, the posse started out early today and divided at the base of Monroe mountain, where State Officer Thomas McKay of Northampton went into the woods on the eastern side of the mountain while State Detective Fly of North Adams led another small posse into the thicket on the western side. Other men were also in the woods and all had orders to shoot to kill at the first sight of Phelps. No bloodhounds were used on the trail, the owner of the dogs in Springfield stating that they were too young to pick a scent in the woods after such a heavy rain.

Phelps left his wife and six children practically destitute. The authorities cared for them today, and efforts will be made to further provide for the family. Two of the youngest children are sick in bed. Mrs. Phelps stated that she did not know or did not care where her husband was. She said it was a relief to have him away.

HILL CLIMB POSTPONED

WILKESBAIRE, Pa., June 13.—The annual hill climb races of automobiles up the Giant's Despair mountain course which were postponed from Saturday until today were again put off until tomorrow owing to the rainy and dangerous condition of the course.

JUMPED FROM TRAIN

KIEV, Russia, June 13.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev is attended with many pathetic incidents.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Secretary Cosby of the Roosevelt reception committee estimates that between 15,000 and 20,000 persons, comprising home and visiting organizations, will be in line along Fifth avenue Saturday afternoon at the time of the parade in honor of Theodore Roosevelt's return.

R. A. C. Smith, chairman of the harbor display committee, places the estimate of boats at something more than 100. Many of these are private yachts which are not listed by the committee.

Many of the organizations will be in uniform or wear some insignia, and nearly all will have bands. To each organization comprising more than 100 persons a block has been assigned on Fifth avenue, between 34th and 59th streets. Many will carry Roosevelt flags and others, society flags and national emblems. They will not march, but will stand in their places as Col. Roosevelt, the Rough Riders and other Spanish war veterans go past.

The Hamilton club of Chicago, under the leadership of John H. Batten, will send 100 members, who will go down the bay on the steamship Commodore and later have a stand in Fifth avenue. The Pittsburgh business men's association will send 500, marshaled by Col. A. F. Moore. Omaha will send a delegation, and Philadelphia, Cincinnati and other cities will add to the numbers.

The Army and Navy union has asked a place for between 200 and 300;

the Spanish war veterans, who are to march, will turn out about 2000, and the Roosevelt neighbors association of Oyster Bay, together with a delegation from the Nassau county board of supervisors, will have 600 men.

Representatives of governors will be given positions on the stand at the Battery, as will the governors who are present.

They will also go down the bay on one of the cutters to greet the ex-president, and be the guests of the committee during the parade. Secretaries Wilson and Secretary Meyer of the cabinet have been assigned places on the stand, and will also go down the bay and ride with the committee.

Among the gubernatorial representatives will be F. E. Goodall of Spokane, Wash., who will represent Gov. Hay, Gov. J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey and Gov. Henry O. Quinby of New Hampshire, who will be present.

The Republican club of New York will go down the bay on the steamship Albany, the Roosevelt neighbors on the steamer Nassau.

Big Gen. Walter Howe, commander of the department of the east, has secured the steamers Col. Wyckoff and Lieut. Edward Cheney, the latter to be used as scout. The battleship Connecticut will furnish two launches, which have been assigned to the commodore's flagship, and the navy yard will send two launches which will be used as scouts. Four revenue cutters have been assigned to Collector Loeb, to be used to take parties of guests.

EX-PRES. ROOSEVELT

Addressed Large Number of Em- igrants on Board of Ship

On board Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, June 12, via wireless to Crookhaven, Ireland, June 13.—

Theodore Roosevelt was the chief figure in a noteworthy scene in the steerage this afternoon when he attended a Catholic service held for 1200 emigrant, Russian and Galician Poles. The emigrants, surrounding the altar draped with the American flag, chanted a Hail Mary and when Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly the priest interpreted.

Mr. Roosevelt welcomed them to America and gave them some good advice on the necessity of avoiding association with strangers upon landing. He exhorted them to be mindful of the duties of citizenship and to protect the rights of women. At the end of his remarks the emigrants crowded about him, trying to kiss his hands.

Later, at a service in the second cabin at which a German priest officiated, Mr. Roosevelt spoke in a similar vein to a gathering of Germans who cheered his remarks.

The ex-president, accompanied by the steamer's captain, inspected the third cabins and complimented the captain on their comfort and cleanliness. He said it was to be hoped that the steerage might eventually be quite abolished and its place be taken by third class cabins.

This morning Mr. Roosevelt attended a Protestant service in the saloon. On Monday he will address the crew and stokers and on Tuesday, with French, German and Polish priests and Protestant clergy he will give a reception to the first and second cabin passengers.

RESTORING MAN'S SIGHT

NEW YORK, June 13.—Dr. R. S. Copeland, dean of Flower hospital, says the conditions seem to be very favorable for the complete recovery of his sight by Sing Long, a Chinese patient upon whose injured eye the oculist transferred the living tissue cut from the eye of Mrs. Cant, another patient at the hospital. The woman's eye had been injured and its removal was necessary. The Chinaman's eye was opaque from inflammation and injury. According to a part of the tissue of the cornea was transplanted to Sing Long's clouded eye, and when Dr. Copeland made an inspection of the eye Sunday afternoon he found that the grafting had been successfully accomplished and that the tissue had become perfectly transparent.

ADVANCE IN BEEF

McGARRY ARRESTED

In Connection With the Murder of John Fielding

MOOSUP, Conn., June 13.—On suspicion of knowing something about the holdup and attack on the highway here last night, in which John Fielding of New Bedford, Mass., was killed and Samuel Stansfield of England severely injured, Frank McGarry of Moosup today was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bliven today. George Berger, also of Moosup, was arrested last night also in connection with the affair and it is expected will be arraigned with McGarry some time today.

Fielding, Stansfield and a third man named Whitaker came here from East Killingly last night by trolley and were attacked upon their arrival. Fielding was struck a severe blow behind the ear and died soon afterwards. Stansfield was considerably battered, but it is stated today he is resting comfortably and will recover. Whitaker disappeared during the attack and has not been found.

Coroner Adams has begun an inquest.

CREW IS MISSING

Captain and Nine Men Left Paw- tucket on Fishing Trip

PAWTUCKET, June 13.—Considerable alarm was felt in this town today over the disappearance of Captain Frank Holgate and nine men who went on a fishing trip Saturday night and had not been heard from up to this afternoon. The men left this town about 10 o'clock Saturday night in the 30 foot launch Clara Alma owned by Holgate, expecting to return Sunday morning. When they did not put in an appearance at noon yesterday the friends of Holgate and his wife became worried and sent out searching parties. The Pawtucket Motorboat club also inaugurated a search, continuing it throughout last night and today but up to noon today absolutely no clue to the missing men was obtained.

The usual destination of fishing parties from here is Prudence island, but no sign of the Clara Alma or its occupants was found there by the searchers. There is always a heavy gun running in the vicinity of the island and Saturday a stiff northeast wind was blowing, making the water more turbulent. It was not known here today who the nine men were.

THE CREW LOST FORMER INMATES

Coal Barge Majestic Went Down

NEW LONDON, June 13.—The loss of the coal barge Majestic with its crew of three in tow of the tug Harold has been reported to the Thames Tugboat Co. The barge was lost off Barnegat on Saturday. The Harold left Norfolk, Va. with barge Majestic and Volunteer in tow for Sound ports. The Majestic sprung a leak and sank. The tug put into New York for instructions. Captain John Davis of the barge belonged here.

BOSTON, June 13.—The legislative investigation of the charges of cruelty at the Lyman school for boys at Westboro today brought out the evidence of several former inmates, who claimed that they had been severely punished or had seen other boys badly whipped. Before the hearing began Chairman Ham read a provision in the statute, which provides that corporal punishment shall be permitted at the school under certain restrictions.

The investigation originated in the charge that John Newman, a Cambridge boy, died as the result of cruel treatment, although the school officials claimed that he committed suicide.

KITCHENER DECLINES

POLICEMAN CUT

Was Struck on Head With Stone

GREEN, June 13.—An attempt to assist in quelling a disturbance among Italians at Newton Upper Falls proved costly to Patrolman John H. Shaughnessy yesterday afternoon. One of the men he was attempting to arrest struck him on the head with a stone, inflicting a gash that required several stitches. In spite of his injuries he refused to give up and assisted another officer in arresting three men.

Shaughnessy lives at 11 Hale street, Newton Upper Falls, and was out duty at the time. In the house at 20 Hale street a number of Italians live and at noon they commenced quarrelling. During the early afternoon neighbors complained of noise in the house and at 2 o'clock Patrolman Ambrose M. Fuller went to investigate.

A crowd collected, and Shaughnessy, who was in civilian's clothes, walked from his home to see what was going on. Fuller called for assistance and Shaughnessy attempted to arrest one man and the others attacked him. In the yard he was struck with the stone on the forehead.

With blood pouring down his face, the dazed officer kept his hold on the man he had arrested and fought off the others until Fuller succeeded in placing them under arrest. He was then taken to his home. It will be several days before he will be able to resume his duties.

Don't miss Thursday's game. Before the league game the Edsons and Sammarco, 33 years old, of 20 Hale street, who is charged with disturbance and assault on an officer; Antonio Genovese, 28 years old, of 14 Rogers street, Boston, who is held on a charge of attempting to rescue a prisoner, and Benedetto Genovese, 30, of 29 Hale street, who is booked for disturbance. All secured bail.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSING HOUR TODAY

Dull Realizing Movement Carried Some Stocks Back—Other Features Of Dealings During the Day

NEW YORK, June 13.—Opening prices of stocks were lower generally than the closing on Saturday. The early advance in the London market affected only a few issues amongst them C. P. R. which gained 1. Amal. Copper lost 1, and General Elec. 5-8.

The dealings were in small volume and the movement of prices sluggish. The market improved soon after the opening so that early losses were converted in many cases into gains. The railroad stocks made the best showing but there was also effective buying in United States Steel and the copper stocks, Amal. Copper more than making up its point loss and a long list of stocks, gaining from 1 to 2 points.

United Dry Goods fell four points and St. Louis & San Francisco first pit. 2 1/2. The supply of stock offered for sale proved scanty. Professional operators look their cue from this fact and bought and bid up prices. Transactions were small. U. P. rose 1 1/2. Southern Pacific 1 1/4 and Northern Pac. Atchafalpa, New York Central and Amal. Copper 1. Chicago & Alton dropped 4 1/4 on two sales. Bonds firmer.

Stocks that had not figured notably in the morning rise were bid up, while the usual favorites were somewhat neglected. Louisville & Nashville moved up 3 1/2 and Reading, Consolidated Gas and U. S. Realty 2. The market came to about a standstill in mid-afternoon and prices were a shade below the best. Rock Island increased its advance to 2 points.

The market closed about steady. A dull realizing movement carried U. P. and Reading back a point and other stocks a fraction. Some resistance was encountered at the decline.

Boston Market

BOSTON, June 13.—An early slump in the local copper market today was followed by a rebound which carried the entire list to a higher level. At noon the market was strong and active.

Exchanges and Balances

BOSTON, June 23.—Exchanges, $18,043,839; balances, $928,165.

Common Council

To Act on Fourth of July Order Tomorrow Night

The common council will meet in regular session tomorrow night and will have quite a list of business to dispose of. The $2000 order for July 4 celebration will be taken up. It was passed at the last meeting of the council and was held up on notice to reconsider.

The $1500 order for a hand stand on the South common; an order for a granite sanitary drinking fountain on the North common; an order requesting the park commission to lay out another ball ground on the South common, and another for $2000 for the completion of the Fort Hill ball grounds will be included in the business for tomorrow night. There is also an order asking that a special committee of public baths be appointed. The chances are that the Livingston land proposition or the Dummer street extension will not come before the meeting.

SUPERIOR COURT

Hughes-Williams Land Case Still on Trial

Judge Hardy's desk in superior court was adorned this morning with a huge and fragrant bouquet of mountain laurel, presented by Juror John E. Donovan, of Townsend.

The case of Heath, Hughes vs. Williams, an appealed land court case of vital interest to the pastor, deacons and congregation of the Mt. Olive African Baptist church of Cambridge was called. Testimony of the several witnesses has brought out the fact that certain members of the congregation, including the clergyman and clerk have been involved in factional differences which have included slander suits and appearances before the grand jury. The case will take all day.

A jury impaneled on Friday to hear the libel suit of Hill vs. Eastern Cold Storage company and Hill vs. Simonds et al. is still waiting and this case will be the next in order.

Judge Hardy heard a few motions during the noon recess today.

BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, June 13.—Replying to an interpellation by Sir Henry James Daziel in the house of commons today Sir Edward Grey declared that Sir Eldon Gorst, the British agent and consul general in Egypt, had the complete confidence of the government. Sir Henry thereupon requested the foreign secretary to send a copy of his reply to Mr. Roosevelt. Sir Edward answered that he could give no reason for doing anything of the kind. The exchanges between the foreign secretary and the liberal member for Kirkcaldy came as a sequel to Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Goshall, in the course of which he criticized the British administration in Egypt as being rather more lenient toward the nationalists than was justified by the conditions there.

Since the delivery of the speech it has been considered inadvisable that the conservatives would take advantage of the opportunity to attack the government's policy in its African dependency.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Observed at Evangelical Churches
Throughout the City

Yesterday was Children's day in the evangelical churches throughout the city. There were concert programs, graduation exercises of Sunday school classes and presentation of plants. The weather clerk who has been acting so curiously of late forced a smile for the children yesterday and condescended to suspend the downpour of rain for the convenience of the little ones. The floral decorations in all of the churches were quite elaborate. Beautiful flowers and decorations of greenery, among which hung cages of canary birds, made the Pawtucket church beautiful on Children's day, and more beautiful by far than the decorations were the glad, expectant faces of the little ones. The entire morning service was given up to the children and there was music appropriate to the occasion.

Centralville Methodist

Children's day observance at the Central M. E. church was both interesting and beautiful. The exercises were held in the evening and the program was a long and varied one, consisting mostly of recitations, songs and drills by the children. The platform was prettily decorated with American flags, cut flowers and potted plants, the flowers and plants later being distributed among the children. One of the features of the program was the "collection drill," in which many of the young men and women of the church took part, carrying flags of series in red, white and blue.

First Baptist Church

Children's day service at the First Baptist church Sunday morning was well attended. While the exercises were by the children of the primary and kindergarten departments, the classes of older members were out in full numbers, the Philathea class of young women reporting 45, the Baracca class of young men 95, and the Floyd class 200. The floral decorations were very beautiful, including large baskets of sweet peas, lilies of the valley, roses and other choice flowers, and also 200 well grown plants in pots that were given at the close of the service to the younger children. The program was arranged by Mrs. L. T. Trull, superintendent of the primary department; Miss Alice Henderson, teacher of the kindergarten; Miss Rita Smith and Miss Gertrude Fuller. The committee on decorations was Mrs. E. P. Perrin, Miss Bertha Taylor, Miss Minnie F. Taylor, Mr. James Anderson and Miss Minnie Walsh. The exercises included recitations, dialogues, songs, a military drill by thirteen boys, and other features, more than sixty children having parts, besides the singing by the school and classes.

Standing room was at a premium at the First Trinitarian Congregational church yesterday, Children's day. The children's choir was stationed in the choir loft and the children in their vestments made a pretty picture. Three hundred geraniums in blossom made a striking decoration for the front seats and rear of the pulpit platform.

High St. Congregational

Both morning and afternoon services at High Street church were given up to the children. The morning service was devoted to singing and readings by the Sunday school and a talk by Rev. A. C. Ferrin on "A Message From Beyond." The program included a song by the Sunday school, "When Morning Gilds the Skies." The afternoon service at 5 o'clock was held in the vestry and the pastor gave an interesting talk on birds.

Paige St. Church

Children's day exercises were held yesterday at the morning service at the Paige Street Free Baptist church and were well attended. There was a very pleasing program by the Sunday school. A pretty and impressive feature of the services was the consecration of several infants born during the past year, and their reception into the roll of the Sunday school. The room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants and at the conclusion of the exercises each child was presented a plant.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Father and Girl Were Drowned

MONTREAL, June 13.—Albert Fa-nough, a builder of St. Lambert, and his adopted daughter, Lena Healy, jumped from Victoria bridge, 60 feet, into the swift current, of the St. Lawrence yesterday. Both were drowned. Enough leaped first, and was followed a moment later by the girl, but whether she jumped in the excitement of the moment or in following out a suicide agreement does not appear. The only witness was the bridge electrician. He saw the two sitting down, evidently in earnest conversation. Suddenly both arose and enough, who was 45 years old, climbed the five-foot railing and plunged into the river. The girl followed before the electrician could interfere. Enough had been in ill health for years.

ABERNATHY BOYS

HAVE ARRIVED IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, June 13.—Louis and Temple, the 10 and 6-year-old sons of John R. Abernathy, marshal of Oklahoma, rode into this city Saturday after a ride of 2500 miles on horseback from their home.

The purpose of their long ride was to renew their acquaintance with Colonel Roosevelt, who, next to their father, they believe the greatest man in the world.

That two boys of such extreme youth should dare to make such a trip all alone is a great credit to their bringing up. And how they were brought up is told by Marshal Abernathy in the following words:

"Teach a boy self-reliance from the moment he tumbles out of the cradle, make him keep his traces taut and work well forward in his collar and 99 times out of 100 his independence will assert itself before he is two years old. Then guide him with a firm but tender hand; instill into him the principles of right and wrong, and the rest is easy. If there is no hint in his blood, and he doesn't possess a yelping streak, he will develop into a fine man. That's my rule, and I don't think I've taken the right tack, talk to my boys for five minutes and they'll convince you that they are men in principles even if they are babies in years. God bless 'em."

"You see Temple was less than four when his mother died, Captain Jack said. 'I was away from my ranch so much of the time looking after my duties as marshal that the boys had to hustle for themselves. Their sister, Kitty Jo, had to mother them, and she took the place at the head of the table, taking care of mother's death. She conducted the household affairs of the ranch ever since. The other girls are Goldie, 12; John (she's a girl, too, and named for me), 8; Pearl, 5, and Lucille, 2."

"Of course Louis as the older of the two boys, became the man of the house, and his mother's death, I think, but I will say that he doesn't exert his authority in an overbearing manner."

SHOWED COURAGE

WOMAN EXTINGUISHED FIRE IN HER HOME

SACO, Me., June 12.—But for the presence of mind and courage of Mrs. Fred N. Thims of lower Beach street, her home would have been burned yesterday. While she was reading in the sitting room her little daughter ran to her, and tugging at her dress said: "You won't lick me, will you, mama?" "Well, what have you been doing now?" asked Mrs. Thims who suspected the child had broken her doll.

"I found some matches in the room upstairs and the bed got afire," sobbed the little girl.

Mrs. Thims waited to hear no more, but got a pail of water and ran to the sleeping room upstairs. She found the room filled with smoke and the mattress afire. In spite of the suffocating smoke, she went into the room and soon had the fire under control. She then went to the hallway to get her breath, after which she returned and made short work of the blaze, which in a few minutes more would have spread to the upper part of the house. The mattress was ruined, a hole was burned in the floor, the covering was burned from a musical instrument and the naphtha was charred.

The house is a mile from the fire station, and had not the little girl gone to her mother in time to confess that she had started a fire while playing with matches the house would have been beyond saving by the time the firemen arrived. The little girl, though frightened nearly out of her wits by what she had done, followed her mother upstairs and endeavored to assist her in extinguishing the fire.

YOUTH KILLED

Woman Thought Revolver Was Empty

SALEM, N. J., June 13.—Mrs. Eliza Robinson, 27 years old, was brought to the county jail here last night, charged with killing Walter Harvey, 22 years old, at her home in Pennsville, near here, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Robinson is married and lived in a house formerly used as a parsonage adjoining the Pennsville Methodist Episcopal church. Harvey, it is said, frequently called upon Mrs. Robinson, but did not know she was married until recently.

The Rev. J. W. Power, pastor of the church, lives next door to the former parsonage, and, when he heard revolver shots, he entered the place. He found Harvey lying on a bed with his clothes ignited from the flash of the revolver and quickly extinguished the flames. A physician was summoned and an examination showed that the man had been shot through the brain and the heart.

Mrs. Robinson was taken into custody. She declared that she thought the revolver was empty and that she had no intention of harming Harvey, but only wanted to scare him. The whereabouts of Mrs. Robinson's husband is not known. She came to Salem from Quinton, near here, about a month ago and kept boarders.

TRIED SUICIDE

Worcester Girl Quarreled With Sweetheart

WORCESTER, June 13.—Mrs. Grace O. Rock, aged 17 years, daughter of Mrs. Alva Luzon, 115 Central street, attempted suicide last night by taking a dose of corrosive sublimate, but is expected to recover.

Her act occurred after an altercation with two sweethearts, according to her mother, who was at home when the girl took the poison. Her story is that after returning home she found one of the girl's lovers in the house and the other gone. Grace complained of a terrible burning in her throat and said she had taken poison.

The mother says she did not believe Grace and told her it served her right. Grace, Mrs. Luzon says, went out the back door and when she failed to return half an hour later Mrs. Luzon sent a boarder after her and the girl was found unconscious on the cellar floor. Mr. Rock, the girl's husband, is said to be living in Boston. The couple have not lived together.

WOMAN SUED

BELVA LOCKWOOD ONCE RAN FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Belva Ann Bennett Lockwood, the only woman in this country to ever run for the presidency, has been sued for $10,000 by James R. Brackett. The suit is on the grounds of "malicious abuse of criminal process." Belva Lockwood is also the first woman ever to be admitted to practice law before the United States supreme court, as the result of a bill which she caused to be passed before congress in 1879.

She was one of the attorneys who secured a judgment against the United States for the Eastern Cherokees in 1906 and this suit for $10,000 grows out of the payment of this money to the descendants of the Indians. She at one time had Brackett arrested on a charge of larceny after trust.

Brackett after receiving $1600 from the government in behalf of his family refused to pay the commission claimed by her.

She is now in her 86th year.

INJURIES FATAL

WOMAN BURNED IN FIRE AT YORK, MAINE

YORK, Me., June 13.—Mrs. Mary Norton, aged 70, of Cape Neddick,

Me., died in the York hospital Saturday night of burns sustained when her home took fire.

Her son, Fred Norton, is in the hospital in a critical condition. The flames burned the stairs and hallway leading to the chambers before the four occupants of the house were awakened.

Norton wrapped his clothing around his mother and, clad in his night clothes, led her through the fire, both being badly burned. He attempted to return to the house to rescue his wife and daughter, but fell exhausted. The wife and daughter jumped to the ground and were slightly injured. The house and contents, including nearly $100 belonging to the daughter, were destroyed, the loss being $1000.

MANUAL TRAINING

The city of Haverhill is to extend the course in manual training with the opening of the schools in the fall. A satisfactory beginning has been made in this course of study which is more educational than manual. The city of Haverhill evidently believes in it and has set out to offer greater opportunities to the pupils. This is in line with the general movement towards technical training. It is a mistake to suppose that the pupil can learn any trade by taking courses in manual training. The courses will, however, enable him to learn any other trade much more easily because in manual training, if properly taught, he learns the principles of all trades.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES NEEDED

In our fight against the white plague we shall never accomplish much until we have a consumptives' hospital to which incipient cases can be promptly sent for treatment. There are hundreds of cases that might be cured in a short time when first diagnosed if we had a hospital to which to send them and in which they could receive the treatment suited to their weakness.

It is not to be assumed that such a hospital would be a bill of expense to the city. Most of the patients would be too glad to pay for treatment. The experience of other cities proves this and shows the great necessity for a properly equipped hospital for consumptives. Physicians in many cases advise a change of climate as a last resort. Had the patients the benefit of a consumptives hospital they would probably have been cured before reaching such an advanced stage. In some cases the change of climate effects a cure; but in others where the disease is too far advanced there is no relief.

THE GUBERNATORIAL SUCCESSION

There seems to be a strong sentiment in this state even among republicans in favor of Mr. Foss as candidate for governor. It is shared in by those republicans who are opposed to the present machine method of succession to the office. There are those who would like to see the custom of having the lieutenant governor regarded as the logical if not the only candidate for governor, once the office has been filled two years in succession by the same man. This method is certainly not calculated to allow the voters absolute freedom of selection. No man should get a claim upon the office by any custom or power that is not expressed in the primaries. Yet for years past it has been a foregone conclusion that the lieutenant governor being the choice of the leaders should be the sole candidate voted for. The fact that a man holds an office for two years is no valid reason why he should be advanced to a higher office for which he may not be as well fitted as many other men equally available. The right of succession may work no harm if the candidate be all right, but otherwise it is a custom that might do immense harm.

THE COST OF LIVING

No less a dignitary than E. H. Gary, chairman of the executive board of the United States steel trust, makes the prediction that the cost of living will go up. One would imagine from his statement that the present cost of living is normal and that an advance is something necessary or desirable. He says:

"We are now in the centre of one of the greatest harvests of prosperity the country has ever witnessed, and the future is bright for a continuance of the good time, but with these good times will surely come an increase in the cost of living. Commodities are going upward; materials are higher and wages are advancing at a fair rate. This means more money for the butcher, baker and others that provide for the home. And it is not only just and proper, but will make for a better general result all over the country."

It is not surprising that an official of the richest corporation in the country should talk in this vein and predict prosperity from a further advance in the cost of living. The present cost of living is pressing hard upon wage earners with large families and even upon men who are earning wages far above the average. Prices have been going up at an enormous rate during the past few years, and according to Mr. Gary the upward movement is not at an end. He is in a position to know as his trust and others are believed to be largely responsible for the high cost of living. His company has no rivals in this country. Practically all the independent concerns have long ago been absorbed or driven out of business. But as to the justice of the prices fixed upon steel rails for example, right here in the American market, we may mention that the United States steel corporation has shipped its rails to European countries and sold them much below the American price. That shows how the American consumer is imposed upon by the steel trust, and what the steel trust does in this respect is done by other trusts in the sale of their products. The beef trust sells beef in London at 25 per cent. less than in New York and has a good profit. Does not that prove that it is robbing the American consumer?

It would thus seem that the prices paid for most commodities in this country are regulated by the arbitrary edict of the trusts rather than by the laws of supply and demand. If wages followed the cost of living upward there would be no cause of complaint, but such is not the case and an increase of 25 per cent. in the cost of living to the wage earner is equal to a reduction in wages of the same rate.

It has been said that the cost of living has increased of late in all the countries of the world, but such is not the case. The cost of food in England has decreased in the last ten years if we are to accept reports from United States consuls on the ground. In Paris and Berlin there has been a slight increase in the cost of living in the past few years but nothing like that experienced in this country. There is a cause for the difference. Some investigators assure us that the high cost of living is due mainly to extravagance, improvidence and over-indulgence in luxuries. Does that explain why beefsteak and other staple articles of food are thirty per cent. higher than ten years ago?

SEEN AND HEARD

Don't talk all the time about your troubles. Give other folks a little time to talk about theirs.

If a man is thoughtful and polite, a woman finds it hard to believe that he can be entirely dishonest.

The automobile bromide is: "Well, I don't see where all these people who have automobiles ever get the money."

The man who takes a cigar out of his pocket and lights it while he is walking with another man should always say: "I wish I had another one to offer you, old boy," even if he doesn't mean it.

Another bore is the man who thinks it is necessary always to take off his glove before shaking hands with you.

When a girl in the drug store is just going to ask the clerk for a box of complexion powder, "for a friend," and a young man comes in, the thing for her is to speak quick and tell the clerk she wants a two-cent postage stamp.

We all like praise so much that some of us are made happier just by flattery.

Even the romantic girl may be satisfied to marry a coarse, hard-headed business man, who doesn't know a word about the language of flowers, if only he is rich enough.

Some women for six months after they move find excuses for disorder by telling callers: "You see, we haven't got fairly settled yet."

THE ANNUAL QUESTION

Now ten or twelve years ago, the annual question was: "You see, we haven't got fairly settled yet."

The blithe vacationist sets out. To find a place four dollars per week. Most of us will stay at home. And spend the summer as we were.

And now the annual question comes. To all us men—no doubt to you: "Must I go by a new straw hat, or can I make the old one do?"

He also taught private corporations for three years. Mr. Fround has lectured on conflict of laws at the University of Chicago Law School and criminal law at the Harvard Law School. He is an honorary member of the Webster chapter of the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity of the law school.

In the neighborhood of his home, Legansport, Ind., Frederick Landis, author of "The Angel of Lonesome Hill," in which Col. Roosevelt makes his debut as a character in fiction, is spoken of as lawyer, politician, orator and writer. He became known as a writer only this spring when his first book, "The Glory of His Country," was published.

Mr. Landis, who served two terms in congress under the Roosevelt administration, now lives in the old Landis mansion in Legansport, and there does all his writing. In a little attic, with sloping walls and only a few books, he sits in a large Morris chair and writes with his pen on his lapboard which is supported by the arm. He has a great quantity of dark tangled hair, and his most characteristic gesture, when in the act of composing, is to run his fingers through it over and over.

Of this book, his first published work, Mr. Landis has said that if any one person gets half the fun out of reading it that he had out of the writing of it even down to the final revision he will consider himself well repaid. His method is to revise and revise until thoroughly satisfied, and though he writes rapidly, the work of a journalist, he does not hurry until final shape requires infinite care.

"All my life," Mr. Landis says, "I have wanted to write. Four or five times I have been thrown off the track by the smallest circumstance. The first dollar I made was in a country newspaper office. I once spent a year in journalistic work in Washington, and that was the happiest until I got settled down to writing this story. After I was defeated for congress, in 1906, I came home, fixed up this old attic, and began working."

THEATRE VOYONS

Today the features at the Theatre Voyons will be exceptionally good. "The Range Riders" will satisfy anyone who likes pictures with western dash and go to them. The riding and natural scenery shown in this picture exert an interest on any day. The picture has been shown on the screen, and for all thrills it has never been beaten. "A Modern Cinderella" is a charming story in which the old fairy tale is cleverly worked into a very modern love story. The actors are up to their eyes in the business, and the picture is lovely. "The Empty Cradle" is a dramatic picture with just the right amount of pathos and one finely acted. The comedy is a real laugh and the musical features unequalled.

OPENING DAY

OF PERIN'S HIPPODROME AT WASHINGTON PARK

Today, Monday, afternoon, is the day set for the grand opening of Perin's Hippodrome, Lowell's latest amusement enterprise, and when the doors of Washington park swing open the people of our city will not only be surprised, but also astonished by the many improvements that have been made at the park. All the stands have been repainted and remodeled and the grounds have also been put in condition, and thousands of incandescent lights swing all along the walks and paths, so as to make the park not only as light as a summer's day, but also to make a pleasing effect for the eye.

The performance will start in the afternoon at 2:15, and in the evening at 8:15 sharp. All the boxes for tonight's performance have been reserved for the city officials and invited guests, and from the present outlook the grounds and stand will be filled to capacity.

The various acts engaged for the opening week contain many names that are prominent in the show world, among which are the four Lukens, the greatest casting act in the world; Maggioni and his stick work; Robinson and LeFavor in a funny tumbling sketch; Duncrow and his clowns, and as an added attraction the Cycling Brunettes in their famous trick bicycle riding; Woodford's animals, consisting of dogs, ponies and monkeys, and also the human monkey, Counsel II, which does everything that man accomplishes with the exception of talking. In addition to these, there will be De Koto's famous Genoa Military and Concert band, conducted by Prof. De Koto himself, rendering music ranging from the classic to the latest popular airs, and in the evenings the latest motion pictures will also be shown. All this will be given for the nominal price of ten cents admission.

The performance will be given on an elevated stage, 40 feet square, and alongside of same is a big circus ring, where all the trained animal acts will be shown and many other sensational features during the season.

The entrance to the park is at the east end where the bus officers are located; passage to the grand stands is through an avenue of incandescent lights to the west end of the park where the seats are.

AMBASSADOR REID

IS TO RETIRE FROM THE SERVICE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The days of service of Whitelaw Reid as ambassador to the court of St. James are numbered. This information, learned last night, comes from a source in possession of both the American and British sides of the case.

The informant declares that King George and Mr. Reid, while on cordial terms, are not close to the degree of friendship expected between the king and an ambassador.

In support of this it is pointed out that at all court functions given by the late King Edward, Ambassador Reid was seldom in the group that surrounded the then Prince of Wales.

King George is against making of the British court a slingshot for the ambitions of rich foreigners, and is said to have often remonstrated with his august father for the way presentations were engineered.

King George is already eliminating all foreigners from his entourage. He is going to retain only those who have married into the British nobility, and this rule will also be followed by the queen.

Mr. Reid has served more than four years. No inkling is obtainable as to who his successor may be, but indications are that the post will not go to any one not already connected with diplomatic or political life.

VICE PRESIDENT SAYS THE INSURGENT MOVEMENT IS ABATING

ATLANTA, N. Y., June 12.—"I believe that the 'insurgent' movement, so-called, is abating," said Vice President Sherman, who came to Utica yesterday to attend the wedding of his niece.

"We do not notice the change so much in Washington where the 'insurgents' are still insuring, despite their assertions that they are standing by the president, but from my observations on my recent western trip, I am convinced that the movement is on the wane."

"I have twice before, within a few weeks, been in the middle west and have found that sentiment to be decidedly in favor of a continuance of the protective policy. The outcome in Iowa where the primaries were held Tuesday and where the regulars were successful was strongly indicative to me of continued belief in republican policies throughout that section of the country."

MAN WAS SHOT

The Alleged Assailant Made His Escape

WATERTOWN, June 12.—Domenico Bancardo, 30 years old, unmarried, of 342 North street, Boston, was shot through the left shoulder yesterday by another Italian, who escaped. The two were visiting at 93 Arsenal street, and there were a man and a woman in the room with them. The man who did the shooting was intoxicated. He suddenly burst into rage and drew a revolver and threatened to kill Bancardo. The woman pushed him aside, but he fired a shot which pierced Bancardo's shoulder. A second shot went wild. The woman then threw the enraged Italian out of the house.

The injured man was taken to the Wattham hospital, and it is believed he will recover. The bullet passed entirely through the shoulder. The man who did the shooting ran across fields and finally escaped on a street car bound for Boston. He tore off his collar and necktie as he ran and threw them away. The police know his name and have sent out a description of him.

A. O. H. DELEGATES

ENDORSE MATTHEW CUMMINGS FOR RE-ELECTION

BOSTON, June 12.—At a meeting in the Hotel Lenox yesterday afternoon of the state officers, county presidents and delegates of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who will attend the annual convention in Portland, Ore., July 19, it was voted that the Massachusetts delegation would unanimously favor the re-election of Matthew Cummings of Neponset as national president.

The meeting was held after a dinner at which about 60 were present, including representatives of the ladies' auxiliaries. State President John J. Rogers of Worcester presided.

MADE FLIGHT IN RAIN

NEW YORK, June 12.—Such a little thing as a broken guy-wire could not keep Charles K. Hamilton on the ground yesterday. Bare-headed, in the pouring rain, with his baggy trousers flapping behind him, in a gale, Hamilton left the ground at 12 minutes past six last evening and for ten minutes and three seconds, circled the lower end of Governor's Island, and hovered over the harbor.

In making his preliminary run over the sandy surface of the lower end of Governor's Island he bumped into a buoy stake and smashed a guy wire. Seven times he circled the island at a height of 200 feet, and then came down, with a swoop like a falcon, and landed on its prey. Twice he ventured out over the water, to chase ferryboats.

A MIDNIGHT FIRE

An alarm from box 24 about midnight Saturday night summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze on the top floor of the house numbered 367 Middlesex street. The fire was discovered by Patrolman Connors, who aroused the occupants of the building before ringing in the alarm.

"TIRED OF LIVING"

MAN'S CLOTHING FOUND ON BANKS OF RESERVOIR

EVERLY, June 12.—While out walking about 5:30 yesterday morning William H. Stanley, residing at 109 Cabot street, discovered a black derby hat, size 6 1/2 and a black coat, size 33, and considerably worn, on the bank of the Salem reservoir. Upon investigation he found a note written on wrapping paper which read as follows: "I am sick and tired of living and have taken this means to end rest. I have no friends who care for me, no money or no work, so what is the use of living. Good-by, C. H. Drummer." Mr. Stanley notified the police and the reservoir was dragged, but no body was found.

The water in the reservoir is used by the city of Salem for drinking purposes.

AT CLARK COLLEGE

WORCESTER, June 12.—In caps and gowns the graduating class of Clark college marched to Pilgrim church yesterday and listened to a baccalaureate sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Henry Stiles Bradley of the Plymouth church.

Dr. Bradley took for his text, "Deliver us from evil." He summarized his sermon in part as follows: "Courage is simply virtue or prudence emptied of the sense of duty. Prodigality is only generosity run to seed. Rashness is courage without its master. Revenge is justice filled with an overwhelming sense of self. Stinginess is frugality carried to the extreme. Pride and vanity are inflated self-respect. The only way to be delivered from evil is to overcome it with good."

REICHSBANK CHARTER

Monetary Commission Makes Report on Its Renewal

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The latest developments and discussions in regard to banking in Germany are embodied in a monograph just made public by the National Monetary commission under the title, "Renewal of Reichsbank charter." Senator Aldrich and the other members of the commission had the good fortune to be in Germany at the moment when a special commission was sitting to consider the revision of the charter of the Imperial bank, which is made at regular periods of ten years. They have had translated for the use of congress not only the text of the discussions in this commission, made up of the ablest bankers and economists, but also much of the discussion which took place in the financial press before the enactment of the law of June 1, 1903, and the reasons given by the legislative committee for the provisions of the law.

The subject was much discussed whether the strain imposed upon German banking facilities in the crisis of 1907 would have been mitigated if the Imperial bank had possessed a larger capital. This view was dismissed by the committee, which reported the new law with the demonstration that the capital and surplus of the bank were larger than those of the Bank of France, the Bank of Austria-Hungary, or the Bank of Russia, and were second only to the capital resources of the Bank of England.

In deciding the question as to whether a further increase of the resources of the Imperial bank was desirable, it was declared by the committee that it should be borne in mind that in the case of a central bank of issue its own funds are of less importance than they are in the case of other banking institutions, they serve principally as a guaranty fund for the creditors of the bank, while the working capital is created through the notes issued and the funds deposited in the bank. The experience of all the banks of issue proves this; the special commission pointed out, and it further held that a guaranty fund for the creditors of the Reichsbank its present capital is fully sufficient. The bank does not require an increase of its resources for the task directly laid upon it as a bank of issue and for the sake of the bulk of its business resulting from this capacity.

The other point to which the greatest attention was given by the legislative committee was whether the system of limiting the volume of notes in circulation, by imposing a tax of 5 per cent. on the amount of notes above a fixed limit, when the notes were not fully covered by gold, was upon the whole, a wise one. The committee found that the system had been shown to have worked perfectly well by the experience of the many years that have elapsed since the establishment of the Reichsbank. Although the direct connection between the limit of untaxed note circulation and the action of the Reichsbank in regard to the discount rate must be admitted, in so far as the exceeding of the contingent and the raising of the discount rate presuppose increased demands upon the Reichsbank, a direct influence on the discount rate through the fixing of the note contingent can not be expected. In fact, the management of the Reichsbank has never allowed the tax imposed on the excess circulation to have any decisive influence on its discount policies. As, therefore, the discount policies of the Reichsbank would not be favorably affected by the elimination of the contingent, no reason was found for abandoning this system. On the other hand, it was declared by the committee, it seems altogether desirable to maintain the contingent system, as the exceeding of the contingent has more and more developed into a danger signal heeded by business men.

The former amount of the tax-free note contingent was, however, regarded as sufficient. The figures for 1906 proved the inadequacy of the contingent, showing that it was exceeded 17 times, with a maximum excess of $72,644,737 marks ($126,000,000), and this conclusion was strengthened by the events of the year 1907. That year showed no less than 25 instances, of which the excess reported on Dec. 31 reached the amount of $25,874,333 marks—a maximum never reached before. At the same time it happened for the first time, in 1907, by reason of the large demands of business, that the Reichsbank had a note circulation which, even in its yearly average, exceeded the contingent by more than $8,000,000 marks. Although these two years could not be accepted as a general demonstration, because they were periods of exceptional financial strain, it had become evident that the old contingent of the Reichsbank was insufficient for the increased demands of business due to the increase of population and the accelerated economic development in Germany.

In establishing an increase the fact has to be reckoned with that the demands on the Reichsbank are regularly made to an especially large extent at the quarter days. The condition, resulting of a quarter large liabilities have to be met—for instance, in regard to mortgages, rent, interest, and salaries—causes at those times an extraordinary heavy demand for instruments of payment, which is the Reichsbank's unalterable obligation to meet. In accordance with this view the new law increased the limit of authorized issues, covered by a reserve of one-third, to $50,000,000 marks, and in addition provided that this issue might be permitted to rise to $75,000,000 marks ($178,200,000) at the close of March, June, September, and December in each year.

Another important point in which the new law departs from the old charter of the bank is in making the notes of the bank legal tender. There was a strong disinclination to this policy when the bank was first established, which is explained by the desire then prevailing to do away with the existing paper regime and to place the metallic currency on a firm foundation. This aim has been realized to such an extent that at the present time Germany's metallic circulation, and particularly that of gold coins, is abundant for all demands of trade. On the other hand, bank notes are regularly taken in payment, and for payments of large amounts they are used almost exclusively. In view of the fact that the legal status of this mode of payment was somewhat uncertain, however, such institutions as had to make numerous payments, banks especially, generally felt obliged for precautionary reasons to provide themselves with a considerable stock of gold in order to be prepared for any demand for gold that they might have to meet.

In proposing this measure the new law followed the examples of England and France. In England the notes of the Bank of England have been legal tender since January 1, 1834. In France the notes of the Bank of France were invested with this quality by the law of August 12, 1870, and August 3, 1875.

The conferring of the legal-tender quality upon the Reichsbank notes does not in any way affect the maintenance of the gold standard, as is proved by the example of the bank of England. In order to emphasize this more strongly, the words "legally current German money" in the paragraph relating to redemption of notes, have been replaced by "German gold coin." This expresses beyond a doubt that even a single note of the denomination of 20 marks must be redeemed in gold, although the amount of 20 marks comes still within the limit up to which Imperial silver coin is declared a legal tender by the currency act of July 9, 1874.

Thus the new law, while expanding the legal limit of the untaxed circulation, provides for direct redemption of notes in gold at the bank and gives uniformity, as far as possible, to the paper circulation. Another important provision of the law authorizes the bank and also the private banks of issue to purchase checks. Since the act of March 11, 1909, in relation to checks made it possible for a holder of a check to obtain legal protection for his claim, just the same as the holder of a bill, the committee declared that the fundamental objections to the purchase of checks were removed.

By permitting their purchase by the Reichsbank, the holder of a check payable in another city could get cash for it at any moment by having it discounted, whereas under the old method the amount was paid only after the check had been collected—that is, after a lapse of several days—and no liability was accepted by the bank for the presentation of the check for payment within the legal time limit. The discounted check, in accordance with its intrinsic purpose, would be presented for collection by the bank as quickly as possible, and its equivalent put at the disposal of the party presenting it by means of the giro (his account current being credited with the amount), the necessity of a cash remittance being thus avoided. It is expected that the purchase of checks by the Reichsbank will stimulate the use of checks and, in general, promote monetary intercourse without the employment of cash.

WOMEN PICKED FROM OVERTURNED CANOE

BOSTON, June 13.—Two young women, who refused to give their names, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon by the overturning of a canoe in which they were paddling from a yacht to the breakwater at Winthrop Highlands.

When they were about half way to shore the tender was overturned. Neither was able to swim, and both would have drowned but for the timely arrival of the dory of the Winthrop Highlands volunteer lifesaving crew. Thomas Green and Ralph Halford were on the breakwater, watching the yacht off shore and saw the two women put off in the canoe which was tied as a tender.

The lifesavers realizing the difficulty of navigating a canoe in the heavy sea kicked up by the recent storm, immediately prepared the dory attached to the station.

The canoe bobbed over the waves, several times yawing as it slanted through the trough of a wave. When the two women were about half way ashore, a misstroke of a paddle or a side blow of wind caught the shell, overturning it.

Both were hauled into the dory and rowed ashore. They refused to give their names or accept any further assistance, but hurried off toward Winthrop Centre, where it is thought that they live.

Both women professed themselves to be skillful canoeists, but said that they did not expect the surf to be so difficult to navigate.

BOUVIER CAUGHT

Is Charged With Breaking and Entering

FITCHBURG, June 13.—Patrolman William H. Grant chased and caught, early yesterday morning, a man who gave the name of Albert Bouvier, and whom the officer says was attempting to gain an entrance at the rear of the Iver Johnson block on Main street.

The officer was making his rounds shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. While passing through an alleyway in the rear of the Iver Johnson block he saw the form of a man under one of the windows apparently trying to raise the sash. The officer immediately crouched in the darkness, hoping to get near enough to the man to grab him before he was discovered. When within a short distance of the man his presence was noted and the man made a dash for his liberty. He led the officer a merry chase through alleyways and finally into Main street. As the officer proceeded the patrolman pulled his revolver and threatened to shoot, but the man dropped down between two buildings and the officer soon had him.

Conferees Expect to Report the Measure on Wednesday

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Conferees on the administration railroad bill were in session more than six hours yesterday and made such progress as led them to predict that they will be able to report to congress early this week, probably not later than Wednesday.

The tentative draft which has been made up from the bills as they were passed by the house and senate the only two questions that remain in serious dispute are those relating to long and short hauls and the period during which increases in rates should be suspended to give the interstate commerce commission time to pass upon their reasonableness.

With an agreement on the railroad bill in sight, the members of congress are beginning to figure on adjournment. Few members of either branch now expect the session to last longer than Thursday, June 30, and not a few guess as early as June 25, which is Saturday.

Some of the employees on the committees on appropriations have consulted their records and have found that the long sessions usually adjourn in about 15 days after the reporting of the general deficiency bill, the last of the great supply measures.

To this calculation was due in large part the prediction that the session would end on the last day of next week.

Only One Conservation Bill

There are not many matters of legislation remaining which are expected to consume much time. A canvass of the senate indicated a decided sentiment in favor of adopting the house amendments to the postal savings bill. This course would avoid a conference and might easily save two or three days.

The sundry civil bill probably will be passed by the senate today and the general deficiency never is held up long in the senate.

The bill to authorize the president to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes is the only one of the conservation measures slated to go through this session.

To that will be added, it is expected, the bill which has already passed the senate to permit the issuance of certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $30,000,000 to complete reclamation projects. It ought not to require more than a week to complete this bill.

No Stetson Measure

No decision has been reached as to whether legislation should be passed to prevent the use of the Stetson hat in the senate.

The railroad bill, therefore, appears to be the key to the adjournment situation. Just as it has been for nearly four months. When that is out of the way and the measure has been approved by President Taft, members of congress can lay their plans to go home and not before.

Whether the conference report to be brought out during the week will be of a character that the two branches of congress would be ready to accept, remains to be seen. There are many who believe that the measure has been approved by President Taft, members of congress can lay their plans to go home and not before.

The conferees have made a great many changes in the form of the bill to be reported. They have had the assistance of Attorney General Wickerman throughout in the matter of harmonizing the phraseology of the two bills wherein both branches of congress undertook to legislate upon the same subjects.

All of the agreements are tentative and, therefore, the conferees are not inclined to make them public.

Concessions to Radicals

It is known, however, that the senate amendment shifting from shippers to the railroads the burden of proving the reasonableness of increases in rates and the Overman amendment prescribing the rule under which federal courts would be permitted to set aside orders of state courts, will both be retained.

These provisions are highly pleasing to progressive republicans and democrats. The most serious trouble looked for in the adoption of the conference report will be in connection with the long and short-haul clause. A rigid requirement that no railroad should charge a higher rate for a short than for a long haul is not favored by the senate conferees. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the house amendment on this subject prevailed.

Many lawyers hold that the house amendment would be declared unconstitutional in that it delegates legislative authority to the interstate commerce commission. The senate amendment prescribes the rule by which railroads would not be permitted to discriminate against short hauls, and thus meets the constitutional question, according to the views of its framers.

Lengthy Debate Possible

The "insurgents" in the senate fear that if the senate conferees yield to the house in this matter their hard fight over this question will prove to have been a waste of time. It is likely they would debate the conference report at length if the house provision is adopted.

In the main the senate conferees have agreed to accept the provision in the house bill which provides for the amending of section 1 of the existing interstate commerce law as greatly to enlarge the jurisdiction of the commission over regulations and practices of railroads.

There is still some dispute over a requirement that all railroads must be prepared to make arrangements with other lines in the establishment of through routes and "to provide reasonable facilities for operating through routes."

The senate conferees assert that there are railroads which might be crippled by a strict application of this provision.

The provisions of the senate and house on the subject of placing telegraph, telephone and cable companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission have been written, but in the main the new draft compares favorably with the T. A. Vollette amendment adopted by the senate.

TWO LOWELL MEN

Honored by Steam Engineers' Convention

Two Lowell men were honored at the 11th semi-annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch of the International Steam Engineers held at Lynn, William E. Koneflick, was elected vice president while Albra W. Hersome was chosen secretary.

There were 200 delegates at the convention and a number of important resolutions were adopted, among them being one to send a committee of three to Governor Dwyer to urge him to reappoint William M. Beck of Boston on the board of boiler inspectors.

A resolution was passed asking the convention of the International body to be held in Denver, to elect A. M. Fadden of Boston as president. He is now the first vice president of the international union. The choice of a delegate to the international convention was finally left to the executive board of the state branch to decide at their meeting, to be held in July.

A feature of the day that was much enjoyed was an excellent fish dinner served soon after 2 o'clock by J. C. Tibbitts at his place on Lynn beach. After the dinner the convention met and elected the officers as follows: President, F. W. Detheridge of Boston; vice president, William E. Koneflick of Lowell; secretary, Albra W. Hersome of Lowell; treasurer, M. F. McNerney of Boston.

A rising vote of thanks was given to W. F. McAvoy of Milford, the retiring secretary, for his faithful service in the past four years. The next convention will be held at Lawrence in December. Local 293 will be the host.

PRINCE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, June 12.—The beautiful homes of notable Bostonians and the priceless and unrivaled Japanese exhibits of the Boston Art Museum were thrown open yesterday upon the visit to the city of Prince and Princess Fushimi of Japan.

The prince, with his suite, which numbered only a dozen, from the dowerly kingdom, yesterday arrived in Boston at seven o'clock this morning in a special car.

At noon, the visitors were formally welcomed to the city in the name of the Commonwealth by Lieut-Governor Louis A. Proctor, and members of the governor's staff.

Prince Fushimi announced during the day that he was in receipt of despatches from Japan which would necessitate his cutting short his visit to this country. Important business matters, he said, had caused the change in his plans.

WELLESLEY, June 12.—"Soldierhood is the cause of all social evils and in our political life is the cause of all the corruption and the iniquity," said Mondragon Michael C. McDonough of Wellesley, Me., in delivering the baccalaureate address before the seniors of Holy Cross last night. His subject was "Character" and he exhorted the seniors to make the most of their opportunities.

DANGEROUS TRIP

Man Crossed Hell Gate on a Log

NEW YORK, June 12.—Standing on a log that rolled violently in the swirling waters of Hell gate, Edward A. Chase, a river driver from Bangor, Me., made a trip through the treacherous channel yesterday, crossing from scaly rock, on the Astoria shore, to the foot of East 89th street, Manhattan.

In one of the roughest spots in Hell gate there is government dredge. Suddenly one end of Chase's log was caught in a whirlpool and drawn under the dredge. Shouts of live-savers who followed him in two boats called Chase's attention to the danger. He jumped from the log into a boat just as the log was sucked under the dredge.

The boat skirted the dredge, and when the log reappeared Chase leaped back on it and continued his wild trip. He had announced he would make the journey without wetting his clothing, and succeeded, although he had a close call when the log pole he carried as a balance broke as he was trying to force the log into midstream.

Chase staggered, but recovered himself, and holding the broken parts of the pole together passed 89th street in safety and was taken into a lifeboat. In the soles of his boots were sharp spikes.

"I'm sorry I had to jump because of that dredge," Chase said when landing. "I knew I could make the trip all right, but was surprised at the force of the cross waves and eddies. Then I had a badly behaved log. After I started I found there was one gal surfer on the log, and every time this rolled up it was extremely hard to keep the proper balance."

"I do not think the trip was as difficult as some I have taken while drifting logs in Maine. There are rapids in the Piscataquis river that gave me more trouble, but the gate offers such a combination of troubles that comparison is difficult."

THAT IS CHARGE AGAINST EXPRESS CLERK

TRURO, N. S., June 12.—A mysterious robbery of nearly a year ago has been partly cleared up by a verdict of guilty against Laurie Burgess, brother of William J. Burgess, the man robbed. The latter will today be tried on a charge of complicity in the robbery of himself.

William J. Burgess was an express clerk. During a noon hour he was found bound and gagged in the office, of which he temporarily was in charge, and which had been robbed of nearly $6000. There was no clue to the thief. Ultimately some of the loot was discovered in a barn adjoining the Burgess home. Soon after detectives located, by means of some of the stolen checks, Laurie Burgess, then living in the Canadian Northwest. He was brought here for trial and his conviction resulted.

William Burgess maintains he was not concerned in any plot to secure the money and that he had no hopes of profiting from the robbery, of which he had no previous knowledge.

AT ST. ANTHONY'S

PATRONAL FEAST OBSERVED WITH ELABORATE SERVICES

Yesterday was the feast of St. Anthony and was appropriately observed at St. Anthony's (Portuguese) church. At the high mass an eloquent sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Rolin, O. F. M. and there was special music. At the 8 o'clock mass 28 children received their first communion, and in the evening, at the vesper service, many hundreds renewed their baptismal vows. At the evening service, also, a mission was opened, which will last for a week. Two Franciscan fathers, from the monastery of the order in Varnhagen, Portugal, will conduct it. They are Rev. Fr. Rolin, O. F. M., and Rev. Ernest Salgado, O. F. M. The masses throughout the week will be celebrated at 5.30 o'clock, and every evening, at 7.15 o'clock, there will be given a sermon by one of the fathers, followed by the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Next Sunday morning a statue of St. Jean Baptiste will be presented to the church by the members of the recently formed St. Jean Baptiste society of the church. It will be placed in a shrine, with appropriate ceremonies.

CAMP OF INSTRUCTION

For Officers of the Bay State Militia Closed

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, June 12.—The military school which was in session on the muster field three days closed last night.

The school was held under most unfavorable weather conditions, it having rained hard every day, with a cold east wind making overcoats and rubber boots necessary.

The program had to be changed in several instances. The tactical walks scheduled for each morning had to be abandoned Friday and Saturday. But yesterday morning the instructors each took out a squad for three hours into the country in a drizzling rain, which was repeated by several of the officers in the afternoon in a downpour. Other classes repaired to the large mess houses and worked out problems of advance and rear guard, the issuing of orders, etc.

An interesting feature of the day was the practical talk that Capt. Hanna had with the commanding and field officers in the morning on advance and rear guard duty, and last night it was the opinion of every officer that the camp had been one of the most instructive ever held in the state, having given the officers an opportunity of learning something entirely new, with every detail explained by regular officers.

It also gave the latter an opportunity of eliding up the men who are holding commissions in this state.

Brig. Gen. Embury D. Clark, lieutenant, who commanded the camp, said before leaving for home that he was much pleased with the way his officers had entered into the spirit of the occasion and performed the duty, and he thanked Maj. Charles H. Barh. 12th

U. S. infantry, who had charge of the instruction, for the thorough manner in which all subjects had been placed before them.

Almost every officer in the M. V. M. has attended some part of the course, the only ones excused being those of the medical and pay departments and the chaplains.

The health of the officers has been excellent, considering the weather. Maj. Frank P. Williams, surgeon of the 8th infantry, acted as post surgeon, Maj. Walter L. Sanborn was adjutant general and Capt. E. F. Tandy post quartermaster, assisted by Capt. John Caldwell of the 5th infantry. Brig. Gen. James G. White, commissary general, was on the field during the whole course, as was Brig. Gen. William H. Emery, quartermaster general, while Brig. Gen. William H. Brinkman, adjutant general, spent yesterday on the field and took in some of the studies.

On account of the rain the last event of the course, inspection under arms, was abandoned.

Before the officers were dismissed Gen. Clark issued the following order: "Commanding officers of regiments and cadet corps will submit a concise report to the commanding general of the camp, not later than June 15, 1910, giving the names and rank of officers of their commands present and absent, and the consensus of feeling in their commands regarding the practical benefit resulting from this camp of instruction, and offering such suggestions relative to changes in method of instruction or the character of the same in future camps of this kind as will, in their judgment, result in greater good."

THE SHILOH BOAT THREE STABBED

Ordered to Move From Its Anchorage One Man Is in a Serious Condition

BOSTON, June 12.—Acting under orders from Capt. Edward Pease, the harbor master, the barkentine Kingdom of the Holy Ghost and its fleet, shifted her position yesterday and went to an anchorage below the castle, off Spectacle Island. Those who saw the craft make sail and up anchor yesterday morning wondered where she was going. A light northeasterly breeze prevailed and when the Kingdom started out with all her sails set it occasioned considerable comment.

The Kingdom was anchored off Bird Island flats on the anchorage reserved for deep draft vessels. Capt. Perry, the commander of the barkentine, when questioned by Capt. Pease could give him no information regarding the length of her stay in port, and Capt. Pease ordered him to take the Kingdom to anchorage below, where she would not interfere with the regular shipping of the port.

Saturday the Kingdom was boarded by two men who went down from the city, and later a sail boat containing several men left the vessel in the driving rain and made a landing near the South station, where two of the party took a train, presumably for New York.

So much mystery attaches to the Kingdom that she is the object of interest to the passengers of all the passing steamers.

Late yesterday afternoon the Kingdom got under way again and stood across the channel between Castle Island and State ledge buoy. The wind was so light that she was barely moving. It was supposed that Capt. Perry was dissatisfied with his moorings and was trying to find a more suitable anchorage.

BILLERICA NEWS

Rev. Fr. Foley, O. M. I., Preached to Graduates

In accordance with a decree issued recently by Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, the Father Matthew T. A. society voted at its last regular meeting to request him to appoint a chaplain for the organization. Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's church, has been named. The following letter, which is self explanatory, was received Friday by President Cowdrey of the Matthews:

Granby Street Boston, Mass., June 9, 1910.

Mr. Charles E. Cowdrey, North Billerica.

Dear Sir: His Grace, the most reverend archbishop, has received your note of June 7 requesting the appointment of a chaplain to your society. The archbishop has accordingly appointed Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's parish, North Billerica.

James E. O'Connell, Secretary.

Rev. John Foley, O. M. I., pastor of St. Andrew's church in North Billerica, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the members of the graduating class of the Howe high school yesterday morning.

There was a large congregation, which was made up of people of all denominations. The members of the class occupied pews in the front of the church.

WESTFORD

All the public schools throughout the town with the exception of the academy, closed the school year Friday. The academy will close this year Friday, June 24, when the graduation exercises will be held. At a recent meeting of the school board about the same corps of teachers was selected. Miss Elizabeth Cushing at the Frost school, who has done excellent work for the past four years, resigned. Miss Crocker has been elected to fill the vacancy. At Greenville School District, principal of the Sargent school for the past two years, resigned and will attend a commercial school in Boston.

WORCESTER, June 12.—Italian stabbing affairs kept the police busy last night and one of the victims who required medical attention is in a serious condition at the City hospital.

Giulio Picheri, aged 31, of 3 Lyon street, was brought to the station after being found in Shrewsbury street with his face and body covered with blood. A deep gash in the middle of his back in his right hand, but he also suffers from stab wounds in the right forearm, right shoulder and on the forehead. He told the police, they say, that he was stabbed in a Regent court house by Pietro Franco during a dispute over a card game. The police were unable to find any street in the city named Regent court and the directory gives no man of the name which Richer mentioned.

Earlier in the evening Jeannette Luplin, aged 18, and John Lepardo, aged 34, of the same address, were brought to the station with knife gashes about their faces and hands and were taken to the hospital. Neither was badly hurt and both claimed that they got into a row during a card game. Both were placed under arrest.

ON SOCIALISM

Rev. Fr. Mullen Gave Second Lecture

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish held its regular meeting Sunday evening. There was a large attendance of members. From the reports of the different committees there is great activity among the members. The contest committee reported that at the meeting of the general committee July 5th the winner of the prize for bringing in the largest number of members will be announced.

Rev. Fr. Mullen continued his talk on socialism. At the last meeting Fr. Mullen explained to the members when and how socialism originated. In continuing his talk he took for his subject "Christianity and Socialism." He referred to the letters of Pope Leo XIII. showing that a man could not at the same time be a socialist and a Christian. He pointed out that the doctrines of socialism are opposed to every form of Christianity. He dwelt on the fact that the principles laid down in the teachings of the Catholic church are in direct opposition to the social problem. Fr. Mullen's words were listened to with much attention and it was the opinion of the members that if all the working men of Lowell heard Fr. Mullen's explanation of socialism and its evils they would be benefited thereby. At the next meeting of the society Fr. Mullen will explain to the members the means by which the working men take to ensure the working men into their false teachings.

DOUBLE MURDER

COMO, Italy, June 12.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of his fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Charles M. Caughy, was found today in Lake Como, from the waters of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castel Charlton, was recovered last Friday. The torn garment was fished up from the bottom of the lake near the spot where the trunk containing the body of the woman was found.

Today's discovery strengthens the theory of many, that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles M. Caughy, the American consul at Milan, who believes that Charlton met the same fate as did his wife. Mr. Caughy is actively engaged in furthering the investigation. Earlier evidence that both of the Americans were killed, presumably for their valuable, was found in the blood spattered bed at the villa which they occupied.

HAD A GREAT WORKOUT WITH KAUFMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Jack Johnson's workout yesterday before one of the largest crowds that has yet patronized his Sunday exhibitions proved an impressive performance throughout. An assemblage of experts joined in pronouncing Johnson's showing uncommonly good. The big black seemed to take his work as a frolic.

Every minute of Johnson's fast and rough mixing with Kaufman was enjoyed by the spectators.

BRAKEMAN CAUGHT BETWEEN ENGINE AND CAR

FITCHBURG, June 12.—Albert Newton, a brakeman on the Boston & Maine, was seriously injured by being caught between a locomotive and a milk car Saturday night.

Newton went between the locomotive and milk car to adjust the knuckle, when the locomotive backed down on him, pinning him between the two. His cries attracted the attention of other railroad men, who ran to his assistance. He was taken to the railroad baggage room, where a physician found the lower part of the abdomen injured. He may also be injured internally. Newton was taken to his home and was reported to be in a serious condition.
